People do not like to think of death; it is an unpleasant subject, but it constantly obtrudes itself, and there has been much speculation as to whether mental or physical pain attends the final act. Observation teaches us that there is little pain of either kind in dying. Experience will come to us all one of these days, but it will come too late to benefit those who remain. It seems to be a kind provision of nature that, as we approach the dread event, our terrors diminsh, and the coward and hero die alike-fearless, indifferent, or resigned. As to physical pain, Dr. Edward H. Clarke, in "Visions," says: "The rule is that unconsciousness not pain, attends the final act. To the subject of it death is not more painful than birth. Painlessly we come; whence we know not. Painlessly go; whither we know not. Nature kindly provides an anaesthetic for the body when the spirit leaves it. Previous to that moment, and in preparation for it. respiration becomes feeble, generally slow and short, often accomplished by long inspirations, and short, sudden expirations, so that the blood is steadily less and less oxygenated. At the same time the heart acts with corresponding debility, producing a slow, feeble, and often irregular pulse. As this process goes on, the blood is not only driven to the head with diminished force and in less quantity, but what flows there is loaded more and more with carbonic acid gas, a powerful anaesthetic, the same as that derived from charcoal. Subject to its influence the nerve centers lose consciousness and sensibility, apparent sleep creeps over the system; then comes stupor and then the end."

TRIBUTE TO A NEWSBOY. The carrier who leaves the newspaper "in any old place" receives the following tribute from a subscriber:

- I find it sometimes at the door,
 I find it at the gate;
 I find it twisted into curls,
 I find it laid out straight.
- I find it wrapped around the knob, I find it in the snow;
- I find it forty feet away From any path we go. I find it often on the walk,
 I find it on the lawn;
 Sometimes I find it (in your mind),
 That is, I find it gone.
- I find it in the entry way,
 I find it in the hall;
 I find it tucked behind the screen,
- I find it not at all.

I find it sometimes in the rear, And sometimes out in front; I always find, that ere I find, I find I have to hunt. -Lewiston Journal.

BEAUTIFUL SPECIMENS OF COP-PER.

Mr. J. H. Glass, of Dundas street east, who has recently returned from an extended trip to British Columbia, showed The Advertiser this morning beautiful specimens of refined copper, the first ever refined in Canada, which assays 98 per cent pure metal. Mr. F. E. Cooper, of Grand Forks, from whom Mr. Glass received this beautiful addition to his already valuable collection of mineral and geological specimens by mail, writes to say, that these samples are the results of the new converter, which the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company of Grand Forks, B. C., have recently installed, and which was in course of construction when Mr. Glass visited the works in December. It is proving a great success. Heretofore the "matte" which this company has produced by the hundreds of they have been compelled to ship by rail to the United States, to be refined, thus involving tremendous expense now, by this new process, and right on the spot, where all their works are concentrated, they are able to reduce their product to a minimum. The company having proved without a doubt the genuine possibilities of the new converting plant other extensive mining and smelting companies of Canada will certainly introduce the same process, thus keeping within the borders of our own Dominion this most important industry of refining metals. An ocular demonstration can be had of the results of this new converter by visiting the store of Mr. Thomas Gillean, Richmond street, in whose window the beautiful specimens are on exhibition for a few days.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A GOOD CITIZEN

Mr. John M. O'Sullivan Succumbs to Hear Failure.

A FRIGHTFUL DEATH

Confidently Expected by Her Friends to Occur-

hard to describe. Her complaint was bronchitic asthma, of the kind that giver? keer; you gasping, coughing, choking for breath day and night. To one in this condition death would come almost as a blessing.
Speaking of her case, Mrs. Boyd

"Bronchitis is bad enough itsays: self, but together with asthma makes a frightful combination. I suffered from these diseases in all their intensity, and for long enough neven expected to be well.

"I was never free from feverishness, headache and gasping for breath, and night was the same as day. I was a burden to myself, a worse one to my friends. Of course I am quite well now, and it's how I was cured I want to tell you about. I cured myself in a very simple manner, simply by inhaling Catarrhozone for ten minutes every hour. That Catarrhozone is certainly a wonderful cure for Bronchitis and Asthma. I am not without experience, and when I say it is the most marvelous remedy ever produced I mean it. for I know I would not be alive today if I hadn't been fortunate enough to use it." The above statement ought to convince even the most skeptical of the merits of Catarrhozone, but any yet in doubt can write to Mrs. Boyd, at Leonardville, N. B., and see what she has to say. Capt. Dunlop, of Kingston, was cured, after long years of suffering by Catarrhozone, and will be pleased to tell his experience to any one who will write to him on the subject of Bronchitic Asthma. Catarrhozone is an absolute specific for Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh, and sells for $1. Small size, 25c. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE BIDDLES

Believed to Have "Gone West"-No Trace of the Warden's Wife.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 30.-A reward of $5,000 has been offered for the recapture of the murderers. No trace has been found of Mrs. Soffel, who took all of her best clothes with her. It has been known for several weeks that Mrs. Soffel was taking an interest in the Biddles, and it is said that she frequently furnished them with dainties outside their usual prison fare.

You have no idea how little men seem to realize what courtship means to a woman! To them it is merely a period It is reported that the C. P. R. will of waiting for the auspicious moment to arrive when the all-important question may be asked; but with a girl everything is different, and courtship at its best is, after all, a time of bitter-sweetness, in which hope and fear are freely mingled. For, however true and deep her love may be, she is powerless to ascertain if her feelings are reciprocated, and can only guess by a man's actions what her heart longs to know. So, naturally, a girl looks for The election of Mayor Campbell and and expects those countless little "nothings" which mark the difference between the lover and the friend. And yet many a man will argue to himself, "We've been friends for years, and why should my conduct alter because I have discovered I want to make my friend my wife?" But he knows very well that, though he can-not define the exact moment when friendship turned to love, there is, nevertheless, an unconscious feeling now in her presence that their relationship is not exactly what it used to be. There is a strange shyness—though no word of love may have been spoken -that makes conversation difficult between them. She, maybe, is diffident and blushing when he is about, and says just the things she doesn't mean to, in her very anxiety to hide both from him and the world the true state of her feelings. But whatever the circumstances are-and they vary in the case of every separate couple-in each and every instance a girl does expect some courting.

The man who sits moodish and bored through an evening when she is pre-sent, and neglects the customary courtship usages, is certainly aeither worthy Mrs. Boyd, of Leonardville, N.B.. Was the name of a lover nor the love of a good woman. If the prize is worth Stared in the Face for Months by having, it is worth winning, and every girl appreciates beyond even its fullest graphers are the smallest kindly action on the value the smallest kindly action on the part of the man she loves. It is so simple to send flowers, sweets and music, which all tell their own tale; What Mrs. Boyd suffered would be and, even if they arrive anonymously what girl ever yet failed to guess their

> Oh, yes, girls do want courting, and plenty of it, too. "Tis love that make the world go round," and even in these days, when the need of money makes women put their shoulders to the wheel, every man who really cares for a girl can do much to "ease for her life's weary burden" by a little kindness, a little thoughtfulness, and plenty

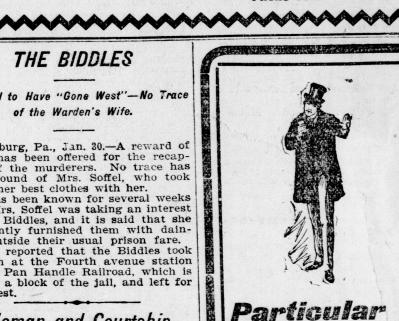

It is vain for any member of the sterner sex to urge the characteristics of the girl of the age as an excuse for his own delinquencies; for be the object of his love ever so independent, or self assertive, and proud, he may be sure that beneath that cold exterior there is the spirit and heart of a true, loving woman. And though, like Undine, her soul may sleep, it only waits for the burning touch of Cupid's magic wand to wake it into breathing, pulsing life. Courtship is just the time for Cupid to feel his feet, ere he claims his fullest prerogatives; and, to these who use it wisely, it should prove a gradual, mutual growing together of two souls, hovering on the confines of strange, new world into which they will one day step, to walk with en-chanted feet along life's rugged road.-Scottish America.
