

Synthetic Food Now; Prey to Waves; Skywriting Yields Fortune

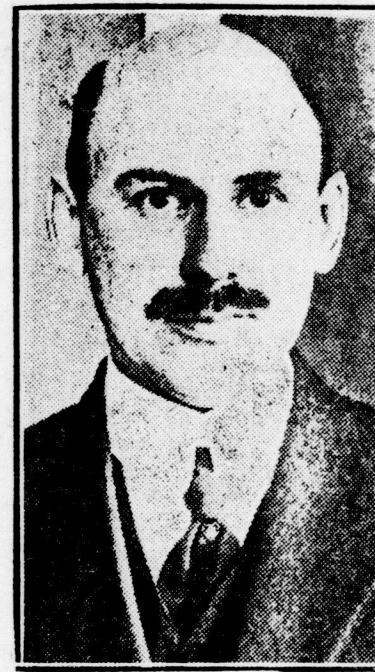

Only an eighth of an inch in length, this "smallest dictionary in the world" contains 14,000 words

His willingness to take a chance has netted Major John Clifford, famous New York skywriter, a fortune of more than a million dollars*

Anything for a thrill is the motto of Prof. Powsey. He took this 60-foot bicycle dive to amuse the crowd at Southport pier on a recent bank holiday

Prof Robert H. Goddard displays a working model of a unique steel rocket which he expects to attain a height of 10 miles before it loses its momentum

Well pleased with a successful musical season on Broadway, Wanda Lyon has just left for a vacation abroad

Russia is heading toward early ruin under the Red regime, in the belief of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaivitch, second cousin of the late czar, who is desirous of raising a force to attack the communists

Travis Jackson, of the New York Giants, is Manager Dave Bancroft's idea of a real short-stop. Davey ought to know, because he used to fill the same position on the Giants himself

Dr. Rabinsranath Tegore has gained the reputation of being the greatest of Asiatic poets. He is a native of India, but at present is giving a lecture course at the University of China

After months of untiring effort, Prof. Walter H. Eddy, of Columbia University, has succeeded in isolating the elusive "Vitamin D". The discovery is expected to have an important bearing on the production of Synthetic food

Skyscrapers in Africa look a little different from the same class of buildings in this country. The building shown is a Bedouin storehouse situated at Medenine, Tunisia

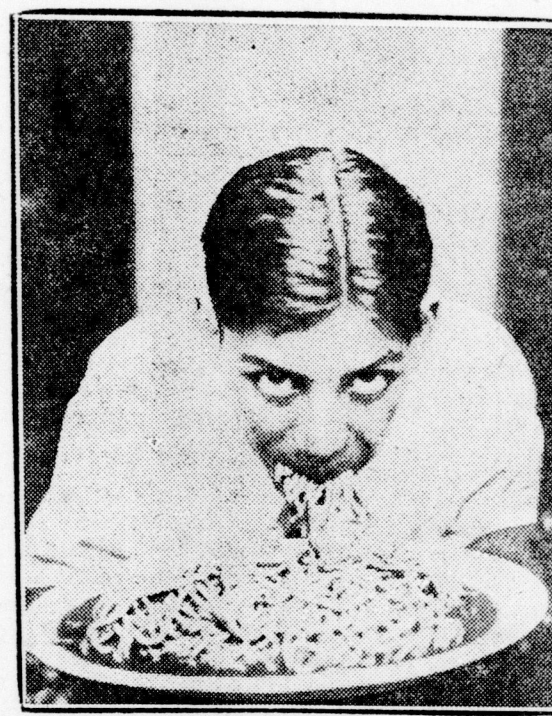

Orphan children, clad in the native costume of Greece, took a prominent part in the recent Lord Byron centenary celebrations at Athens

Hadji G. Rasul, adopted son of the Sultan of Sulu, is in America trying to get his white wife to return home with him. She deserted him when she found that he had a number of native wives as well

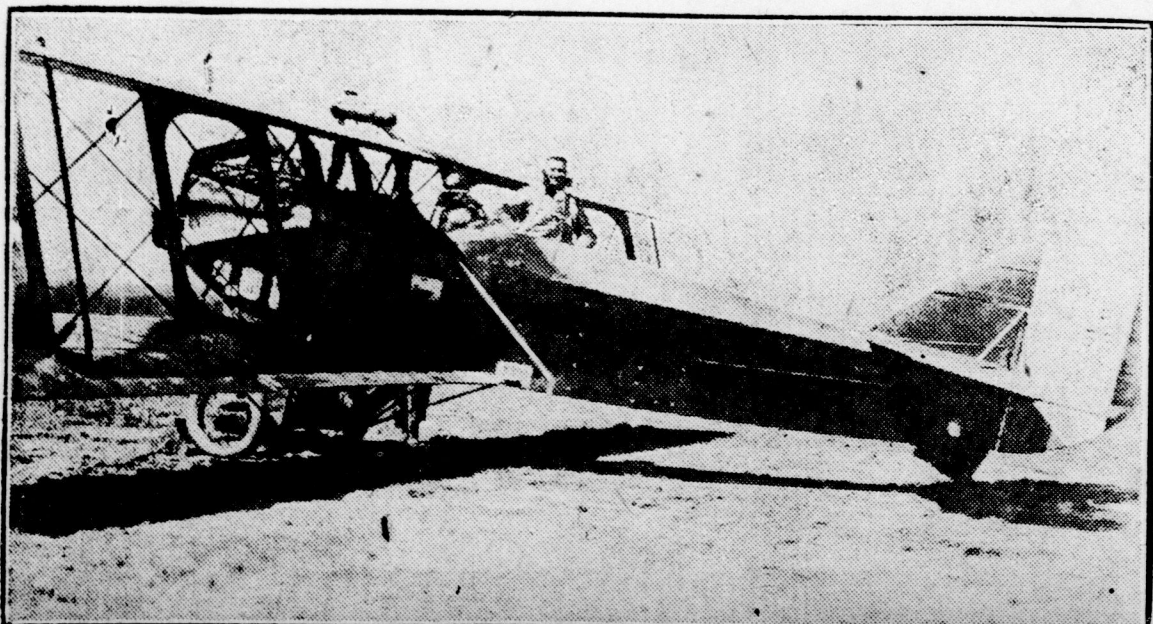

Still missing, despite the frantic activities of search parties, Major Frederick L. Martin is believed to have perished in Alaskan waters

Sebastino Marino, of Omaha, Neb., is the champion spaghetti eater of the western states. He can swallow yards and yards of the stuff while the novice is just getting started

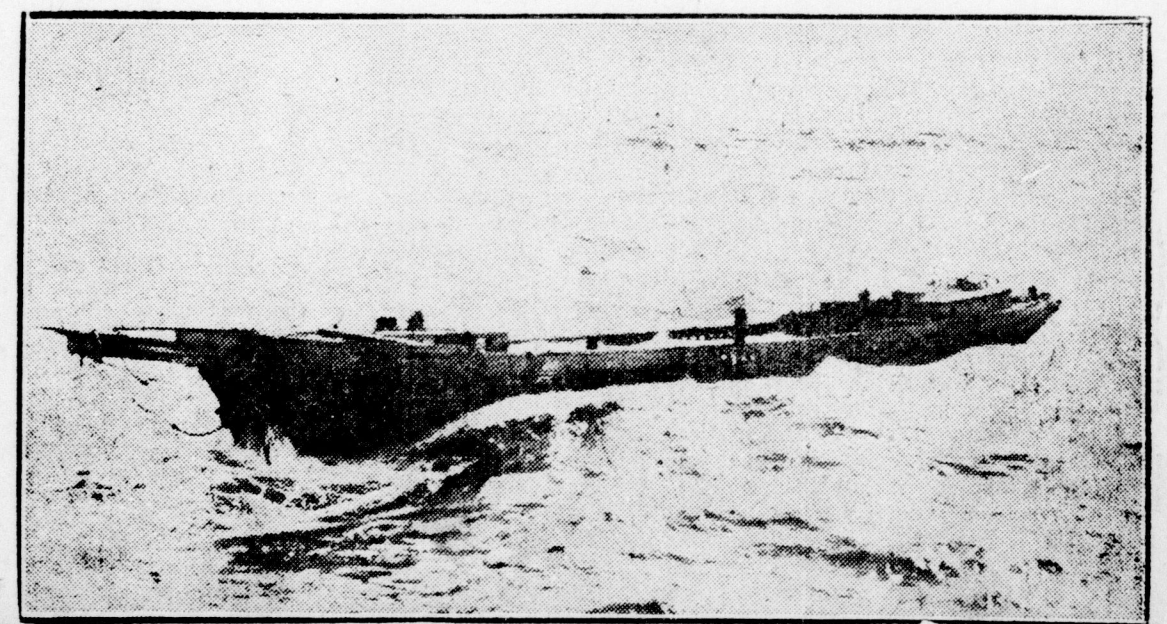

Looks as though there might be a cat on the ether somewhere, from the way Fido is tearing at the inside of the radio set, or maybe he's disgusted at the static

The world's two-man altitude record was recently broken by Lieuts. John A. Macready and Test Pilot A. W. Stevens, when they attained a height of 31,500 feet in a LePere plane

From Paris to Bucharest, a distance of $2,000 miles, without making a stop, is the record which Lieut. Peltier Doisy, famous French aviator, made during a recent flight to Tokio

Dismasted and deserted, a popular prey to the waves, the Nova Scotian schooner, Governor Parr, was found floating in midsea a menace to ocean shipping. She was disposed of under the law as applied to derelicts