He was tall and slender; she small and divinely dimpled.

They sauntered through the park; he vainly trying to keep the sun out of her eyes with a white chiffon parasol. They chose the more unfrequented paths and long pauses fell in their conversation.

"Yes, it is very, very wrong of me to meet you here," she said, after one of the pauses. "Poor Jack, he loves me so very much! His miscrable money never counted with me, I assure you, but I really thought I cared for him until I—— O, really I must go home now!" She made no movement to turn back, however; he ground his heels into the gravel and tugged viciously at his mustache.

"Still, it is for the last time," he said,
"and I really think we might go on a little way. Yes, I, too, thought I cared for Laura, in spite of the fact that she is an heiress, until I met you and learned what love really is."

"Oh, I am a wicked, wicked girl!"
she cried tragically. "You must go away and forget me."

"Yes, it is better for me to go, though I can never forget you. And's sometime when you have quite forgotten me, and are happily married to Jack you will think kindly of me when you hear what noble deeds I have done for your sake."

"I can never forget you, but some time when you and' Laura are happy and you visit my lonely grave you will
—will lay a flower upon it."

The white parasol was waving wildly in the air now, and the sunshine showed a glistening tear upon her cheek.

"If only I had not been in such haste," he groaned, but now I cannot withdraw —it would break her heart. I told her that I could not leave the office this afternoon."

"And Jack, poor Jack! he would not

afternoon."

"And Jack, poor Jack! he would not survive the knowledge that I was false to him. I—I told him that I was going to the dentist's this afternoon. O! we must part."

"Yes, forever, at once."

And they turned into a more unfrequented nath.

quented path.

"Ah, look!" she cried, motioning towards an absorbed pair on a bench a little way off. "They can afford to be happy. No hasty vows bind them to others whom they cannot love——" Emotion choked her; she tottered and he motion choked her; she tottered and he motion choked her; she tottered and he motion choked her with his arm.

emotion choked her; she tottered and he supported her with his arm.
"True," he said in a deep voice. "They have waited until their hearts really spoke before forging fetters for themselves; we, alas...." His voice broke.
"We must say good by your "aver" "the proper to a said." "We must say good-by now," she said, and stopped in the path, and somehow his arms went around her and their lips his arms went around her and their lips met. The parasol lay, like a great white flower, unheeded on the grass.

"O, what have I done?" she cried, breaking away from him and starting forward. "Poor Jack! Poor Laura!"

He followed her rapid footsteps. They were near the couple on the bench now, but they neither saw nor heard them; her hat lay beside her on the bench, her head was on his shoulder; a ray of sunshine stole down through the trees and pointed a saucy finger at them; a bold sparrow hopped to their very feet.

Suddenly the advancing girl stopped and pointed at them.

The Law Still Supreme. -

Crafty Client-I'd like to get some legal advice from you.

Learned Lawyer—Certainly; what is that's been running for a long time?

"Well, the first thing, of course, is to demand the payment."

"Thanks. Then, will you kindly settle this little matter of $15 that you've owed me now for nearly four years?"

"Fifteen dollars?"

"Oh, then we're just square." "How is that?"
"My fee for the advice I just gave you comes to just $15."

Father—Yes, I admit that our boy sin't lazy. He's as smart as can be when it comes to 'tending trans and running. it comes to 'tending traps and running errands, but he doesn't seem to have any usiness sagacity at all.

Mother—Why, what makes you say that?

Well, for example, look what he did yesterday. He has four nice, big, fat rabbits, and what does he do but take them down to town and sell them. If he had taken them, we sell them. he had taken them up to the woods where them city fellows are huntin', he could have got double price,

Trouble Ahead.
"I wonder what's the matter with the Pocket of this new coat of mine," said Mr. Bingo on Sunday morning. "I can't seem to get my hand in it."

And Bobby hurried out on the back porch and said sorrowfully to himself, "I wish I had found some other place to hide that chewing gum."

A Cowardly Pain. A stomach-ache's the meanest, I declare, Most cowardly of all the pains I've felt; That is if, as is said, it isn't fair To strike a man at all beneath his belt.

TOTALLY DEAF.—Mr. S. E. Crandell, Port Perry, writes: "I contracted a severe cold last winter, which resulted in my becoming totally deaf in one ear and partially so in the other. After trying various renedles and consulting several doctors without obtaing any relief I was advised to my Dr. Thouas' Echeotrato Oil. I warmed the Oil and poured a little of it into my ear, and before one-half the bottle was used my hearing was completely restored. I have heard of other cases of deafness being cured by the use of this medicine."

Monroe, Miller & Co. of New York send the following despatch over their private wire to their Toronto offices:

New York, July 31.—Confidence is not strengthened to a great extent when it is a well-known fact that prominent financiers a few weeks since stated that General Electric stock was all right, which declaration is immediately followed by a 30 per cent. decline. Such statements have not favorably impressed, the street, and the query naturally prevails, "is if another case of Cordage? We still maintain that there is absolutely nothing on which to base an upward movement in the stock market. Money is scarce, time money being unobtainable. The railway situation is not improved. Bad crops, etc., and the light rallies have been principally caused by about covering. Stocks opened fairly active, led by General Electric, which opened at 49 and sold down briskly to 46, but rallied quickly to 50. Sugar was second choice for the bears, who jumped on it for 14 per cent. The rest of the lists was fairly steady. London sent no orders, the two markets being on a parity.

Industrials continue to be the feature and show very little support, sugar being the weak-

Receipts at the Western Cattle Market to-day were 34 loads, which with 7 yesterday made the total offerings 41 loads. There were 370 sheep and lambs in, 50 calves and about 200 hogs. The market for cattle was a trifle better on account of the light supply. There were only about a dozen loads of export cattle in, and these sold early at 4½ to 4 3-4c. A few picked lots were reported sold a trifle higher. Butchers' cattle were in fair local demand and some half a dozen loads were taken for Montreal account. Prices ranged from 3½c to 3½c for choice, 36 to 3½q for good, and 2½c to 2¾c for roughs. Hogs were steady at 30.50 to $6.75 for best fats off car, $6 to $6.50 for good stores and $5 to $6.50 for good and 1½c to 2½c for roughs. Sheep and lambs were in poor demand and the market was weak. There was no local demand to speak of. Prices were about the same, but selling was slow. Calves dull, selling from $5 to $7.50 a head. Four Thousand Farmers at the recent Simcoe Gathering declared in favor of the 2-cent a mile railway rate. The people want cheaper railway rates and cheaper rates for many necessaries of life, and the action of the organized farmers of Canada is going to bring about these reforms. Our method of doing business heraids a new era. We stand as the single distributor between manufacturer and consumer. We buy largely, and as our customers are numbered by the thousands in every part of Canada it stands to reason that our goods are always fresh as a consequence of being sold off quickly. The cost also is an important feature. Doing business in the way we do our prices are naturally much lower than those of retail stores, the difference sometimes being as much as 20 per cent. To the citizens of Toronto we would say that if they wish to buy fresh dairy and farm produce, groceries or any kind of household supplies at prices which will effect a large saving in their yearly expenses, they should call at our sample rooms and get our prices. We offer every convenience. Goods are sold in either small or large quantities and are delivered free of charge to all parts of the city.
