Two Missionary Journeys

The Lessons of the Quarter are full of hurry and stir. Paul is Spirit-guided to Treas, there a wonderful vision calls him across the sea to Europe, and in Lessons I. and II., we see him in Philippi. Freed from imprisonment by an earthquake, this prince of missionaries presses forward to Thessalonica and Berea (Lesson III.), and on, on to Athens (Lesson IV.) and Corinth (Lesson V.), where he finds time, on one of the busy days of his year and a half's work there, to write to the Thessalonian Christians (Lesson VI.). Back again to Antioch, and the Second Missionary Journey is completed.

But Paul can never rest long. Soon he is off again, this time to Ephesus (Lessons VII. and VIII.), writing while here, First Corinthians, with its beautiful Psalm of Love (Lesson IX.). Three years and a half he stays at Ephesus, and every day is crammed full of work. Then he pushes on, through Macedonia again, to Athens and Corinth, and at long last comes to Jerusalem (Lessons X. and XI.), where the Third Missionary Journey ends.
