Members of the Students' Missionary Campaign.†

THE following names with their addresses have been received by the Corresponding Member of the Students' Missionary Campaign. More are expected—some colleges expect to add to their lists, and other colleges have not reported as yet.

Each member of the Students' Missionary Campaign is desirous of doing all he can to advance the cause of Missions. The Corresponding Member will gladly communicate with any who need help along this line, and as far as possible take advantage of all opportunities to assist at missionary meetings, especially among our young people.

We find an example of liberal giving among the Christians of Ceylon, which is commendable and really puts to shame our giving. Four methods of giving are practised: First, the tithes of their earnings; second, the setting apart by each of a tree, the product of which is for benevolent purposes; third, an offering of labor; fourth, a handful of rice for every day's meal. Truly they know the blessedness of giving.

The China Inland Mission was founded in 1865 by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, and as to character, is evangelical, inter-denominational, and international. Upon its staff are 634 foreign missionaries, including associates, and 366 native helpers. The stations number 112, with 108 out-stations, and are located in fourteen provinces. Over 4,500 members are in fellowship with 134 organized churches.
