

That is the work which draws us here, to the heart of the most populous nation in Africa, a Commonwealth which unites all the cultures and traditions of the world, and which is determined to work with all the people of South Africa to bring that nation to equality and power for its people.