It is quite evident, however, that any mea-sures in this direction will not ap-pear at this session of the house, sufof its working out in other places having yet elapsed. A query by Mr. Rowell, which hardr concealed a slight exultation, preor concealed a slight exuitation, pre-cipitated the problem.

"Should we entertain any hope of anti-treating legislation before the house closes?" he asked to the slight applause of his followers.

applause of his followers.

No Hesitation.

"I take it that the question is asked partly thru curiosity, and we do not hesitate to satisfy it," said the provincial secretary, in replying.

"The fact that it was ont mentioned in the bill raises the presumption for the moment that it will not be dealt of this house last year it was stated here and in the province, that treating was one of the great evils of the trade which would be dealt with. Since that time we have taken considerable pains to come into touch with places which either have adopted or are which either have adopted or are eeking to adopt anti-treating laws.' He then went on to say that he had occurred in several states of the Union. Four or five of these had actually passed laws and were now working them out, while others were Moving Slowly.

"The decision we arrived at was, hat so much was involved that the province should move slowly, so that a law capable of being thoroly enforced might be reached," he declared. "That is the trouble now. It is a law which is distinct." which is difficult of enforcement. tho in one state it is reported to be

At this moment the premier rose to remark that he hoped, and would be a very disappointed man, if his hope were never realized, that some legislation of the kind to do away with the treating habit might be passed in the future under his suidence. ed in the future, under his guidance.

The amendment of Mr. Proudfoot advocated that no licenses be granted advocated that no licenses be granted to any club, association, or society within a municipality under the local option bylaw. It was, he claimed, a measure demanded by the general public and worked for the better carrying out of law and order in any such communities. The history of the club license system had shown none granted before 1906, but of late years they had been increasing greatly. they had been increasing greatly.

He quoted instances of these privileges in certain parts defeating local option fights on several occasions, and option in particular one "glaring case" at Burlington Beach, where the membership fee was $5 and the membership was, on that account, enormous. This place was not actually in local option territory, but in close proximity, and the influence was for evil, and that continually.

Work of Pruning Starts.

Changes will be made in many schedules, however, the work having been started doay with a consideration of the first schedule in the bill. Some of the changes regarded as necessary by the changes regarded as necessary by the cratic cancus still in progress there.

The senate leaders may be carried over to the house and put into the bill in the Democratic cancus still in progress there.

But while the number of licenses had increased, it did not provide a fair indication of actual additions.

The decision to stand with the president and the house majority refuse to accept any change in the wool and sugar tariff issues has brought the various forces of Democratic control into practical unity, it is claimed. JShould the president and the house majority refuse to accept any change in the wool and sugar provisions and it is understood that the senate committee will land its support to the same affirm.

The fight against free wool, however, the work of the act following its establishment in 1906, had led them to come in and seek a registered license. Others were still coming in, altho many were strictly right and settled their own matters with the local authorities. But while the number of licenses had increased, it did not provide a fair indication of the number of actual additions.

There were two clubs today, the Galt and Caledon Clubs, respectively, which were situated in local option districts, and these were the ones referred to by the opposition. The latter was a fishing organization, and from the locality about it which only saw the members a few months in the year, no complaint had ever come to the department, a thing which showed

Free Wool Hot Issue.

The tight against free wool, however, has become more acute at both ends of the capitol, and several state delegations in the house are appealing to the Democratic senators for support in the fight to retain some duty. The Democratic caucus of the house had reached only the third schedule of the new bill at the end of today's work. Representative Underwood and the other Democratic traiff leaders were making no apparent effort to limit debate or hasten a party decision on the bill. This deliberate progress has raised the hopes of the wool and sugar interests that they may be able to organize sufficient strength to change the bill in the caucus, so that i will pass he house with at least a small duty on wool, and without the provision to make sugar free in 1916. the department, a thing which showed that there was no pressing need for a change. So it was in Dumfries, whence no complaint had come, altho it had been in existence four years. Appli-cation after application had been refused, and it was hardly fair to state that some had been issued to favored classes, for it was the circumstances and particular conditions which al-ways decided. Moreover, the majority of these were different in not drawing their membership from the communi-ty. He felt that it would be safe to leave the matter in the hands of the department, the policy of which was to issue a club license within a local option locality only under rare circumstances.

George Pattinson of South Waterloo took up the discussion by claiming that the club at Galt was conducted very carefully and well, and that he

E. M. Trowern, of the Retail Merchants' Association, then gave a fiery condemnation of the bill. "There are condemnation of the bill. "There are more than 10,000 retailers in the province," he stated, "and if they knew that legislation of this character was being considered, this room wouldn't be able to hold the men who would come here to oppose it. We are not in sympathy with any proposal to put a rope around the necks of 99 merchants in 100 to catch one thief. What do we care what other provinces are doing? Why should we follow Saskatchewan?"

Col. Brock said he represented the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and represented the interests of 10,000 business men who were members of the association. "Two weeks ago this bill was considered at our meeting in London, and there were only two men who said anything in opposition to it." "What about the 40,000 retailers in the province, why didn't you let them have notice of this bill?" asked T. W. McGarry.

On explanation by I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., the third request was granted unconditionally and the right to run cars on Sunday, which The World has for years favored, was favorably regarded and after much discussion passed almost unanimously.

"The company is not pressing for the sentiments and feelings of the great majority of small retail dealers in Ontario. He considered that the bill was "class legislation of the worst kind," and claimed that a farmer could sell his stock and abscond just as easily as a merchant.
