

THE WATCHERS OF THE TRAILS

Decorative binding, small quarto, illustrated by Charles
Livingston Bull $2.00

This is a companion volume to "The Kindred of the Wild," and is another collection of those stories of nature and animal life which have made the author famous as the exponent of the primitive and the savage.

His enthusiasm and love of nature so color his work that his stories are not mere narratives, but wonderful portrayals of the ways of Mother Earth with her children.

THE KINDRED OF THE WILD

Decorative binding, small quarto, gilt top, illustrated . . . $2.00

This book of animal stories is a most interesting addition to the list of nature classics. The author has studied with close and unwearied attention the lives of the furred and feathered creatures of the wilderness and hunted trails, and has given us, says the Chicago Evening Post, "A book that will be read and re-read." The New York Sun said of it, "He makes us feel the solitude and charm of the forest, and arouses and holds our interest in the lives of its inmates."

EARTH'S ENIGMAS

Library 12mo, cloth, uncut edges, illustrated $1.50

A reprint of Mr. Roberts's first volume of fiction, the repeated demand for which has been stimulated by his recent great successes.

Additional stories have been included after the manner of "The Kindred of the Wild." For their freshness and sincerity these tales are sure to arrest attention.

"Mr. Roberts's prose art has reached a high degree of perfection. . . . In 'Earth's Enigmas' there is a wider range of subject than in 'The Kindred of the Wild.'" — Tiffany Blake in Chicago Evening Post.
