Hawes' Miss Brimson says that it should be ascertained at the very outset whether a girl's voice is going to repay the expense of three very ears' study in Paris. This can only be done by consulting an unprejudiced musician, whose specialty is the voice, and who knows whereof he speaks. It is pitiful to see the numbers of girls in Paris who have been sent by misguided friends, under the impression that their voices will repay cultivation. It is all very well for rich peop's to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to thus squander money, but when you hear of mothers and fathers mortgaging their to the more than pitiful; it is tragic. ven—General News.

Hamilton, April 11.—(Special.)—The meeting of the Moulders' Union, which was to have been held this evening, was postponed till to-morrow night, as Organizer Keough did not arrive until a few hours before the hour of meeting. It is stated, however, that the bosses have decided not to grant shop committees, and the trouble has takem a serious aspect again. Many of the moulders are wrathy and are now in favor of holding out for the 15 per cent. increase or strike.

Hamilton Presbytery meeting to day the brethren wrestled with the report presented on the proposed in arrangement of the Binbrook and Saltfleet and Black-heath, Abingdon and Seneca circuits. At last the Presbytery decided nothing could be done this time, beyond giving the Black-heath circuit pulpit supply for a year.

A Sudden Death.

John Scotland, an elderly G. T. R. engineer, whose home was at 68 Crook-street, died suddenly this afternoon. He went out for a walk shortly after 3 o'clock and when on York-street, between Queen and Bay-streets, he was selzed with hemorrhage of the lungs. Blood came from his mouth and nose, and he sat on a doorstep. In a few moments he was dead. Deceased had been in poor health for a year past. He leaves a widow and family.

Wants $60,000. The entertainment in connection with the Art Loan Exhibition in the Temple Building was under the auspices of the Frish Protestant Benevolent Society last night, and a delightful affair it was. The torrents of rain did not prevent a comfortable crewd from gathering in the big hall, where all was light and music. An orchestra in the gallery played the exquisitely tender, pathetic songs of Ireland, and girls in green petticoats, white aprons, with kerchiefs folded across their bosoms, and fascinating little red cloaks, made as pretty colleens as ever tripped over the grass with their milk palls. The colleens were the Misses Cox, Evelyn Cox, Helen Strange, Enid Wornum, Lillie Lee, Edna McNaught, Agnes Young, Mamie Palmer Taylor, Alie Houston, Helen Boomer, Ethel Suckling, Ethel Wright. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Fred Cox were hostesses.

Miss Brimson is living quietly at the Arlington for a few weeks with her mother, who is her devoted companion, and resting after the season's arduous work in opera in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, and other cities. She has just returned from a flying, happy visit to New York, where she signed, this week, a very flattering contract for another year. The contract includes both concept and opera, and will necessitate Miss Brimson's going to New York in May for several concepts, after which she will be free till Septone in less than three years and all opera says that 10 and 20 years ago no opera singer ever ventured to sing in public before five or six years of hard work; she will not take a pupil in opera under three years, and she prefers to take them for four. Among the incidents in her professional career, which Miss Brimson prizes most, was one which occurred in Philadelphia, when Miss Brimson was singing Micaeala during the opera season there. A well-known Toronto lady, who is noted for her generous, kindly nature and deeds, was visiting in Philadelphia at the time. She did not know Miss Brimson, and the young cinger was ignorant of her presence in the opera house the first night. This lady was so delighted with Miss Brimson's performance and so charmed with the reception her singing received from the immense audience, that she wanted Miss Brimson to know that some home people were there and proud of her triumph; so the following night she despatched an immense bouquet of roses to the green-room before Miss Brimson's appearance, bearing the legend, "From some Toronto women." Miss Brimson says many that it should be ascertained at the vary outset whether a girl's was only one woman who so gracefully spoke for the home people.

Smart; a song, "Paddy," by Mr. Blight: a capital recitation, "The Wee Tay Table," by Miss Burns; the lovely song, "Kathleen Mavourneen," by Miss Ronan; "Love's Young Dream" and "Kate Kearny," most effectively sung by Mr. Bemrose, and two quartets, "Has. Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded?" and "The Young May Moon," beautifully rendered by Mrs. Fred Cox, Miss Ronan; Mr. Bemrose and Mr. Blight. An Irish jig, danced in costume by Master Robble McNeil, was a great treat; Robbie is one of Toronto's many phenomenal children, who sing and dance like fairies. Miss Mockridge accompanied the singers very acceptably.

At the Grand To-Morrow.

The title, "A Dangerous Maid," of the New York Casino attraction, which comes to the Grand to-morroow night, is not strictly significant if the piot is understood correctly, for in reality the "Maid" only imagines herself to be such a dreadful young woman. The false light in which she is seen for a time is finally removed and propriety, proportion and truth are discovshe first appears. The story is a fairy romance reduced to the current period. One is said to get the key to the situation in the first act; without it the auditor would be lost. This deduction should serve as a caution to tardy comers. As a production there is, it is asserted, but little to be desired in "A Dangerous Maid." The cast is efficient, embracing as it does some competent people, as Madge Lessing, Julius

A Charming Recital.

Mrs. Leonora James-Kennedy gave a song recital in Guild Hall last night. It was largely attended. She was ably aided by Miss Gertrude Hughes, Mr. Paul Hahn and Mrs. Edward Faulds.

Mrs. Kennedy's opening number was "The Paisy's Secret," which she rendered in a bright, buoyant way, that won applause. "Stars," "Violets," "Lullaby," "A May Morning," "Thou'rt Like a Lovely Flower," "The Swallows," "You Called to Me," "A Red, Red Rose," "An Open Secret," were others of her charmingly executed selections.

Miss Hughes as an elocutionist is making a fair name for herself. Her "Leah, the Forsaken," was rendered with an intelligence that the superficial reciter would overlook. "La Rue Stakes" brought out her dramatic ability and showed the modulations of her voice to good advantage.

Mrs. Faulds at the plano was a model of graceful technique.
