remove him, and Mr. Borden is taunted with holding on to the position on account of the salary attached, knowing that his followers could not, if they would, supersede him. To quote:

"The auditor-general cannot authorize the payment of a salary (should Mr. Borden be superseded) on the strength of what some man may tell him regarding what has happened at a caucus, formal or happened at a caucus, formal or informal, neither can he authorize a salary on a newspaper report, however reliable. There would be nothing to prevent Mr. Borden handing over the salary to any successor he might be willing to acknowledge, but that would be a far different matter from an offi-cial transfer. The office seems, in fact, the one permanence in a poli-tical system noted as elastic, responsive and suited to changing needs. Nothing short of the Hayti experiment can depose a leader of the opposition, and even if an indignant following should force him to take refuge in a foreign con-sulate he could still hold office and demand its emoluments.

The Chatham Planet created quite a sensation yesterday afternoon by publishing a two-column editorial, in which it stated its reason for not encouraging the protests against A. B. McColg,

The Planet says that both parties were guilty of the most flagrant violations of the Election Act; that the election was lost, not because one party was worse than the other, but because the McCoig party had a bigger barrel than the Clements party. It refers re-gretfully to Kent as a riding known from one end of Canada to the other as the most corrupt in the Dominion, where bribery stalks boldly out in the main streets of the county metropolis. ### ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS

License Reduction Campaign

The License Reduction movement is a reasonable effort of citizens to lessen the saloon evil. The treating system is the most inexcusable and dangerous phase of our drinking customs, and is responsible for the greater part of the growing intemperance that we deplore.

It has been abundantly proved that the bar-room fosters, and depends upon, the treating practice. No one disputes the fact that drinking and drunkenness are at a minimum in Toronto on Sundays and election days, when the barrooms are closed.

It was this fact that led to the requirement of our license law that a tavern license shall not be granted to any place that has not certain hotel accommodation. The intention of this law is evaded in Toronto by the licensing of 145 barrooms, most of them really saloons-that is, mere drinking places. It is notorious that, as clearly stated in official reports, in many licensed houses practically no hotel accommodation is regularly supplied, and that half of the number is totally unnecessary.

With our growing population, our increasing attractive drinking places, widely distributed, and our tied-house system, the drink evil is becoming very serious. Last vear the number of arrests in our city for drunkenness was 8750. It is impossible to estimate the extent of the shame and suffering and loss and destitution that lie behind those alarming figures.

The City Council has ordered the taking of a vote of the municipal electors on the question of whether or not they desire the Council to further limit the number of tavern licenses, permitting only 110 to be issued. The members of the Citizens' Committee believe that such limiting action would be of incalculable benefit, lessening treating, diminishing drunkenness, turning into channels of useful business a large amount of money the spending of which now brings deprivation and injury to those who pay it.

They believe that the result of such limiting action would aid to raise still higher our city's reputation for morality and law observance, and would make lighter the burden of poverty, disease and crime that grow out of the vice of drunkenness. They, therefore, confidently appeal to all friends of what is good and true to unite in an earnest effort to roll up a great majority in favor of the moderate measure proposed, and thus loyally and wisely meet the responsibility that has been imposed upon them.

The Liberals came out of the last contest successful, but they hadn't gained a single seat by padded voters' lists of the north country. Since the party whe election it had been learned that Conmee had probably won his seat thru boys being made drunk and induced to vote eight or nine times. There were judges whose duties it was to revise the voters' lists for the bush polls, and if they were not impeached for not doing so, they should have been. If anyone had thought that the judiclary was above political crookedness they must have had their eyes opened when they read the report of the judges on the bush polls.

And if Ontario hadn't had an attorney-general who was ready to turn policeman, the Conservatives wouldn't have carried a single seat, instead of getting five.

The cruelest thing in the Dominion was politics. It was humanly impossible for R. L. Borden, to win the last election, entrenched as the Liberals were, yet people had nothing but words of criticism for him. Mr. Whitney had always been a big man, but if he hadn't succeeded when the time was ripe, nobody would be willing to extend him anything but the same undue criticism.

Judge Grant declared that the usual formal certificates by notaries, giving statements of good character, will not hereafter be allowed, but that the strictest requirements of the law many than the strict test requirements of the law ma
