MAY MEAN RELEASE OF MEN DEPORTED TO THE FREE STATE

Court of Appeals Decision, if Confirmed by House of Lords, Depends for Final Effect on Irish Free State.

London, May 9.—The court of appeals, granting Art O'Brien's application for a writ of habeas corpus which had been refused by lower courts, today made a decision which will, if confirmed by the House of Lords, bring about the release of all the British subjects deported to the Free State after the March raids and probably all the Irish. This will depend, however, on the disposition of the Free State Government to accept the decision, as the British Government has no power over it in the matter.

The court decided that an order of internment could be made only by the Chief Secretary for Ireland, whereas it was made in O'Brien's case by the Home Secretary; that, if the Secretary had possessed that power the Free State Constitution Act, passed by Parliament, ended it, and that order of internment were ultra vires. The decision appears to be in line with the bulk of legal opinion in Great Britain where the deportations have been questioned by the lawyers and newspapers. One of the interesting points is that the court decided that only the Chief Secretary for Ireland would have had the power to order deportations, whereas that office ceased to exist when the Free State was set up.

"WHISTLING RAGMAN" LEAVES ESTATE OF MORE THAN £1,000

London, April 15.—(By mail.)—Known throughout Hull as the "whistling ragman," Walter Gillet, who died in February last, has left estate of the gross value of £1,004, with net personalty of £289, says a Westminister Gazette item.

Gillet, who lived alone, was an eccentric but very kind-hearted man. He often assisted families in distress, and wherever his peculiar whistle was heard, he was always surrounded by children, who often received coppers.

Gillet surprised his acquaintances occasionally by his contributions to local charitable objects.

LONDON ARTILLERY TROOP HAS OLDEST MILITARY RECORD

Chartered by Henry VIII in 1537, it Served With Distinction on Four Fronts Throughout World War.

London, April 5.—(By mail.)—The Honorable Artillery Company has a unique history among British military organizations. It is older than the standing army; in fact, as The London Morning Post puts it, it can claim precedence over all other military bodies. It received a charter from Henry VIII in 1537. Captains from the organization commanded Queen Elizabeth's troops in the training camp at Tilbury in 1581, and they supplied master gunners to the ships that defeated the Armada in 1588. They offered the city trained bands from which so many distinguished regiments have descended. James I. gave their armorial bearings in 1614.

Then in 1641 the first of a long list of royal members joined the company in the persons of Charles, Prince of Wales, afterward Charles II, and James, Duke of York, afterward James II. Their signatures are preserved today in the great Vellum Book of the company with those of Rupert, Albemarle, Buckingham, Samuel Pepys, Christopher Wren, and nearly all the Kings and Queens since Charles II. Members of the company commanded the city trained bands in the civil war, and they suppressed the Gordon riots.

The present headquarters date from 1734. They contain a fine armory, gun park, miniature range, members' rooms, and a large drill hall, in addition to one of the finest club lounges in London (an oak paneled room hung with trophies); two excellent dining rooms, sutling, billiard and dressing rooms, shower and plunge baths, etc. The collection of armor, drums, pictures, books, and the like, all illustrating the history of the company, is of priceless value and is well arranged and cared for. The Armory House is now one of the sights of the City of London.

The company provided most of the personnel for the C. I. V. battery in the South African War, as well as detachments of infantry and mounted infantry. It became a part of the Imperial Force in 1907. In the European war the company provided seven units, namely, four batteries of horse artillery, a siege battery, and two battalions of infantry; the first battalion going to France in September, 1914. Over 4,000 members obtained commissions, and three members won the Victoria Cross. Units of the regiment served in France, Egypt, Palestine and Italy, and were present at such historic conflicts as Hooge, Beaumont Hamel, Gavrelle, Bullecourt, the Paschendaele Ridge and Gise, while it was a battalion of the H. A. C. who forced the crossing of the River Plave in October, 1918, and so opened the way for the final offensive which defeated the Austrians.

EINSTEIN THEORY AWRY, FRENCH SCIENTIST FINDS

Paris, May 8.—A French scholar, M. Dupont, honorary professor in the Faculty of Sciences of Dijon, has published a volume which tends to prove that there is no reason for giving up the scientific edifice based on Newton's philosophy and for adopting in its place the new system contrived by Einstein.

In M. Dupont's opinion the opposition between the phenomena of aberration and Michelson's and Morley's tests does not exist. The ether is motionless in the empty space, but part is carried along by the earth in the same manner as is the atmosphere and, consequently, all the phenomena produced on the earth's surface are independent of this movement, and the phenomenon of aberration is produced at the point of separation between the immovable and the moving ether.

Change in British Law in Defining Insanity Is Asked

Medical Profession Believes That Simplification of Testimony Will Help Justice in Criminal Cases.

London, April 10.—(By mail.)—A contribution to the inquiry now proceeding on the legal relations of crime and insanity is made by the Medico-Psychological Association of Great Britain in a report drawn up by a special committee, who are considering whether any change should be made in the existing law, practice and procedure relating to criminal trials in which the plea of insanity as a defense is raised, says that:

"The medical profession are equally concerned with the legal profession and the public generally, to ensure that the defense of insanity is not a secret, they feel, however, that the law as at present interpreted is unsatisfactory, and does not always permit the best and fullest evidence of a prisoner's mental condition to be laid before the court and jury."

Answers of judges to a series of questions put to them by the House of Lords in the case of McNaughton, who murdered Robert Peel's secretary, have been the basis of the test of responsibility accepted in the courts.

Regarding these, the Medico-Psychological Association says that although its own committee of 1896 reported that it was unable to make any suggestion for amendment, the present committee thinks changes can be devised "which, without doing any violence to legal principles, would bring the law into closer accord with modern medical knowledge and requirements."

The report deprecates any analytical test for legal insanity, and proposes that, instead of the McNaughton rule, the judge should put the issue to the jury in the form of three simple questions:

"Did the prisoner commit the act alleged? If he did, was he at that time insane? If he was insane, has it nevertheless been proved that his crime was unrelated to his mental disorder?"

"This way of formulating the issue would allow the expert witness to give his evidence in his own language, without having to obscure and distort it by translation into terms of legal technicality" and "would remove from the English law the reproach of maintaining an obsolete, unscientific and infelicitous formula."

The Medico-Psychological Committee rejects any proposal for a panel of psychiatric physicians to examine accused, but thinks "it might be possible" to appoint one to be called by the court to give evidence without either side losing its right of calling its own expert witnesses.

This Will Ward Off And Break Up Colds

Just a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin removes the congestion. The two ailments that people generally regard as of the least importance are in reality the cause of most serious illness and of the greatest proportion of deaths. They are constipation and colds. Many doctors believe that colds, tonsillitis, a touch of malaria, a touch of constipation, instead of constipation being their cause. The fact remains that you seldom have a cold without constipation, due to general congestion. The only way to avoid colds is to keep up your vitality. You usually catch cold in the winter if you are run down. Therefore in cold weather exercise more; eat more fatty foods; drink four to six glasses of water a day; keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

You are also less liable to colds if your system is free from the intestinal poisons of constipation, so empty the bowels regularly with a plain vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. At the first sign of a cold, at the first few warning sneezes, take a teaspoonful of Laxative Syrup Pepsin and the congestion will be gone in a few hours. Don't wait until the cold has a grip on you. Mr. R. H. Powell, of Gilbert Plains, Man., considers Laxative Syrup Pepsin the best laxative he ever used, and Mrs. Chas. Lewis, of Winnipeg, Man., uses it effectively for all the small ills of her family, such as constipation, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is safe to give to infants, and all children like it. Before you again resort to cold remedies containing narcotics try a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist will supply you, and the cost is less than a cent a dose.
