TRAFFIC BROUGHT TO A FULL STOP BY HEAVY STORM

Howling Blizzard Rages Over Maritimes and Northern New England—Snow Blocks Street Railways—Three Dead in New York.

A storm, in many respects the worst of the winter, struck New Brunswick and the northern New England States yesterday, tying up shipping, trains and other traffic and making pedestrian traffic slow and arduous. A total of six inches of snow, mixed with soft hail and ice, fell during the blizzard and the wind averaged 40 to 48 miles an hour from the northeast and north. All the railway traffic from St. John was held up for hours. The trains were stalled on the outgoing Halifax, past Moncton; the incoming Halifax, at Penobscot; the Valley from Fredericton, at Grand View; the outgoing Moncton, at Bentley street crossing; the 510 to Fredericton, the 448 for Boston and the second Moncton, in the station. The Maritime express left at 8.45 with a heavy engine and plow ahead. The Sussex express and the midnight for Halifax were cancelled.

Street Cars Stopped.
The telephone system was practically unaffected. The street railway service was stopped about 4.30 o'clock and all but three cars were taken to the station. One on the Glen Falls, one on the East St. John and one on the west line were caught and had to be left on the tracks. Sweepers were run all night and a partial service was restored this morning.

The steamer Grand Manan, which left yesterday morning, was reported caught in the ice off Eastport. Among her passengers were Miss Elizabeth Malison, of St. John and Miss Ellen Daley, on their way to Miss Daley's home in Eastport to spend a two weeks vacation.

Along the Coast.
At Eastport, St. Andrews, St. George, St. Stephen, Black's Harbor, Fredericton, Chamcook, Yarmouth, Digby, Moncton and other places the storm was said to be the worst, in many ways, of the winter. All reported high northeast winds with snowfalls from six inches to two feet in depth. Fears which were entertained yesterday on account of the possibility of the bay ice going out before the blow did not materialize. Train services were tied up on all lines and Moncton reported that all were either stalled or behind time.

In New England.
At Boston the storm was so bad that trains were late, shipping was stopped and schools had to be closed. Many vessels anchored off the coast and rode out the storm rather than trying to make harbor. The schooner Augusta G. Hilton was driven on Martha's Vineyard.

Three Dead in New York.
Three persons were dead and one was dying in New York as a result of the heavy storm there. Two of the dead were found in snowbanks and the other was killed when he slipped from the icy platform of a train. The night express from Boston jumped the rails at New York City. Shipping was held up and city traffic was slowed by the snow in spite of the efforts of a force of 10,000. Six and one-half inches fell.

VETERAN SKATER.

One of the interesting pioneer figures of the Niagara Peninsula is Wilson Chambers, who at the age of seventy-three, made his annual skating trip recently from his home at River Bend to Welland, for the fifty-fifth year. Mr. Chambers completed the trip along the Chippewa River in half an hour. Mr. Chambers uses an old pair of Dutch skates, the steel blade fastened to board foot rests and with big curling fronts. The skates have been in the Chambers family for more than a hundred years.

TOTALLING $22,953,552
New York, March 7.—Following the court decision that Henry Clay Frick was a resident of Pittsburgh when he died on Dec. 2, 1919, and that only his real estate and personal property in this state are taxable here, an appraisal of the New York estate was filed recently. It shows that while Mr. Frick left a total estate of $22,953,552, only $20,852,905 was taxable in this state.

The report shows that the total of legacies was $58,999,975 and the net estate $22,953,552, leaving a residuary estate of $23,958,787. The residuary estate is divided into hundreds and the share of the residuary legacies includes Harvard College and Massachusetts Institute of Technology with 10 shares each, which is $2,400,000 for each institution. Of course, taxes will be deducted from these amounts.

"Open Sesame!" How $24.75 Finds Fresh Charm in Afternoon Frocks

The one simple price for all—Veleetas, Cantons and Tafetas, springy and sprightly in their newness. One Navy Tafeta is cartwheelled right round the skirt hem in circled shirings with picoated edges. Tiny ones on the short sleeves and a flared tie on both sides of the waist.

A second Tafeta in Navy or Black is crowned by a wide Lace Bertha, small puff sleeves, narrow cordings at the basque, waist adorned at left by a rosette of roses and Silver Ribbon with falling ends. The full gathered skirt is again set off in narrow tuckings near the top. Grace and caprice, and the same price of $24.75.

A Black Flat Crepe, that would also do splendidly for half mourning, has a hand-made flower of self and Lavender at left waist, loose bodice with full open armhole, short slashed sleeves and narrow panels from the hips. The new padded roll sleeve of accordeon pleating distinguishes a Navy Canton. The pleating is repeated on the girdle, corsaged with a touch of Gold and Rose. A Black Canton has Lace Cuffs and Moire ribbon trimmings. Veleetas keep step in color tone in Jade, Cornelian and Old China—skirts are side draped according to Parisian insistence, or there are narrow panels with becoming facings. Still $24.75.

Thistle-Down Bloomers, $1.65

The colors also count—Thistle-Down Comfi-Nicks in Cerise, Paddy and Navy, for $1.65.

In Silk Petti-bloomers, the inverted pleat is a welcome stranger, gussets are set-in and knees double shirred. Now note tints—Orchid, Rose, King's Blue, Parrot Green, Nile, Sky, White, Brown, Navy and Black. $4.95.

Silk Tunics or Princess Slips for Afternoon or Evening Gowns have Camisole tops, hemstitched or with Satin straps, and conform to straight lines. Navy, Sky, Grey, Flesh, White and Black. Satin, $6.35; Habutai, $5.95.

Straight lines and self shoulder straps follow the Mode again in Sedan Satin Princess Slips. Skirts are hemstitched and once more a reflection of a season of remarkable color strength—Mauve, Sky, Purple, Henna, Paddy and Rose. $2.75
