TESLIN LAKE ROUTE

Arthur Jordan Enlightens the People of Spokane-Stewart River Rich in Gold.

Easiest and Most Practicable Route to , the Clondyke Is by Way of Teslin Lake.

Included in these are 130 gold fields on the Stewart river that will surely follow in the spring, and to get in on the ground floor in securing some of the rich claims that he says exist in Among the late pictures will be one that far northern country. Mr. Jordan showing the launching of the river that far northern country with the routes now used in steamer Hamilton at St. Mic'aels. contends that the routes now used in going into the Cloudyke country are any- Especially fine views will be those illusthing but practical as compared with the route from Ashcroft, and when the latter becomes known generally in the world no one will go in by way of the Dyea, Skagway or St. Michaels route.

Mr. Jordan is a Scotchman by birth, and although still young in years, being only 35, he says he has been a traveller with a Chronicle reporter to-day Mr. Jor-

"I have come to Spokane to interest the business men here in opening up that country around the Stewart river, and at the same time show them, the advantages in diverting the rush now going on into the Clondyke country by of Seattle, to the Ashcroft route, which this city would receive the benefits now going to the coast cities. "I think I can safely assert without fear of contradiction that I am the only white man outside of the Hudson Bay men, that ever set foot onto the headwaters of the Stewart river. In 1885 I first set out to explore the vast country up north, starting out by way of the Priest river. After a long journey consuming several months I came out at the headwaters of the Stewart river, where I fell in with the Minresooas, a hostile tribe of Indians of about 3 0 bucks. I made friends with these Indians, and resided among them for four years, learning to speak their language fluently. They are still hostile to the whites and will not allow their country to be invaded by them. I left the tribe in 1889 and came back to civilization, going back there on a trip again last

During the four years that I spent up there I devoted myself to mining but little, as I took no interest in it, but I roamed the country over hunting and exploring. In so doing, however, I could not but help realize what a vast and rich mineral section that was. The last year I spent there I took out $5,000 in gold from a small stream tributary to the Stewart, and the last trip I made up there I cleaned up $1,500 in a few weeks. What attracted me most, though, was the rich quartz that I found in the vast mineral belt to the east of Teslin lake what it went in gold your readers would ! not believe it. I am going up there this fall to locate a number of quartz claims in advance of the rush next spring.

Mr. Jordan drew a rough sketch of the Ashcroft trail, and explained its advantages over the Alaska routes. He said that from Asheroft a good wazon read was followed for over 200 miles, when a broad trail was taken to Fort St. James, on Stewart lake, 100 miles further. At the upper end of the lake the trail continued 180 miles to Hazelton and 60 miles to Telegraph creek, and continuing about 130 miles to Teslin lake. By Teslin lake and Tes'in river the journey of about 440 miles is made by water, when a trail is again followed for 150 miles to the headwaters of the Stewart river. The journey, all told, from Ashcroft to Stewart river he estiwated to be about 1,200 miles, and it was a route so easy of access all the have charge of the inaugural bench show great national sport of England. way that a woman could easily make of the Victoria Kennel Club are not al- Lancashire has now secured the county

Another advantage by this route, he says, is that it is open all the year sembly Hall, secured for the occasion, around, and is easier to travel, if any will be fully taxed for space to accomthing, in the winter than in summer. modate all the entries. From all parts Jordan said he could easily make the trip to Dawson City and back to Ashcroft in four months.

He said a saw mill was now operated at this end of Teslin lake, f.om which lumber for building and boats could be secured. His object in coming to Spokane, he said, was to form a syndicate to put in a steamer line on Teslin lake and river for the transportation of gold seekers into the Stewart river country, and to establish trading posts along the route, and to also locate mineral caims in that section, he to have a certain interest for guiding the project and locating the claims. He is submitting his proposit'on to the officers of the Spokane chamber of commerce this afternoon.

Mr. Jordan expects to take a party of gold seekers up to the Stewart river this fall, starting from Ashcroft about October 1st. He will return in time to toke a still larger party up about Feb ruary 1st.

Steveston Leper Landed on Darcy Island a Week Ago Yesterday.

For pure unmitigated cheek, a recent action of the authorities of Steveston, the prospective city at the mouth of the Fraser, beats anything that has before occurred in the northwest. Some time ago it was found that there was a Chin leper in Steveston, and how to get rid of him was a question that bothered the authorities. One bright individual, however, suggested an easy solution. All his schene called for was a good sized fishing boat and a man who was not afraid to cross the gulf with a leper as a companion. The man and the boat were found, the leper was placed aboard and just one week ago yesterday they set sail from Steveston. The same day the boat arrived off Darcy Island, the lazaretto which Victoria established for lepers, and the Steveston leper was landed with three days' provisions, but no blankets.

A letter was written at Steveston, addressed to the corporation of Victoria. It stated the facts of the landing of the leper and that he would probably be out of provisions, and as bluntly as it could be written Victoria was told "the leper is there and you better look after him." The officials of this city cannot let a man starve, and the other men on the island, no matter how well supplied, are and river. It is all free milling, and not likely to have any compassion on so rich in gold that if I was to tell you their new companion. As soon as they get their provisions the goods are divided up and each man holds on to what he gets. To-morrow Sanitary Inspector Chipchase will pay a visit to the island with provisions for the unfortunate man, and then the council and legal advisers of the city will decide how to deal with the men who are responsible for this smart trick. Their excuse is that the Chinaman previously lived here. It Victoria is held responsible for the keep of every sick man who has at some time been a resident of the city, the wheelmen will never have good roads.
