yesterday afternoon and evening. By the afternoon a large number of new delegates, both clerical and laymen were in attendance.

In the afternoon Judge Hanington opened the discussion on the governors' report of the last session of King's College, Windsor. He also took up the discussion of the Engineering School at Sydney, which is in connection with King's College. This department he showed was sadly in need of money in order to make it more efficient. It would take about $25,000 to properly equip it. Now was the time for the church members to practice some self-denial and help along this good work.

The report of the secretary, as print-

The report of the secretary, as printed in the books distributed, was next taken up. A discussion opened on the question of making out the statistical ports for the Synod. Canon Rich-dson pointed out the difficulty of ing in correctly all these statistics. His Lordship said that the questions asked were only to be answered ap-proximately, and showed the necessity of having this information.

The secretary's reported was then adopted by the Synod.

The report of the Diocesan registrar was discussed, and finally adopted with lotte Whitney had left at her death an endowment of $2,500 for the church.
