Couture has been in the provinces for the last four weeks, during which time he has proved to be one of the most attractive vaudevile acts ever brought to this country. His remarkable feats on the single wheel are almost beyond belief, while his comedy is clean, refreshing and very witty. The second act is and very witty. The second act is Miss Dorothy Hall, male impersonater and dancer, which will also be something entirely different from what has been seen at the Orpheum for some time.

PUREST WATER SUPPLY

IN UNITED STATES Colorado Springs Draws Its Supply From

Pike's Peak-City Makes Money Even at Low Rates.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan, 31—That the city of Colorado Springs is financially successful in the management of its water system is shown by the annual report of the water superintendent just issued. During the year 1909, the total earnings were $211,789.56, with expenditures of $174,488.21, leaving net cash earnings of $37,251.35. In the twelve months, Colorado Springs used 2,416,912,000 gallons of water, a yearly consumption of 150 gallons per capita. The water in storage for domestic use in mountain reservoirs on January 1, was 1,753,000,000, allowing of no possibility of a water scarcity. The report further shows that water is furnished consumers in Colorado Springs cheaper than in its sister cities; Denver cheages $20.30 a year; Pueblo, $30.00, and Colorado Springs, $15.00 on the basis of dwellings with six rooms and bath. Within the year the city has purchased land on the northern slopes of Pike's Peak for the future extension of the system.

Colorado Springs' gravity water system is in many ways unique. In the heart of the mountains, 11,000 feet above sea level are the six reservoirs storing water for domestic use; this elevation assures perpetually cold, pure water. The total valuation of the system is $4,000,000. Colorado Springs' water is known throughout the country for its purity, having been shown by daily bactereological and chemical analysis to be the purest furnished any city in the United States.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND

LYING ON GAS STOVE

Mrs. Van Zandt Choked Into Unconsciousness and Then Roasted to Death-Husband Held on Suspicion.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—Bound and gagged the body of Mrs. Alice Van Zandt, burned to a crisp, were found this morning lying on top of the gas stove in her kitchen. The woman had met her death while her three young chilren were playing in the adjoining room.

Jesse A Van Zandt, the woman's husband, is held as a witness. The man admits that he quarreled with his wife. The coroner says Mrs. Van Zandt was first choked unconscious, then bound and gagged with strips torn from a lace curtain and placed across the stove with her head in the fiames of the burner. The horror of the crime is increased by the coroner's statement that the woman must have regained consciousness before death. When found all the clothes had been burned off the body and the fiesh was charred to cinders. The police discovered that Van Zandt had been paying attentions to a young girl for some time. The mother had protested against her daughter's conduct and had brought her before a police magistrate, who ordered her committed to the house of refuge. On her father's return, however, she was sent instead to a convent.

A MacLean, minister of the church, assisted at these.

The students of King's College Law School met on Saturday evening in Equity Court Room, Pugsley's building, and debated the question: "Resolved that a railway should be built through the St. John Valley." C. H. McLean was lead in the affirmative side, and G. H. Adair upheld the negative. J. Starr Tait, who acted as judge rendered a decision in favor of the negative.

A unique affair took place at the Rideau House after the closing of the theatres on Saturday evening. It took the shape of a Dutch lunch given by the guests of the house to the members of the Colonial Stock Company. With Max Felstyner as cullinary impressario the success of the supper and its sequel was assured, and the assurance was fulfilled.

AGITATOR APPEARS

Editor of Star:

Dear Sir,—After reading Agitator's No. 2 letter in your valuable paper of the 26th, I heartily concur with every, word he says. The sanitary condition of the locality I speak of is simply scandalous. He talks about the slums of London. I have been around a little and I have never seen anything like it. I am a married man with a small family and was compelled to move in this locality through the excessive rents that the landlords are asking for tenements in a better part of the city. If Agitator No. 2 or any of your reporters would call down to Erin street and look over the sanitary conditions of that place they would think it was time for a change. There are two houses—shacks—and there are over 30 people, men, women and children living in them with one privy. You can guess the rest. The house is owned by an Assyrian. During the time I have lived in this locality I have never seen a Board of Health officer around. I have inquired, but the people do not know there is such an institution. You can put this in your paper or hand it to Agitator No. 2. I one mockingly imitating his rich Hiberian brogue. Flanagan stopped speaking, and Mike Creed stepped down to nail the disturber. As Flanagan continued to speak he was again interrupted. He glowered, and was ready to jump at the crowd, when Longboat, who convulsed with laughter told him that his supposed interrupter was the echo of his own voice thrown by the overhanging roof of the station. If you do not think this story is true ask Longboat or Creed.
