Herein are Related Facts and Fancies Concerning the Activities of Individuals and Organizations, the Home, Fashions and Other Matters.

This a Women's War.

Fully three thousand people gathered on Dominion Square Sunday evening for the regular meeting, for the Irish Rangers, which was addressed by Mrs. Henry Joseph, while a novelty was furnished in several recitations by Mrs. Joseph. Says The Montreal Gazette, with unaccompanied songs by Mrs. Wren.

Major W. D. O'Brien of the Irish Canadian Rangers, presided, and introduced Mrs. Joseph who during the past two years had done a great deal of valuable work with the I.O.D.E., as well as with other patriotic organizations, while two of her brothers, one of them Major Hugh Walker, were now at the front.

Mrs. Joseph opened by reciting "The Day." "In ordinary times," said Mrs. Joseph in her address, "it is the part of women to be the peace makers. To-day every woman should be a Deborah, and place the sword in the hands of every man fit and free to use it. It is no easy thing to bid farewell to the men you love—but would it not be much harder to feel that you are going and do their duty for their country when they were so badly needed?"

"Mothers and sisters, this is a time when we must all make sacrifices, and I implore you to take your share in these sacrifices. And surely when the men think of the thousands of mothers and children wantonly and uselessly slaughtered in this war, they will be willing to go and do their duty for their country when they were so badly needed?"

"This is a women's and children's war, for they are victims and they should think of what would happen to our own women and children, but for our men at the front and the impenetrable wall of the British navy. No White Feathers.

"Mothers and sisters, do not scatter white feathers—that is a cruel thing to do—but have the men to go, for they are all needed, and death with honor in Belgium is far preferable to life here with dishonor.

"It is not too late yet. This war is far from over, and I know they will fight to the bitter end, so there is still plenty of time to train and take up arms for our just cause. I hope every man here who can will take up arms with the Irish Rangers and add one more noble name to that regiment, and help to make sure that the thousands of Canadian lives already laid down for us shall not have been given in vain."

At the conclusion of Mrs. Joseph's address, Mrs. Wren gave several songs, including the Marseillaise, the Belgian National Anthem, and the "Crucifixion Song," which was joined in by the audience. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

A Pitcher of Mignonette.

A pitcher of mignonette in the tenebrous highest casement. Quasi sort of flower-pot, yet that pitcher of mignonette. Was a garden in Heaven set. To the little sick child in the basement. A pitcher of mignonette in the tenebrous highest casement.

FASHION NOTES

Dressing becomingly is an art understood by only a small minority out of a great number of women. A most peculiar thing about this art is that very often those who can tell others just what to wear to look well appear to know how to dress becomingly themselves.

Individual Types. The girl who belongs to a very definite type seldom has any great trouble in finding becoming colors in her clothes. For instance, the perfect blonde with blue eyes and light hair knows that she will always look well in all shades of blue and in the delicate shades of pink and of green. The pronounced brunette, with black hair, brown eyes and high coloring, usually looks well in reds, brownish yellow

Miss Hazel Winter of Fredericton, Superintendent of the Women's Institutes for the Province of New Brunswick.

Miss Winter was fourth in the list of winners in The Standard Travel Club and will be a member of the excursion trip leaving St. John for Alaska on July 15th. Miss Winter secured a total of 75,633 votes.

Girls who belong to either of these definite types are easily dressed because they know just what colors to select in order that their gowns may be becoming.

You girls who are individual in your coloring should study the question of colors in dress until you have found the tonal scheme which brings out your individuality in the best way. Don't be satisfied to follow the crowd and wear hunter's green because every one is wearing hunter's green, or maize yellow because it is the season for maize yellow. Study your own complexion, your hair and your eyes, and experiment with various shades until you find the tonal scheme of colors which reveals your beauty at its best.

You have no idea, until you try, how color can ruin or make your appearance. Very often girls who have never been counted in the ranks of even passably pretty have blossomed forth into real beauty when surrounded by the right colors. You must study not only your hair, but more particularly your complexion and your eyes. Eyes are all-important in working out your particular color scheme.

Experiment With Colors. Study your complexion and your eyes first. The color of your hair is not nearly so important, although it may be reckoned with, of course, if you have an olive skin don't wear the muddier grays and greenish yellows. If your skin is very fair and pale don't make it gray and insignificant by wearing dull browns, yellow or gray.

There is so much to be considered in working out your own individual color scheme that it may take time, but more experiments before you find the combination which will bring you real beauty.

FROM HERE AND THERE.

Thirty women lawyers of Chicago have formed a Public Defenders' League for girls to prevent any girl from being sent to prison for a first offense.

The county court house in Kansas City, Kan., has a room equipped with mirrors, powder puffs, etc., for the use of women jurors.

Ten young widows of the most exclusive set in Los Angeles have organized a Merry Widows' Club, which has as its object the "prevention of happiness."

In England women are organized to claim their political rights as soon as the war is over.

Since she became clerk in the Probate Court at Topeka, Kan., Mrs. Mary Chapin has officiated at over forty weddings and substituted "pro-rect" for "obey" in the marriage ceremonies she performs.

for women who want to learn to fly, the Misses Katherine and Marjorie Stinson of Chicago, will open an aviation school in San Antonio, Texas.

Women now form the staid of the horse stable duty and grooming the horses, but are actually instructing the soldiers in riding.

Miss Adele M. Stewart, who holds an important position in the office of the Controller of the Currency at Washington, examines the reports of over 7,500 national banks at least five times each year.

Needlework Notes. If there are a number of suits to be made for the small boy of the family, cut them all out at one operation, and in the same way systematize the machine sewing.

"How's this, Willie?" asked the teacher. "Is this your essay?" "Why, all the others have written at least two sheets, while you do nothing!" "Well," replied Willie, "that's what I would do if I were a millionaire!"

When mending a sweater or other knit article that has a rib, do not darn in the usual way. Instead, take yarn and run stitches across the rent, then begin at the top left hand side, and chain stitch down the row of cross threads, taking in a thread at every stitch. These chain stitches have the same effect as the knitted rib, and if the yarn matches the darn will not be noticed.

WEEKLY SKETCH.

Rita Jolivet. Rita Jolivet, the well-known actress who recently became the Countess de Appico, has just arrived in New York following her appearance at the Oliver Morosco film studios, Los Angeles, in "An International Marriage" by Geo. Broadhurst. Since her marriage the Countess has forsaken her theatrical career in accordance with her husband's wishes and had it not been for the fact that she agreed to do a photograph for the wife of the Italian nobleman, she would have appeared in this production. It is understood that "An International Marriage" will therefore be the last subject in which she will appear before the public. The photograph will be released on the Paramount Program the end of July.

At her hotel in New York, Madame Jolivet expressed much enthusiasm over her new photograph, the splendid treatment accorded her at the Morosco studios and the wonderful California country. One of her first trips soon after arriving in Los Angeles was to the Forest of Arden where she visited the former home of Helena Modjeska, the famous interpreter of Shakespeare's feminine roles. Madame Jolivet's many portrayals of Shakespearean characters in France have made her a great admirer of Modjeska, the famous interpreter of Shakespeare's feminine roles. There is no screen-player who is as famous a serial actress as Grace Cunard, co-star with Francis Ford of the new serial, of the Universal Film Co., "Peg o' the Ring," which bids fair to outstrip in popularity any of its wonderful predecessors. Miss Cunard's fame in this branch of photoplay is truly international, for the other Ford-Cunard successes, "Lucille Love" and "The Broken Coin," penetrated into an astonishing number of countries.

"A serial actor or actress is one of the most strenuous of our strenuous professions," said Miss Cunard recently. "Thrills and stunts are the life and soul of the serial, and the public demands a new risk in every episode. A serial actress must keep in condition, for, though she might never have to perform an isolated feat of daring on her nerve alone, she could never keep it up for fifteen weeks without too great a strain, unless she were in pretty good condition physically."

"I have evolved an original method, which is the result of the greatest scare that I ever had in my life. My exercise is rope-climbing, and I recommend it to other women. Near-all the 'stunts' we are called upon to perform, demand strength in the arms. This exercise will develop the whole body. The beginning of it was a fright that I had in the old days of one-night stands, when I was stopping in a frame hotel. Fire broke out in the night, and I stood at a high window not daring to jump, with the flames at my back, until a ladder came up out of the smoke and a big fireman took me off the sill. I made up my mind that that should never happen again. I bought a rope with a patent attachment, and practiced on it until I could descend from a twelve-story window without turning a hair. I found the exercise so beneficial that I have kept it up ever since."

Realism is how the thing. In Ince's "Begar of Cawnpore" real bullets were fired during the battle scenes; not to hit the rebels, of course, but to make the earth around them "kick up" in realistic fashion.

The Lasky Company is to produce two ten-reel pictures in the near future. Geraldine Farrar will be the star of one, Marie Dore of the other.

Director Robert Leonard has completed the picturization of his own story, "Ambrosia," and is now filming "Little Eva Edgerton," a comedy drama in five reels, starring Miss Ella Hall and Leonard, with a strong supporting cast. This is one of the film plays so excellently suited to the little girl roles in which Miss Hall excels. It will be at least three weeks before the picture is completed.

TODAY'S LITTLE JOKE.

As the subject of their weekly essay the schoolmaster asked his pupils to say what they would do if they had $1,000,000. At once all heads were bent, and one and all scratched busily. The one exception was little Willie. He calmly sat doing nothing, twiddling his fingers and watching the flies on the ceiling. At the end of the time the teacher collected the papers and said Willie handed over a blank sheet. "How's this, Willie?" asked the teacher. "Is this your essay?" "Why, all the others have written at least two sheets, while you do nothing!" "Well," replied Willie, "that's what I would do if I were a millionaire!"

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS.

Uncle Dick wishes many happy returns to the following kiddies whose birthdays take place today: Dorothy M. Forster, 49 Stanley St. Evelyn McCree, Oromocto, N. B. Ruby Sillp, C. Hampstead. Ernest Thompson, Hampstead. Mrs. Guy Perry and Mrs. Eugene Holt have returned from a pleasant trip to Calais.

Dear Uncle Dick.

You will find enclosed my list of words as found in the word Kitchener. You will also find enclosed my ping-pong. I had eighteen of them taken for twenty-five cents. They were turned out yesterday afternoon, and got some butternuts and bull's eyes. It seems quite early for them to be in bloom.

Your niece, Myrta Smith.

The First Letter.

Fielding, N. B. I thought I would write you a short letter, as I have never wrote before. I am twelve years old. I go to school in the second book. I hope to win the prize.

I remain your truly, Desma Bell.

Beaver Harbor.

Dr. Ponca made heated denial of the charge. Because of the unusual nature of the charge and the prominence of the principals, the case attracted widespread attention when the papers were filed. Dr. Ponca and his attorney have refused to make known the amount of the settlement. W. H. Hess, of Brayton, Dr. Waterhouse, of Hesse, Miss Hamper's attorney, withheld figures, but said that the settlement was satisfactory to his client.

CURTAIN FLASHES.

Having had a dip into students' lists in "The Daily News," Miss Kimball Young is going in for the real thing in a picture version of Robert W. Chambers' "The Common Law." She will gain lead a model's life.

The Balboa Company state that if they had gotten a judgment against Henry B. Walshall for $30,000, they would have given the proceeds to the Actors' Fund. Walshall won the verdict, and the fund is out the $20,000! If Balboa has serious intentions, they should contribute $10,000 in cash.

About the hardest thing to shoot, according to Jack Kerrigan, is a coyote. He has been taking pictures at Pine Hill Lodge, and each night slipped out with his Winchester on murrer's back. "All shot at," says Jack, "was a stray bit of goat's fur and a million howls."

Helen Holmes and company are off for a month's tour to Honolulu, where they are going to tree some wonderful scenery for Oriental pictures.

Preparations is now in its seed in the studios in Los Angeles, a movement is under way to organize a corps of officers made up exclusively of picture players. Who wouldn't serve under some of these dashing leaders?

Ella Hall plays a child's part in the Bluebird picture, "Ambrosia," in which she is featured under the direction of Robert Leonard.

"Nero," one of the Bostock lions, nearly caused the death of his trainer, Charles Gray, in a scene for a two-reel Florida picture. "The Butterfly's Wings," starring Margaret Gibson and William Clifford. The scene, a battle between a man and a lion, became too realistic.

Not to be outdone David Griffith is producing "The Fall of a Nation," which makes its public bow on Broadway in June. It is something of a "picture opera," and the musical score has been inspired by Victor Herbert.

Marguerite Snow, who, during the past year, was starred in Metro features, has become a member of the Ivan Film Productions, where she will appear with Rose Coghlan and Alma Hanlan in "The Faded Flower."

Broncho Billy Anderson is now in New York resting.

Charlie Chaplin likes to be addressed as "Charles."

Mae Murray's next picture is entitled "The Dream Girl."

The Universal Company states that it covers 35 miles of film all over with camera every week. Nine million feet of film were used in the Universal laboratories last year.

Grace Cunard. There is no screen-player who is as famous a serial actress as Grace Cunard, co-star with Francis Ford of the new serial, of the Universal Film Co., "Peg o' the Ring," which bids fair to outstrip in popularity any of its wonderful predecessors.
