

"Air That Thrills With Warmth and Life"

Air that makes the balmy atmosphere of southern resorts seem so alluring during the nipping cold weather may be yours if you install a King Boiler and King Radiators in your home. The kind of heat you want, is the kind of heat you'll get if you install a

The Tourist Pace.—"I once saw," writes the author of an article in Scribner's, "a tourist party of our fellow-countrymen hurried through the Louvre, with an impatient cry on the part of the conductor: 'Now, ladies and gentlemen, you haven't time to stop to look at anything! Just walk on as fast as you can! This gallery is an eighth of a mile long!'"

It was only last summer that a motor car was driven rapidly to the portal of Wells Cathedral; the American at the wheel jumped out, crying: 'Now you do the inside, and we'll do the outside, and it won't take us more than fifteen minutes!'

A friend of mine tells of an American lady who once rushed up to her in the Vatican, asking breathlessly: "Can you tell me—have I seen the Pantheon?" The response: "Madame, you must know that better than I," brought a second swift question: "Has it a hole in it?" The admission that it has a hole in it elicited a quick sigh of gratitude. Then, said the tourist, with the relieved air of one who has one dash the less to make—then she had seen it."

The Hero Unrewarded.

I met her where the busy crowd
Surged madly in the noisy street;
Her face was fair, her bearing proud,
But, oh, her fitting smile was sweet.

I saw her danger ere she knew
That harm was near; with quick-caught breath
I took her in my arms and drew
Her from the very jaws of death.

Her look was proud, her face was fair,
Her voice was rich and sweet and
low;
Her father was a millionaire—
I learned that she was married, though.

Beating the Bank.—Frenzied finance is not exclusively a habit of recent years. At the Riggs National Bank in Washington there is carefully guarded proof of the foregoing assertion. Regarding the proof, there is told this story: One winter morning, Henry Clay, finding himself in need of money, went to the Riggs Bank and asked for the loan of $250 on his personal note. He was told that, while his credit was perfectly good, it was the inflexible rule of the bank to require an indorser. The great statesman hunted up Daniel Webster and asked him to indorse the note.

"With pleasure," said Webster. "But I need some money myself. Why not make your note for $500, and you and I will split it?"

This they did. And to-day the note is in the Riggs Bank—unpaid.

Noisy Uniform.—During the recent visit of President Taft and several Governors to the Hutchinson Fair, the officers of the Kansas National Guard, including the Governor's staff, appeared in full uniform. Senator Charles Huffman, of Columbus, regimental surgeon, among others was togged out in all the gold braid and brass buttons that go with a regimental uniform. On the morning that Taft arrived Huffman went into a barber shop to get shaved. He drew a chair presided over by a rather loquacious barber. After discussing the weather and the President and the fair and other things, the conversation began to lag.

Finally the barber took another spurt with his mouth, and after admiring Huffman's uniform and gold braid and brass buttons, asked: "How many pieces in your band?"
