Buy Hosiery Made by the Largest Mills on a 2-for-1 Guarantee

We guarantee the following lines of Pen-Angle Hosiery to fit you perfectly, not to shrink or stretch and the dyes to be absolutely fast. We guarantee them to wear longer than any other cashmere or cotton hosiery sold at the same prices. If, after wearing Pen-Angle Guaranteed Hosiery any length of time, you should ever find a pair that fails to fulfill this guarantee in any particular, return the same to us and we will replace them with TWO new pairs free of charge.

That 2 for 1 guarantee—the most lib-eral given anywhere —is backed up by the largest hosiery mills in Canada. You can depend upon the guarantee being fulfilled to the last letter.

Buying hosiery on this plan you make doubly sure of satis-faction, for if the hosiery does not fulfill the guarantee the makers have to pay a double penalty.

But after you've worn a pair of Pen-Angle Hosiery you'll un-derstand why we give this 2 for 1 guarantee, for you will have discovered your ideal hosiery— form-knitted, seamless, longest-wearing wearing.

The reason for Pen-Angle su-periority is due to the excep-tional quality of the cashmere and cotton yarns we use. And because we knit them on Pen-mans' exclusive machines. We have the sole rights to use these machines in Canada.

Seamless Hosiery

These machines form-knit the hosiery to fit the form of the leg, ankle and foot perfectly, with-out a single seam anywhere to irritate the feet or rip apart.

They reinforce the feet, heels and toes—the places that get the hardest usage—without you ever being aware of any extra thickness.

Don't be content another day with hosiery which has those horrid seams up the leg and across the foot—with hosiery said quietly, "you've been a very naughty boy—and I—know all, as they say in the melodramas. Don't look so down on your luck. It isn't so bad as all that. We've just got to pull things straight—" "Oh, Cecil, what can you think of me?" "I think a great many things—and disadvantage. And I'm not angry. I scored off you, at dinner, you see. And now to busi-dinner, you to a ness-"" "You could never forgive me, Ce-cil?" His haggard face was turned to her in the twilight. "Rubbish, my dear fellow! We all make mistakes at times. Don't look make mistakes at times. Don't look make mistakes at times. Don't look so tragic. I am setting you free. It is not all for your sake, Tim. I want my freedom, too. I came here with the hope of settling things. Circum-stances were against you." She squeezed his arm, but her eyes were full of tears stances were against you." She squeezed his arm, but her eyes were full of tears. "So there's an end of it, Timothy O'Hagan. And your handsome cous-in is going to be married to 'a broth of a bhoy' down Limerick way!" He caught her two hands in his. "Cecil, you are an angel! You are too good, too generous! You speak almost as if it was you who had be-haved badly—and not me! But I shall never forget it——" "Hush! That will do! I'm glad it is all right. Now run and fetch Mag-gie—I want to kiss her." Together they went back to the lighted drawing-room. "Maggie has gone to bed with a headache," said Mrs. Murphy, in an-swer to her sister's question. O'Hagan stood in the window, with the ex-quisite starlit night around him. Joy was to be his, but he must wait for the morrow.

THE sun streamed into the white-and-rose breakfast-room. "And where is Maggie?" cried Mrs. Murphy, dressed as usual in her tennis flannels and already with a hat on, "she was to have started with me in the car by 10.30. Shine, where is Miss Taverner?" she called to the old butler.

'She's gone away, mum. Left this morning, come six o'clock, and told me to put these 'ere notes on your plates. Said she had forgot her Pa's birthday, or somethink. A mortal birthday, or somethink. A mortal hurry she was in, any way." Mrs. Murphy opened her note

quickly. "So sorry," she read, "but it is father's birthday to-morrow, and I had forgotten it. I thought I ought to go. So many thanks for all your kindness." And Lady Derwent open-ed hers; read it once, then twice, to herself, with flushing face and eyes suspiciously bright. suspiciously bright.

"DEAR LADY DERWENT,-Do not be angry with him. He loves you all the while, I expect—he never cared for me or he would not have deceived me so. I was only a passing fancy. I am so. I was only a passing fancy. I am so sorry to have, unwittingly, caused you pain, but it was only midsummer madness. Please forgive your little friend, MAGGIE TAVERNER."

Mrs. Murphy looked at her sister. "Why, Cec, she only met you yes-terday! What an odd little thing to terday! What an odd little thing to write notes of good-bye to everyone! Why, Tim, have you got one, too?" as O'Hagan entered the room. "I really should not be surprised." "No," he said grimly; but as he spoke his fingers closed over it in his coat pocket. He had found his on his early tea-tray. "Oh, Tim, my darling!" it ran, all blistered with
