when a boy turns his bulging pocket inside out we marvel at the quantity and variety of articles he has stowed away. Off lengths of string, marbles, a horse-chestnut, a top, brass nails, hickory-nits, an apple, and many more articles are garnered by this "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." We think the collection must be hard on a boy's pocket. And it is. But do we ever think of the variety and miscellany of the substances we put into the pocket of our stomach? There's the apple and the nuts, and things besides quite as indigestible as brass nails and with no more food value than so many marbles. And yet we wonder that the stomach "gives out." DIMINISHED VITALITY.

Some people talk very flippantly about diminished vitality.

They don't stop to think that vitality is the principle of life—that it is that little understood something on which every function of their bodies depend.

Diminished vitality is early indicated by loss of appetite, strength and endurance, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest vitalizer.

Canada Outstrips the States.

Most of us to the southward of the border have been so occupied with our own individual and national affairs that we have failed to note what has been done by our Canadian neighbors, says the New York Sun. In energy the Canadians are now our rivals; in achievement they have perhaps outstripped us. If the Blushing is not an art, neither is it a sign of ini-breeding, as some unkind people maintain. The fact is, it is just as natural for some persons to blush as it is for others to turn pale. The same laws of nature which govern the one rule govern the other. The capillaries, or small blood vessels which connect the arteries and veins of the body, form, particularly over the cheeks, a network so fine that it is necessary to employ a microscope to distinguish them. Ordinarily the blood passes through these vessels in normal quantities, leaving only the natural complexion. But when some sudden emotion takes possession of the heart its action increases and an electric thrill instantly leaps to the cheeks. The thrill is nothing more than the rush of blood through the invisible capillaries just nothing more than the rush of blood through the invisible capillaries just beneath the delicate transparent sur-

It is the sensitive, nervous girl who blushes easily, while the girl stolid by nature, or who by conven-tional education has her nerves under perfect control, seldom blushes.

A Grusseme Collection. consists of the small square pieces of black material which constitute the "black caps" assumed by judges when they sentence a human being to suffer the last dread penalty of the law. The collector, one of a line of judges and lawyers, has succeeded in acquiring the caps made use of by many of the judges of the assumed on nearly three-score occa-sions, it having been passed from one great judge to another.

These latest excavations go back farther than any hitherto made, and deal mainly with the times of Manah, the first King of the first dynasty, and with the stone age which preceded him. The neolithic lasted until very varying dates in different parts of the world. In some parts of Scotland flint instruments were used even until last century; but in Egypt it ends many hundreds of years before Christ, when Manah probably ruled. Prof. Petrie, perhaps, is on the verge of a highly interesting discovery if he follows a clew which appears to show the existence of Indian influences in Egypt in very early times. Notably will this afford explanation of some references of St. Paul to "certain new-fangled doctrines," such as abstinence from flesh, which is a characteristically Buddhist tenet. Buddhist tenet.

Tact and Talent.

Tact and Talent.

"Tact is greater than talent" is an old-time saying, and it is one that holds good to day as well as on the day it was written. Tact is a great thing for one to carry through the world and it pilots one overmany rough places.

There is a woman who says it is better to tell people pleasant than unpleasant things, and she lives up to it, and people are glad to see her wherever she goes.

I believe she is right. People are better for a little appreciation, honsely expressed, and a kind word is an inspiration to do better things.

It's better to say kind things when you can say slight, and tell the irath.

The causes that bring about this condition in the circulating system are called mental stimuli. They consist of joy, anger, shame and many other emotions. Sudden horror, remorse or fear, on the contrary, influence the nerves which control the blood vessels, and the face becomes white. Blushing and pallor result from the sudden action of the mind on the nervous system. So if the mind be forewarned and prepared for emotions, both habits can at least be partially overcome. But when the Casada's Heliday Reserts.

Besides being a great country to work in, Canada is a very beautiful place in which to holiday. Down South they have long admitted the truth of the latter statement, as the yearly increasing throng of visitors testifies. Nor have we ourselves been blind to the fact, though as a nation we have done little to advertise our sylvan wares. Year by year, however, the fame of Canada's summer glories is spreading. Quiet acoks where we used to sprawl in lazy enjoyment are taking on the hectie appearance of fashionable resorts. Where once the picturesque canoe was seen, steam launches and luxurious yachts now cruise. The old farmhouse, where people could get board for about $2 a week, has been transformed into a fashionable hetel.
