Comedy of Graft Acted in China

FOR ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain the heathen Chinese is peculiar. This we learn on the auriferous of the late Bret Harte, and his penetrating observation has just been confirmed by an incident which recently happened at Shanghai and set all China laughing. The Peking correspondent of The London Times sends to his paper a story from which we gather that even Chinese of such exalted station as Ministers of Justice are not altogether free from the "ways that are dark," but unfortunately for these members of the Cabinet the incident of this occasion, was distinctly vain. To quote The Times:

"The funniest thing in China to-day is the Parliament, on which the result of the election of members which the country has passed. To be more explicit—Parliament has been made to look supremely ridiculous by a gigantic swindle, engineered by some of its members.

"From distant Yunnan, the birthplace of the antimarxist movement which destroyed Yuan Shih Kai, the recently set forth a band of patriots bound for the capital. The party included the newly appointed Minister of Justice, a member of the resuscitated Parliament, a large-hearted general who had led a brigade in the fight for freedom, and the A.D.C.'s and secretaries and senators of the above-mentioned notabilities. At a certain stage of their journey by sea to Shanghai a telegram was sent giving warning of their approach and requesting the Customs facilities usually accorded to high officials.

Here it must be observed that the Chinese Customs are not controlled by the Central Government at Peking, but are in the hands of a body of foreign officials who collect the revenue derived from this source. Under these circumstances the English and French officials of the Customs Service are not, as a rule, overawed by the dignity of Chinese members of Parliament, who generally received as even-handed treatment as mere plain citizens or foreign merchants, but, on occasions, even deride them.

To return to The Times story:

"On arrival at Shanghai the baggage of the party was bowed past the preventive officers without examination, and joyfully removed to a native hotel in the International Settlement.

"There followed a quick distribution of the baggage to the far corners of the city. The municipal police, however, just arrived in time to catch the M. J. in charge. These gentlemen bitterly opposed the examination of their belongings, and swore that the trunks contained nothing but official papers. But the foreign policemen, being without bowsels, forcibly opened the boxes, and found them filled to the brim with opium. The Chinese evidence, which enabled them to trace twenty more trunks to the official residence of the Chinese city magistrate. These, being found in an adjacent house, were given up, and on examination were also found to contain 'official papers!'

"The case was tried before the Mixed Court in Shanghai. The opium seized is valued at 1,000,000 taels (say $750,000), and there are 38 trunks still missing, believed to contain opium worth 4,500,000 taels. The General and three members of Parliament are in prison, with bail refused, because of their connection with the case. One of them was found a letter to a friend containing the naive confession that they were worried over three things—how to get back their 'faces'; how to dispose of the opium in the magistrate's Yamen; and what to do with the rest of the opium? Warrants are now out for several others of the party, but are presently not for the Minister of Justice, who vigorously denies complicity, stating that he traveled independently with a single servant and a small quantity of baggage. Unfortunately for the Minister, the trunks which passed the Customs at Shanghai, and which were found in the magistrate's Yamen, and it will be for him to show that his name was used without his knowledge.

"The case has created a great sensation among the Chinese. These opponents to Republics and Parliaments and such like rejoice in loud voices, pointing the finger of scorn at the staff of which Parliaments are made. The other side are in the depths, because their 'faces' has been rubbed in the dirt."

Mr. Douglas S. Robertson, correspondent of the Toronto press in London, England, sends following letter to that paper reference to the recent experience at the front of Raymond of this city. Five days and nights lying in a shell-hole out on No Man's land and yet alive to tell the tale, a dollar and fast recovering!

Corporal W. Gladstone Raymond, of Brantford, went to the above harrowing experience of the first wave of a local attack made an assault on the night of Huns, Corporal Raymond found himself all alone at the wire. The rest of the line had disappeared. His few comrades were killed, wounded or had died. For the Boche was on the advance and greeted the invaders with a reception.

AMBULANCE TO ALL
Finding himself thus exposed alone so close to the enemy, Raymond threw himself into a shell-hole and from this position he began to work his way out to the German. A grenade laid him out with a blow to the head. The shells which had fallen into the shell-hole when evening came out of the darkness, and one of them came to rest upon his forehead, but he was not killed, wounded or had died. The rest of the line had disappeared. His few comrades were killed, wounded or had died. For the Boche was on the advance and greeted the invaders with a reception.
