Exceedingly happy were Earl Grey's first speeches in Canada. Not only vere they entirely unlike the stereoyped reply on such occasions, but they were notable as showing a keen and intelligent appreciation of the chievements and aspirations of Canada. His excellency spoke extemporaneously, in a clear and forcible style. He said the warm and generbut another evidence of the wellknown feeling and devotion of Cana dians to his majesty the king, whose representative he had the honor to be. The loyalty of Canada is known and acknowledged through the entire world, and forms one of the brightest jewels in the empire's crown.
