THE WAR.

LETTER OF A FRENCH CHAPLAIN.

We extract the following from a letter, which has appeared in the Franciscan, from the Abbe d'Histat, Chaplain of the 13th Corps d'Armee. The letter is dated Paris, 14 Sept.

In the centre an old man with white beard stands nobly erect; his mind is glowing, he is the only man in the camp who has not been shivering in the night. Of what in his poor, white head is he thinking? He has been for the last few days in the trenches of the enemy. On that occasion, he rejects it with indignation; the pastor knows not the art of killing. But, at least, he had taken part in the defence. Oh! if he was enough to see the poor Curé was condemned to death, but was afterwards pardoned by the general.

A NEW WAR INSTRUMENT.—The Morning Post has received a letter from Paris by balloon. One of its announcements sought to cause the Germans some anxiety.—The defence within is already taking a desperate character. The generals, as is the wont of generals have long insisted upon making war only according to tradition. They hold that, while it is possible to make a successful defence, it is impossible to introduce steel and lead into the vital parts of their enemies, or to blow them up with gunpowder, it is barbarous and disgraceful to use the same means by means of a machine, involving a further advance of science. Their scruples, however, have now been vanquished. I have to-day seen a quite unusual, frock-coated, keen-eyed little fellow, who is perfectly well known to the Prussian army, he can blow the Prussian army off the face of the earth. He has another preparation, which at once asphyxiates and burns any living creature upon which it is projected. In addition to that, he declares that he possesses the means of decomposing water itself, and turning it into consuming flame. This gentleman is in the employ of the Government, and has already prepared a most diabolical recipe for the Prussians. They have indeed, already experienced the awful effects of his skill in the explosion of two torpedoes, which are said to have killed 700 men, and the exposed points of the defence are thickly sown with like engines of destruction.

FAVRE'S REPLY TO BISMARCK. ROTES, Oct. 20.—A copy of the Paris Official Journal, just received, contains the answer of Favre, to a circular of Bismarck on their conference at Ferrières.

"It is well," says Favre, "that France should know the extent of the ambition of Prussia. It does not stop at the conquest of two of our provinces, but seeks our destruction. France must have no illusions that her existence is at stake. She was offered dishonor, and she refused it. I prefer our sufferings to annihilation. I prefer our sufferings to the gratification of the exorbitant ambition of our enemies. Even if vanquished, France will be greater in her misfortune, and will have the admiration and sympathy of the world. France, perhaps, needed this supreme trial, from which she will issue triumphant."

NATURE'S ENEMIES AND HER ALLIES. The statistics of what are called "natural deaths" would astonish the world, if we could only ascertain and compile them. Nature is very much abused. She is represented to be. She fights disease with Amazonian energy, and would conquer in millions of instances where she succeeds, and not for the fatal aid of deleterious medicines. When Holloway's remedies are called in as her allies, she generally achieves a victory. These hygienic preparations seem to reinforce the vital energies, and induce a sanitary principle into the blood against which no disorder can make head. Their success in our distant colonies, and especially Canada, has been marvellous. These celebrated inventors, with the works for his cure, could not name any region where the conflict of his remedies with the hydra of disease has been marked by more decided triumphs than in the British provinces of America. We are aware that they have done wonders everywhere, but for the diseases prevalent in Canada, they seem to be providentially adapted. For the distressing maladies so common on the low-lying shores of the Canadian lakes and large rivers, they are, in cases, and under all contingencies, commanding remedies.

Bouchette, in his large work on Practical America, and Ferguson in his "Practical Notes," allude to the insalubrity of many of the wet and watery districts on the margins of the water courses, and along the shores of Lakes Erie, Ontario, and Huron. These writers recommended that "great care be given to the regularity of the digestive organs by the settlers on marshy soil." Had Holloway's Pills been before the world when Ferguson wrote, he would probably have recommended them to every inhabitant of the low lands of Canada. As a means of keeping the digestive and excretory system in a perfect order they have no equal, (no, we are assured by persons who use them as a family medicine) in the whole range of remedial preparations. In bronchitis, neuralgia, asthma, and sore throat, which are prevailing complaints in moist locations throughout Canada, the Ointment is the only article used by the inhabitants as an external application.

It is not our province to prescribe for our readers; but while reviewing the wonderful progress which Holloway's Pills and Ointment have made in public confidence since their introduction into Canada, we must necessarily arrive at one of two conclusions: either that the remedies are of unequalled efficacy, or that Canadians are decidedly of ordinary sagacity. Preferring to adopt the former position as the most rational, we heartily recommend these famous preparations to the sick and suffering throughout British America.—Record.
