PESONALS. - Mr. T Smith, formerly of Lucknow, and now Emerson, Manitoba, is visiting friends here. He speaks highly of the great North-west, and any one intending leaving here for Manito ba, would do well to consult Mr. Smith, as he has large tracts of land to dispose of at reasonable rates.—Councillor Mc-Hardy has returned from a visit to Toronto, where he has been recuperating in expectation of the coming election.—
Mrs. McKid who has been visiting her friends at Seaforth has returned home this week. - Miss Isabella Campbell has returned from Beaverton, where she spent the summer at her brother-in-law's, the Rev. John McNabb.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION TO D. E. CAMERON, Esq.—The leading members and adherents of St. Peter's Church, Lucknow, to the number of twenty-five, headed by the incumbent, Rev. James Carrie, waited on Mr. D. E. Cameron, the efficient leader of the choir, at his residence on Friday evening last, and presented him with a handsome pair of vases, a silver cake basket and celery dish. Mr. Camerom has been leader of the choir since its organization, and under his careful training the choir has now the reputation of being the most efficient in the Diocese of Huron. Mr. Cameron's musical talent is appreciated the surrounding towns. The presentation was accompanied with the following address which was read by the Rev. Jas. Carrie:

To D. E. Cameron, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—We, the members and adherents of St. Peter's Church, Lucknow, are duly impressed with a sense of our obligations to you for the varied services rendered to the church, but more especially to its choir, from its inception till the present time. We are well aware the other day. It will serve to refresh that it is a difficult matter to bring a the memories of many people on a matchoir to a state of efficiency, and we feel ponvinced that you have done your ut-most to bring St. Peter's choir to that state, and spent much of your valuable time in order that you might feel satis-If you should feel that the choir is not exactly what you pression to our feelings, we agreed to meet here this evening to present you his dramatic utterance. How the Eye Betrays the Man.

The eye tells as much to the one who knows how to read it as the whole of the face. To one who has paid attention to its alphabet, the "language of the eye" is full of revelations. Every one should study the grammar thereof; for often when everything else deceives, the eye tells the truth. "When the eyes say one thing and the tongue another," says Emerson, "the practical man relies on the language of the first." How many inclinations that are dissembled by the lips are confessed by the eyes! How often a hectoring attitude or a mouth full of threatening words is betrayed by a quailing eye! That restless eye belies the proud boast of the tongue. That aggressive, ferocious eye is a flag of warning, before which the turtle-dove voice should not lull us into security. "Each man carries in his eye the exact indication of his rank in the immense scale of men." He may try to dissemble his rank, but before one who is learned in the language it is vain to attempt to carry on the deception long. There are some who have a wonderful power of veiling the expression of the eye, but they cannot always be on their gurad; the hidden lights and smouldering flames will flash out at times, revealing the secret of the citadel, whether there be strength or weakness within, genius or imbecility. The reason why this man is obeyed and that one is not, is because
