

Health, Wealth and Happiness.

HEALTH MUST BE YOUR FIRST CONSIDERATION.

Neither rich nor poor can afford to ignore the benefit to Health which is secured by the regular use of Lifebuoy Soap. It would be folly indeed to run the risk of dangers which can be avoided by a very pleasant ablution. Without extra cost or trouble, Lifebuoy Soap positively protects you from the many germ-laden things you touch every day. Good must result from its use. Wash your face with it—Bathe with it—Shampoo with it.

MORE THAN SOAP, YET COSTS NO MORE.

Prayer of the Monk and Breton Fishermen as they put out to sea Moaning, heaving, wonderful Sea, Ebbing and flowing Tide!
O God, our boats so tiny be,
And thy Ocean is so wide!

SOLITUDE OF THE SEA.
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is a society where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but nature more,
From these interviews, in which I steal
From all I may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the universe and feel What I can never express, yet cannot all conceal.

Roll on, thou deep and dark blue Ocean—roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin—his control Stoops with the shore;—upon the wrecks of all thy deed, nor doth remain A shadow of man's ravage, save his own,
When for a moment, like a drop of rain,
He stinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknelled, undimmed and unknown.—Byron.

THE FISHERMEN.
Hurrah! the seaward breezes Sweep down the bay again;
Heave up, my lads, the anchor!
Run up the sail again!
Leave to the lubber landsmen
The rail-car and the steed;
The stars of heaven shall guide us,
The breath of heaven shall speed.

There we'll drop our lines and gather Old Ocean's treasures in,
Where'er the mottled mackerel Turns up a steel-dark fin.
The sea's our field of harvest,
Its scaly tribes our grain;
We'll reap the teaming waters
As at home they reap the plain.

In the darkness as in daylight,
On the water as on land,
God's eye is looking on us,
And beneath us is his hand!
Death will find us soon or later,
On the deck or in the cot;
And we cannot meet him better Than in working out our lot.

Hurrah! hurrah! the west wind Comes freshening down the bay.

The rising sails are filling—Give way, my lads, give way!
Leave the coward landman clinging To the dull earth, like a weed—
The stars of heaven shall guide us,
The breath of heaven shall speed!
—Whittier.

THE SEA IS CALM.
Look what immortal floods the sunset pours Upon us—Mark! how still (as though in dreams)
Bound the once wild and terrible ocean seems;
How silent are the winds! No billow roars:
But all is tranquil as Elysian shores!
The silver margin which are runneth round
The moon-enchanted sea bath here no sound;
Even Echo speaks not on these radiant moors!

What! is the giant of the ocean dead, Whose strength was all unmatched beneath the sun?
No; he reposes! Now his toils are done.
More quiet than the babbling brook is he.
So mightiest powers by deepest calms are fed,
And asleep, how oft, in things that gentlest be!
—Barry Cornwall.

OCEAN.
Of all objects which I have ever seen, there is none which affects my imagination so much as the sea, or ocean. I cannot see the heavings of this prodigious bulk of water, even in a calm, without a very pleasing astonishment; but when it is hurled up in a tempest, so that the horizon on every side is nothing but foaming billows and floating mountains it is impossible to describe the agreeable horror that rises from such a prospect.
—Joseph Addison.

THE OCEAN.
All hail to the ruins, the rocks, and the shore!
Thou wide-rolling Ocean, all hail!
Now brilliant with sunbeams and dimpled with oars, Now dark with the fresh-blowing gale.
While soft o'er thy bosom the cloud-shadows sail,
And the silver-winged sea-fowl on high,
Like meteors bespangle the sky,
Or drive in the gulf, or triumphantly ride,
Like foam on the surges, the swang of the tide.

From the tumult and smoke of the city set free,
With eager and awful delight,

Things Seldom

Just "Happen."

There are sound reasons if you look for them. Homestead Tea is as distinctive in cup quality as it is in name.

This didn't just "happen." The reason is that in Homestead we use a proportion of the rich, strong teas of Northern India—teas grown in the district of Assam, where the tea bush is said to have had its origin.
These teas when blended with the finer sorts of Ceylon teas give that rich strength and pleasing flavour possessed by Homestead.

From the crest of the mountain I gaze upon thee,
I gaze—and am changed at the sight;
For mine eye is illumined, my genius takes flight.
My soul, like the sun, with a glance embraces the boundless expanse, And moves on thy waters wherever they roll.
From the day-darling zone to the night-shadowed pole.
—James Montgomery.

WORK.

What are we set on earth for? Say,
to toil;
Nor seek to leave thy tending of the vines
For all the heat of the day, till it declines.
And death's mild curfew shall from God disannoint thee with his odor-ous oil.
To wrestle, not to reign; and he assigns in her tears over, like pure crystal-lines.
For younger fellow-workers of the soil
To wear for amulets. So others shall Take patience, labor, to their heart and hand.
From thy hand and thy heart and thy brave cheer, And God's grace fructify through thee to all.
The least flower, with a brimming cup may stand And share its dewdrops with another near.
—Mrs. Browning.

THE LIFE-BOAT.

'Tis sweet to behold, when the bil-lows are sleeping, Some gay-coloured bark moving gracefully by;
No damp on her deck but the evening dew,
No breath in her sails but the summer-wind's sigh.

Yet who would not turn with a fond-er emotion,
To gaze on the life-boat, though ragged and worn, Which often hath wafted o'er hills of
the ocean,
The lost light of hope to the seaman forlorn!

Oh! grant that of those who in life's sunny slumber Around us, like summer-barks idly have played,
When storms are abroad we may find in the number One friend, like the life-boat, to fly to our aid.
—Moore.

The problem of securing a Youth's Overcoat at a reasonable price has been solved by us this season. During Mr. E. M. Jackson's recent visit to St. John's he purchased a large stock of high-class Ready-made trade of the

The Devereaux Combine.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The news of Mr. J.
Devereaux's appointment as collector of customs has reached us and has incensed every man amongst us with disgust and scorn for our representatives. Two years ago on the death of the late respected J. L. Murphy, Esq., several of our young and promising fishermen applied to Mr.
Richard Devereaux for this position, and were told in no polished way they had no education. It is true, Mr. Editor, we have not much education, but we have sufficient to do our duty in this world, that we may use his fruits hereafter. Some of us have not had the advantage of an education such as Mr. Devereaux boasts of, as we lost our parents at the age in life we most need them, but thank God, good guardians such as the late lamented Dean Born, whose goodness and refinement will be examples for us were made kings, and whose counsel had we listened to, probably we would not have been so sorely in need as we are at present. However, Mr. De-vereaux's great education has not kept him from making more serious mistakes than all we fishermen put together. He has got his brother John-light keeper on Powell's Head with his first cousin as assistant; untill lately his brother George, Field's agent or next thing to it; his pro-ther Joseph, collector of customs and dock commissioner, etc., and his brother-in-law Joe Kiddy, coming from Placentia, to act as station agent. If this is fair, we are uneducated and fools, the people will judge whether we are or not. Tre-passer does not say much, but she can if she is aroused, and justly so.
Thanking you Mr. Editor, for publication.
We are, sincerely yours,
A FISHERMAN OF PLACENTIA BAY.
Trepassey, Oct. 12th, 1913.

WITH THE ADVENTURERS.—Elder Wm. C. Young will occupy the pulpit at the Cooktown Road Church next Sunday evening. The subject of the evening's discourse will be: "Is the end of all things at hand? All seats free. A welcome for all."

The Fall season in the Boys' Clothing trade is the season for selling single pants. The cost of the ready-made pants from Jackman's will wear out two pairs of pants, and as the boys wear overcoats, if they have a few new pants under it they are well dressed. To meet this trade we have just imported about five hundred pairs of boys' and youths' Knicker Pants, they are made from good tweed and cotton remnants, and although the cloth is good we sell them at a reasonable price. We have about 100 boys' from four to sixteen years. Prices range from 60c. to $1.50.
