

EXCELLENT MUSICAL PROGRAM BY MOUNT ROYAL MUSICIANS

Concert Was One of Finest Ever Given in Calgary and Central Methodist Church Was Crowded to Capacity With Interested Audience.

WORK OF PERFORMERS REFLECTS GREAT CREDIT

Many Difficult Numbers Were Rendered in Most Excellent Style and Musical Numbers Interspersed With Readings and Speeches.

Central Methodist church was filled to its capacity last night, when the pupils of Mount Royal College Conservatory of Music and School of Expression gave the closing recital of the year.

The commencement exercises held last night and today mark the second anniversary of Mount Royal college. Within the year the attendance has increased from 187 to 275, and every department has developed commensurately.

The program last night reflected the work of the college very creditably; it was one of the best recitals of the kind ever given in Calgary.

Today's Program.

This afternoon the art pupils of the college who have been instructed during the first year by Miss Gordon will hold an exhibit of their work at the college building, an affair which will be an annual event in Calgary, will be held about four o'clock will be in attendance.

Professor Oaten, Miss Bailey, Miss Bruce, and Miss Lancelotti, the staff of the Conservatory of Music, have exerted a marked influence on the musical culture of the city, and the result of their efforts was demonstrated by the clever work of the pupils of Mount Royal last night.

Miss Cecile Baron, whose piano solo, "Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2, by Liszt," was the opening number, exhibited unusual skill. Her rendering of the difficult numbers was exceptionally brilliant.

Other Posing Numbers.

Miss Mildred Smith, who contributed a piano solo, "At Evening," by Schytte; Miss Aileen Sibbald, who played Schumann's "The Song of the Miller"; Morley Johnson, who gave a particularly good rendering of Jungmann's "Kleinmutter"; and Miss Lode, who executed the rather difficult "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," by Bach.

Miss Elizabeth Sayre, who gave a beautiful rendering of the "Will o' the Wisp" by Jungmann.

Miss Marion Crawford, a very girl of seven, sang a "Bird Song" very prettily and won the applause of the entire audience.

Miss Helen Kerby, whose voice has developed surprisingly in the past year, sang with fine effect Needham's "Irish Lullaby"; and with Miss McCormack, sang a duet, "Light of Stars and Love," from Offenbach.

Other clever vocalists were Miss Kilborn, Mrs. Milton Butte, and Miss Elsie McCormack, whose double number, "The Wood Pigeon and the Wren," was beautifully sung.

Miss Helen McCormack also gave a delightful humorous reading, "Miss Genevieve Strong's" reading of "Mow Tom Sawyer White-washed the Fence" was excellently given, and Miss Gladys Towne demonstrated unusual ability in another humorous reading, "The Freckled Face Girl." Miss Annie Stooke's reading, "The Pie and the Monkey Wrench," was clever.

The "Morning Veil," by Miss Elaine Strong, exhibited the careful cultivation of expression of this young lady.

Principal's Address.

The principal, Rev. G. W. Kerby, presided, and introduced the program with a few apt remarks about the development of the college, which is attaining proportionate proportions.

Borden Goes to Halifax.

Ottawa, June 12.—Premier Borden left for Halifax this morning, accompanied by his secretary, A. B. Blount. At Moncton tomorrow he will be joined by Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of railways and General Manager Cullis of the Intercolonial, and the party will proceed to Halifax to look over the ground where extensive improvements to the port are planned.

Why accept an inferior Tea when you can have the best by insisting that you get it. Ask for "SALADA" and accept no other. There are many imitations that show the dealer from one to five cents per pound more profit.

MAZE OF CONTRADICTION IN INVESTIGATION OF FOREMAN'S PARTIZANSHIP

ed that the city of Calgary through its solicitor, was taking the part of a prosecuting agency in this matter," said Mr. Ford. "To correct this impression I wish to definitely state that the city is not acting in any such capacity. The matter was brought to the attention of the city in an official manner through these affidavits presented to my office for action.

"My entire endeavor is to ascertain if there is any truth in the charges. I am equally interested with your worship in the matter of a thorough investigation. If the charges are true, I will then take the necessary action. If not, I want these men vindicated. I am absolutely neutral in this inquiry. I want to give the accused men a chance to tell their own story, and despite the fact that they appear in the role of defendants, having engaged special counsel, I will allow their own counsel to cross-examine them. My entire thought is to sift the charges and then have your worship decide if there is any truth in them. I am not here in the role of a prosecutor, rather in the role of an investigator in behalf of the city."

The other Italian witnesses took the stand before the foreman were able to reach the court's ear, but their testimony only added to the tangle of contradictions before his worship at the time.

Stephenson was the first of the accused men to take the stand. He declared that he had discharged Cardetta or Serini, but declared that he had ordered Masini, one of the affidavits signers, to quit work.

"Masini was lazy, and we had no use for him any longer," said the foreman.

40 Jobs; 300 Applications.

"I can readily understand that a large number of disgruntled laborers were talking after the first gang was set to work following the recent provincial election," said Stephenson.

"I had jobs for 40 men, and more than 300 applied for the places. I tried to follow an usual plan as closely as possible, that being to hire the married men who had families depending upon their daily employment."

Several men presented notes to me asking me to give them positions, these notes being signed either by Suppl. Wilson or one of the commission. I understand these notes were given to men who, after investigation, had been found to have families needing their wages. Of course I gave these men preference in allotting the positions. Politics did not enter into it, nor a man's political faith counted during the years I have been a foreman in this city.

Jack Harvey, another foreman whose name has been mentioned in the inquiry, also testified following the same line of speech as followed by Stephenson.

Jim Wilson's Testimony.

James Wilson, superintendent of the sewer works, was the last witness. He characterized the Allee brothers, two of the complainants, as "shifting and lazy," and said the city did not want them in its employ. He said he had hired foremen were awarded members of the Liberal party, and working in the interests of the city.

What political faith do those men belong to? asked Mr. Ford.

"Any political faith that will show them jobs," was the answer. "A little coaxing and they are anything."

Mr. Wilson denied that he had ever been a political machine inside his department, and was then excused from the stand.

Yesterday's session lasted three hours, and at 5:30 Magistrate Sanders announced that he would make his decision soon as he had thoroughly studied the import of the evidence.

Women Raid in Edinburgh

Edinburgh, June 12.—The militant suffragettes campaign was resumed here tonight with the biggest raid that has yet been made on mail boxes. Twelve of the receptacles from one end of the town to the other were attacked. Chemists' test tubes filled with a colorless acid, which caught fire when the glass was broken, were dropped into the boxes by the suffragettes and many letters were badly damaged.

A bomb, sewed up in an oil soaked cushion, was found tonight in the railway station at Eden Park, Kent. Attached to the bomb was a clock which was timed to explode at 2 o'clock Saturday morning.

Moir's Chocolates have an individuality that is unmistakable. We select the cocoa beans—roast, husk and clean them—add the cocoa butter and cane sugar—and flavor with vanilla beans. The whole is then put through a grinding process for hours, which refines every particle and renders our chocolate coating absolutely smooth, giving it that individual delicious flavor. The chocolate is then applied to the many varieties of centers—packed in attractive boxes and offered to you as the finest chocolates on the market.

IRISH HERO OF OLD TIMES IS REVERED AT PRESENT TIME

Patrick Sarsfield Was One of the Greatest Generals of All Time

Brussels, June 12.—One of the bravest soldiers of all times, a national hero of Ireland and a man whose memory is revered by his countrymen scattered all over the world, will be honored at Namur the last week in July.

On some day not yet fixed the delegates to the International Pan-Celtic Congress, which is to be held here, will journey to the little town to view the site of the monument that is planned to perpetuate the memory of Gen. Patrick Sarsfield, Earl of Lucan, grandson of the famous Irish leader O'More, who at Limerick, near at hand, received his death wound fighting for his beloved King James II.

Namur Holy to the Irish

To the Irish, all the land about Namur is holy ground. The Irish soldiers who fell fighting for the man and the principles they worshipped.

Sarsfield was commander-in-chief for James II in Ireland. He gallantly defended the city of Limerick during two memorable sieges. Unforgettable stories are told of his bravery, his success and his chivalry towards those he defeated and took prisoner. One of the most interesting out one night to surprise a field train of Williamites marching on Limerick he learned that the watchword of the camp was about to surprise was none other than his own name.

With a handful of troops he swept down on the sleeping camp, answering the startled sentinels' challenge by the cry "Sarsfield's the word and Sarsfield's the man," cut down the Williamites, took and blew up their guns, but was at pains to spare and protect the women and camp followers.

Went to France to Fight

When the Jacobite cause was defeated, Sarsfield led nineteen thousand Irish soldiers to France to serve the king there. These were the first of the many thousands "Wild Geese," or Irish soldiers, who quitted their native country to serve with the armies of France against their enemies, and won glory and victory on many continental battlefields.

Sarsfield and his Irish followers fought with the French army, but it was for James, whom they believed to look on as their legitimate king, and against James's enemies they fought. The Irish general fell, mortally wounded, in the moment of victory against his sovereign's chief enemy, William of Orange, at the Battle of Landen on June 29, 1693. A tradition says that he cried as he fell, "Oh! that this was for Ireland."

Williamites united with Jacobites in regretting his loss and honoring his memory. Men of all parties have united in our own times to raise monuments to him. When he died a pompous Latin epigram was inscribed on his widow, Lady Honoria de Burgo, but of this no trace remains in the church of Notre Dame de Huy, from which a restorer of the last century thought well to remove.

A Great Gaelic Revival

The triennial Pan-Celtic congress, of which that of Ghent will be the fifth, are the outcome of the Celtic renaissance of the last fifteen or twenty years. The delight of savants and scholars, the Celtic languages, were thought little of within the last couple of centuries by the people of the Celtic mother tongues they were. When they seemed doomed to die out a sudden revival of love for their tongue place in Wales, in Scotland and in Ireland amongst the very classes which had seemed to despise them most. A league was formed everywhere for their preservation, the English government was forced to recognize the Celtic languages, and a deputation went to America to beg aid for their advancement.

Everywhere victories were gained. The deputation returned rich, and caused the old heart of Erin to beat again. A new university was set up in which Gaelic was made compulsory, the postal officials were forced to accept Gaelic delivery letters, and in Gaelic. People made haste to discard the English equivalents of their Irish names, and the Irish language was revived.

Macleod's Hustling Commissioner. Macleod, June 12.—The regular monthly meeting of the Macleod board of trade will be held next Tuesday evening, and as there are several important matters to be taken up, a large attendance will be in all probability characteristic of the meeting. Industrial Commissioner Moffatt will place before the board motions dealing with the leasing of the Blood Indian Reserve, the collecting of accounts by judicial procedure, and the reduction of railway freight rates as applicable to Western Canada. The commissioner has been using the king's mails to good advantage, and as a result a large number of inquiries from prospective manufacturers and investors have been pouring daily into the board of trade office. The proposed banquet for July 1 has been postponed until the date of the Macleod fair, as the commissioner will likely be sent to officially represent the board at the Calgary Industrial exposition from June 30 to July 1.
