Londoners Pay Tributes To Gordon Philip On Eve of Departure From City

Businessmen Give Dinner in Honor of Retiring C. of C. Secretary.

MAKE PRESENTATION
Departing Official Advises City To Go On With Town-Planning.

Gordon Philip, retiring secretary of the London chamber of commerce, was partially rewarded last night for twelve years' faithful service, when at a farewell dinner at the Tecumseh house, given in his honor by a group of London businessmen, he heard his deeds lauded and he himself praised for his conscientious and untiring work in the interests of the city.

Mr. Philip leaves today for Windsor, where he will undertake the direction of the industrial development of that rapidly-growing city. He will take with him not only the memory of last night as evidence that his labors have been fully appreciated, but, as more tangible proof, a purse of gold presented him by the gathering last night and a beautiful Venetian vase, a gift from Guy Ferguson, manager of the Tecumseh house.

Paying Glowing Tribute.
Officials and ex-officials, directors and members of the chamber and representatives of other organizations joined last night in voicing appreciation of Mr. Philip. Those who have been in close touch with the many activities of the C. of C. gave Mr. Philip a great share of the credit for progress made. They said his foresight, executive and organizing ability, outdone only by his modesty, had inspired others to hard, unselfish work and had done much toward building up London. His work in the interest of Western Ontario was not forgotten. The united boards of trade of Western Ontario was pointed to as a monument to his labors which told of his unceasing efforts to foster a spirit of co-operation among the various counties with London always as a center and between rural and urban districts. One and all wished him best of luck in his new field of work.

E. S. Little, past president of the chamber, read on behalf of the meeting the following address:

Reads Address.
To Gordon Philip, Esq.:
"Dear Mr. Philip.—Your resignation as managing secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce, and your removal from the city, to assume duties in what we must feel is a larger field, has come as a distinct shock to those who have been intimately associated with you during the past twelve years."

"Your tenure of office as secretary of the London Board of Trade, and later, since 1918, as managing secretary of the reorganized chamber of commerce, has brought you into close relationship with practically every business and professional man in London. Your active interest in the welfare association has endeared you to all of our right-thinking citizens, for we feel that to your untiring efforts as right-hand man to the late Mr. Reid, and to the present president and executive, is due in large measure the success of the several campaigns which have made for systematic living in London."

"We recognize that you have officially, and as a citizen, been interested in London's progress during the twelve years of your life amongst us, and we know that the successful reorganization of the old board of trade, and the long list of accomplishments of the chamber of commerce, have been very largely the result of your own interest, ability and energy."

"Your connection with the United Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario has brought your characteristic virtues to the attention of the other cities of the province, and to this we feel we must ascribe our loss. Our loss, however, is theirs' gain, and while we deeply regret your departure from our midst, we wish you every success in your new post."

"As a remembrance of the years of the past, and as a pledge of our friendship for the future, we ask you to accept this purse of gold, joined with every good wish for the future, from your associates in the chamber of commerce and in the business life of London."

"R. H. DOWLER,
"E. S. LITTLE.
"On behalf of the committee.
"London, Ontario, May 4, 1925."

Many Notable Speakers.
Others who spoke were: E. S. Little and Major Gordon Ingram, past presidents of C. of C.; Arthur Little, T. McFarland, former president of the old board of trade, and vice-president of the chamber; Philip Pocock, James Gray, John McHale, president of the Kiwanis club; Dr. Griffin, president of the Lions club, and Fred Landon.

Dr. Grant, president of the Rotary club, unable to be present, mingled expressions of regret with good wishes in a message to Mr. Philip.

A. E. Silverwood presented Mr. Ferguson's gift to Mr. Philip, and voiced his own appreciation of the good work that has been done by the retiring secretary.

It is not without regret that Mr. Philip is leaving London. He impressed that upon his friends last night. He, however, left with them also a message of good cheer, optimism and encouragement.

Predicts Great Future.
He believed, he said, that the greatest work of the London chamber of commerce belonged to the future. Work of experimentation and organization was practically ended, and the time was near when a great harvest would be reaped. He saw in the chamber not an organization working alone for the advancement of London, but a link binding the various organizations with service as their aim. He believed that the chamber would prove a means through which every organization would co-operate and their work be co-ordinated.

He appealed to Londoners to carry on with town-planning. He believed it would be nothing short of tragedy if the present plans were dropped. He urged that Mr. Adam's signature to the plans be secured as soon as possible. London, he said, could carry out town-planning now with comparatively little expense and confusion. Very soon this will not be so. London would then find itself irrevocably committed to mistakes. Realization would come too late. He felt that there was nothing surer than that London must follow a well-defined system in its growth. He believed that the work of the united boards of Western Ontario was so well established that it would prove a permanent institution. He wanted that close attention should be paid to this end of the chamber's work, for untold good would come from continued co-operation with the other communities of the peninsula.

Following were present: R. H. Dowler, James Gray, E. S. Little, C. R. Somerville, Gordon Ingram, John J. Foot, G. F. Griffin, F. G. Jewell, Fred Landon, Arthur R. Ford, E. S. Little, W. N. Y. DOCTOR CALLED NIGGARDLY BY WIFE

Former London Woman Seeks Separation From Prominent Specialist.

Special to The Advertiser.
New York, May 4.—Mrs. Mona G. MacRobert, wife of Dr. Russell G. MacRobert, famous neurologist, and who formerly was Miss Mona Fitz-gerald of London, today accused her husband of cruelty, abuse and niggardliness when she took the stand in her action for a separation, which went to trial here today in the supreme court. Mrs. MacRobert, on the stand today, said that her husband had "evinced a disposition to strike her and call her abusive names" ever since they were married in 1915.

He only gave her ten dollars per week, she said, on which to support the entire family, even after two of their children had been born.

At one time, Mrs. MacRobert said, she was forced to purchase food for herself, her husband, a nurse and the two children out of $10 weekly. Dr. MacRobert saved during that time, she says, enough money to buy land in Larchmont, N. Y., and build a house costing $24,000.
