The sharng of a common grief has perhaps levelled the barriers of rankling words that have from time to time been raised to the preja dice of a better understanding between two great peoples. Petty international jealousies that have existed have perhaps been forgotten; Death has ever proven a mighty arbiof past misunderstandings between the Gertown is renewing his acquaintance in town, after a year's work in South Africa, in confere a year's work in South Africa, in conference and year's year's work in South Africa, in conference and year's work in South Africa, in conference and year's year's work in South Africa, in conference and year's year's work in South Afr

why the Kaizer and the King should stand shoulder to shoulder in their labors to promote the welfare of their subjects, and maintain the status of their empires against attack from a foreign enemy. Such a compact would transcend in importance that of the famous "Triple Alliance," and who shall say that, in thought if not in deed, such an alliance has not been consummated within a few days. Time will reveal the true significance of the openly avowed friendship between the German Emperor and the British King.

—And France too has lowered the storm signals that have seemingly ever been displayed within the memory of the present generation, aye and back to the day of our fathers and grandfathers. Who of us would expect to see the French traicolour furled and bound with crape because, forsooth, British monarch was dead. The Queen who had fostered the growth of Greater Britain, and under whose eye the vast colonial expect to see the French training and the papasion, that has more than once rudely broken in upon the Frenchman's dreams of territorial aggrandizement, has taken place, never in life apparently had the respect of the French people commanded. But the death of the ferench people commanded. But the death of the ferench people commanded there in consequence of the french people commanded. But the famous of the ferench people commanded there in consequence of the ference may be an another the famous of his father, William Anderson, exception farmer at that place.

—The London apple market has been send-ing good returns to valley fruit growers for late shipments, and the prospects for a strong market are good. Golden Russets to London, in the Evangeline, early last month, consigned to John Fox & Co., and the respect of the people of the ferench trains of the farmer to attend the mounting the form of the ferench people of the ferench trains of the ferench people mever in life apparently had the respect of the French people other than what the martial strength of her people commanded. But in death we find France paying glorious tribute to her memory, and at the eleventh hour there is an opportunity for France and Great Britain to cease the vigilance that Great Britain to cease the vigilance that enemies must have who hope to strike a Horse, who has been charged with the duty Horse, who has been charged with the duty To Harry Ruggles, Esq., Mayor of the To Great Britain to cease the vigilance that weak link in their opponent's armour, and rest them under the halo of a friendly peace. France has done much to antagonize Great Britain, and British colonial growth has no doubt been very exasperating to Frenchmen, but the people who have been most wronged are to-day in a better frame of mind to for give the unfortunate occurrences of the past than they have been within the last half a century. France has won a British goodwill by her hardy recognition of the worth of a great and good Queen, and if the diplo. a great and good Queen, and if the diplomacy of the national courts will arrange the there is no doubt that with France too, a with Germany, though in less far-reaching

The efforts made towards establishing an agricultural society, with its centre here, have been crowned with success, and the new organization has heen launched with a good membership. Its object is essentially for the betterment of farming conditions, but for the ultimate good of both nations. the issues that hinge upon this essential are so many and so varied that the society may well include every tradesman and every citizen who has the welfare of the community at heart. A farmer's parliament has been ed not more by the extent of its member plete transformation. It has been said that we are a hundred years behind Kings county, in agricultural development, but even if this statement be accepted as the whole truth, it does not follow that it will take us fifty years to overtake our neighbors. The wheels of progress move quicker now than the right halfs contained and found that it will take us fifty years to overtake our neighbors. The wheels of progress move quicker now than the right halfs contained and found found to the right of the second to the result. Button will be driven by W. P. Langley, and Joe by John Hall. wheels of progress move quicker now than they did half a century ago, and if our farmers grasp the conditions of today and step quietly over the experimental work that has been done for them, they will find that within a few seed times and harvests they will know as much as Kings county farmers know and will have less to forget. Through an agricultural society, if farmers make proper use of it, the individual can buy and sell to agricultural society, if farmers make proper use of it, the individual can buy and sell to Commenting on the accession of King Edward VII. to the throne of Britain, the Chicago Inter-Ocean ventures to observe: "Victoria the gracious, by power of her womanhood, kept alive that waning (mon-archical) ideal for more than sixty years. "Now it seems about to vanish. And it is "well for the world that this should be." There could be no greater misconception of the sentiment cherished by the British with regard to their form of government than this. Whatever theoretical leaning towards republicanism there may have been among a certain class in Britain in the early years of the nineteenth century, there is none now. British people have seen republicanism on trail in America and in Europe and are content with the lesson the experience of other hardions has taught them. They have also come to understand that abuse of power, class tyranny and economic slavery can exist and flourish as rankly under a republicanism form of government as under a monarchy. They have also learned from the tests to which institutions have been put during the reign of Queen Victoria that it is possible to combine the form and the best of the essence of monarchy with the utmost possible self-government, and an administration more immediately responsive to the popular will than any periodic election would secure. They have, in like manner, acquired the habit of associating with monarchy standards of public honor which may be lacking in a ranubilic. To the radical mind it may appear and the farming portains of the large of Miss Mabel, daughter to John her supplementary lists. Applications can be fyled up to 20th February.

—The marriage of Miss Mabel, daughter of James Hillis, of Halifax, to Ernest C. Sout, of Charlottetown, P. E. Island, took place Thursday afternoon at the residence of the bride's father. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. N. LeMoine, Rector of St. Mark's, in the presence of a number of guests, principally relatives of the contractions in a bride the bride's father. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. N. LeMoine, (Montreal Witness.)

—At the annual congregational meeting of Gordon Memorial Church last Wednesday evening the reports from the various departments of the church's activity showed the affairs of the congregation to be in a very healthful condition. The financial report gives a showing of $1412 this year over $1047 last year. This amount includes contributions to the Century Fund.

At the meeting of the Town Council held last Monday evening, the retiring Mayor was presented with the following address.

Bridgetown.

DEAR MAYOR,—Before you take leave of the Town Council of the Town of Bridgetown over which you have so ably and well presided since the incorporation of the town, a period of more than three years, your fellow workers desire to indicate to you their appreciation of your labors and your unttring zeal for the advancement of the town. Your period of office covers the time when a municipal incorporation is on trial and those who are opposed to incorporation from conscientious principles honestly think defects are to be found which do not exist in reality, and those who are opposed from prejudice are willing to distort and magnify unavoidable defects in the working of the machinery, and in both cases the Chief Magistrate is the one upon whom all criticism falls. An uninching determination to do what appeared
