A LITERARY SOCIETY FOR BRIDGETOWN

*The pastors of the three churches in town have for two months past been meeting every two weeks on Monday afternoons. Church matters in general have been discussed and other specific subjects. The three pastors have found very much in common and the periodical meeting together and subsequent discussion have been a great delight and it is believed will further the church interests represented. At one of the meetings the idea of the Society named in our title, was mooted. It was felt that there were enough people in Bridgetown truly interested in literary matters deeper than the light novel, who would welcome such an opportunity as would be afforded by such a Society. The object of the Society would be to develop literary tastes by personal study and by listening to the contributions made by others at the meetings. It was felt that those who would like to become members would willingly submit to some such conditions as the following:—

(a) Every member to contribute a paper of at least thirty minutes in length the result of personal and individual effort on literary lines. That does not of course mean that such a member need be a literary genius or expert, but that such member has taken the trouble to study privately some author, or works, so as to give the benefit of such study to his or her fellow-members. Such an effort might be required once a year—according to the size of the Society.

(b) That each member pledge him or herself to be present at every meeting of the Society unless prevented by positively conscientious reasons.

It was suggested that the Society should meet on Monday evenings, and say, once a fortnight, and meet at various homes, no one, however, being under obligation to have the Society. Full arrangements for the governing and conduct of the Society could be made at the first meeting.

Will those who would like to join such an affair please give their names with any suggestion to their respective pastors and at their next meeting they will take up the matter further in the light of what they may learn.

JOHN H. FREESTONE, Secty., Ministerial Association.

Those of our readers who had the good fortune to be present at the Recreation Hall Christmas Tree Entertainment, will remember that announcement was made of a series of entertainments to be given under the auspices of the churches of the town at periods of one month. The first of these will be given in the hall a fortnight hence—viz., on the evening of Tuesday, January 31st. St. James' Church being responsible for the programme. We hope to publish this somewhat in detail next week. Meanwhile we may say that Part (I) will be a miscellaneous concert programme, whilst Part (II) will consist of a humorous dramatic sketch entitled, "A Full House."

Make a note of the date. The proceeds will be devoted to hall maintenance and equipment.
