mesara, Editors -The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman, as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady tants, to help her answer the large correspo which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

. On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhess, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakdestroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves meaness of the stemach. It cures Bleating, Headaches, Kervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Dopression and Indigestion. That feeling a searing down, causing pain, weights and bearanche, is always permanently quied by the use. It will not all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply.

A LIGHTNING BICYCLE RIDE.

Down a Mountain Grade which Fell Three Hundred Feet to the Mile.

From the National Republican. Our mine, the Spondulix of Colorado, was the highest on the range. It was 2,670 feet above Silver Brick station, and nine miles distant from the village. From the works op to the mines there was a broad, hard, smooth road, used for carting ore down from the mines and hauling supplies up. The average grade down the mountain was 300 feet to the mile; in some places it was steeper, and at intervals almost level. By constant practice I managed at last to ride my 52-inch University roadster up the whole slope to the Spondulix, of course resting at levels, but my chief delight was the coasting down again; it required skill, a good deal of nerve, and a firm grasp of the brake. One evening an accident occurred to one of the men engaged at the mine. I instantly rigot out my bloycle, explaining that I could digo swifter than a horse down the slope. In a few minutes I had on my suit and was off. The night air was clear and crisp; the moon, except in a few curves, shone directly into the guloh, lighting up the road. Leaning well back, with my legs over the handles and a firm finger on the brake, I allowed the wheel to glide down the first long slope at a speed which I never dared to venture before. Finding the motion safe, I allowed the ma-chine to run taster and still faster. Over the first level I shot like an arrow. Down the next slope I seemed to glide with the rushing Then I turned a curve and ran into the shadow of the mountains, upon the next level. Knowing every inch of the road, however, I did not slacken my speed, except very slightly. As I flow over the top of the next slope, s steep plunge of nearly half a mile, another curve completely shut out the moon, making the road almost as dark as a pocket. Here I put down the brake hard, and checked my speed materially. Still I knew the road so well that I had no fear. But just as I was on the steepest plunge of the slope-

Clink! Something flew from the machine like a bullet. Instantly the wheel darted forward like the rush of a frightened bird, while the brake lever came home to the steering bar under my finger.

The brake had broken short off at the el

There was nothing to check the machine, which was running away with me, with over five miles of mountain grade before me, and the coance of meeting a team at any moment in the dark. I might have leaped backward off the machine at the instant of the break, but five seconds afterwards it was too late. To attempt to dismount would be certain death. There was nothing to do but stick to the saddle and take my chances.

When the accident happened to the brake was just entering a dark curve in the shadow of the mountain. The wall on my right appeared a dark, almost invisible brows, while the chasm on my left was of an inky blackness. As I rounded the hollow of the curve I could see the moonlight far ahead on the point of the elbow which I must turn where the road was channelled into the wall. As I approached it I had the sense and nerve to run on the outer side of the road, close to the edge of the canyon, thus giving myself as broad a turn as possible. I found by the track of the wheel afterward that at the sharpest turn I had actually ridden within three inches of the extreme edge for several rods, where, if I had been going at a less fearful speed, the wheel would certainly have alipped over the edge and carried me down a fall of 1 000 feet.

Safely past this, the worst point, the remaining curves were easy. Thus far there bad been no time to think. My actions were more instinctive than reasoning. My mind was a wild, confused whirl of sensations and fears.

But now as I shot down the last steep incline, suddenly I experienced a terrible mental shock. It was caused by hearing the tinkle of a bell far below, and seeing the spark of a lantern such as the mine teamsters carry in front of their wagons. There was a team, perhaps a train of teams coming up the road! In a few seconds I should be near them. The shock made me think, and that clearly. If the teamster was walking beside his team he would be on the inside, next to the mountain wall, and the team would be in the middle of the road. If he was riding the team would be kept near the mountain wall and at a safe distance from the outer edge of the track. Either way my best chance was to pass on the outside. As I approached, therefore, I ran close to the outside edge of the track, and flaw by in safety, hearing the te-mater shout as Ldid so. Here it was lucky that I was going at such speed, for the teameter sew the red light of my lantern when I was nearly a mile distant and, recognizing it, he started his team toward the outer edge of the road, so as to give me the safest passage on the inside; but I passed him before the team could be driven over, otherwise I should have surely run into them. And now the wheel ran along the level to the bottom of the mountain; still my frightful velocity did not perceptibly diminish. I ran on past the works and into and along the village street. Luckily the street was covered thinly with sand-not enough to make it bad riding but sufficient to gradually stop a coasting wheel. My speed slackened perceptibly. Still I ran nearly through the village and then managed to turn a broad corner and up the slope of a side street, which finally checked my speed so that I ventured to drop my feet cautiously and take the pedals, after

THE WORD "ELECTRICITY. How the Jealous Makers of an "Ecleo-tric" Oil Endenvoyed to Suppress Briggs Electric Oil.

Electricity is recognized as a powerful agent in modern medicine, and the great success which has attended the use of Briggs' Electric Oil has naturally created for it jealous enemies among the makers of medicines alleged to be cures for diseases of a similar nature to those which have been so successfully combatted by Hriggs' Electric Oil. The most prominent and active among these enemies has been Messrs. Northrop & Lyman, of Toronto, manufacturers of a medicine called "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil." These jealous persons sought to prevent us from using the word "electric" on our label, claiming that it was an infringement upon their trade mark, being similar to the word "eclectric" means something, and its used in connection with our oil because the oil is charged with electricity by a powerful battery, as set forth in the sworn evidence of the maker before the court. Both Mestrs. Northrop & Lyman, on cath, deposed that no electricity whatever was put into "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil," and this in the face of the fact that on their labels appears a cut of a bottle, from which a large number of formidable thunderbolts are radiating. The statement is also made that the oil is "combined with electricity." The express of this fraud upon the people was the great result of "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil" were concerned. It amounted to an actual acknowledgment, under oath, by the makers of the oil, that they had been palming off on the public a medicine said to contain electric Oil which did not contain electric Vince oath by the makers of the oil, that they had been palming off on the public a medicine said to contain electric Vince oath by the makers of the word "electric Oil, was charged with electricity, were confirmed in the use of the label bearing the word "electric Oil was charged with electricity, and to day Briggs' Electric Oil stands before the people, its claim to be what it is having been vindicated by the Canadian High Court of Chaucery.
