In brief fashion the committee voted to stand on the ground taken on Friday, and consider as expinged from the records all those questions and answers at that time ruled out as irrelevant, and removed from the evidence. This point was not granted by the opposition without a struggle, but on the quotation of the action, as according to precedent, a majority vote settled it. The records, said the chairman, were replete with cases where certain parts of the evidence had been excluded but the intention here was only to expunge the discussion, and not the evidence had been followed.

After some discussion, william Proudfoot moved that the questions and answers be included, but an amendment of T. W. McGarry to dispense with reconsideration passed instead.

After some discussion, roudfoot moved that the questions and answers be included, but an amendment of T. W. McGarry to dispense with reconsideration passed instead.

J. W. Johnston of West Hastings took advantage of a lull to make a vigorous charge upon the honesty of The Globe newspaper. An article to which he drew attention, which claimed that the committee was used to suppress ministerial operations was full of falsehoods.

J. C. Elliott, who had now taken charge of the examination, pointed out that his name was down as a sectionman on the payroll, but the witness could not tell why unless to facilitate payments.

Electors Should Vote.

With reference to the provision providing for Sunday cars, Mr. Elliott thought that before the raflway should operate in any municipality outside of Toronto, a vote of the electors should be heard in the same manner as that of a large city. It was not fair for the legislature to put this thru as it in the hot summer who would wonderfully benefit by the change, and he himself was not selfish enough to deprive them of the chance. "Yes, I guess it would," said the witness.

Mr. Elilott then went on to enquire about the players on the team. He asked if any of the players worked for the railway, and Mr. Leslie replied that three men, Young, Dewar and Morel, worked for the railway and played ball when the league games took place. The men played ball and worked in their spare time, but not vice-versa, and the witness stated that Mr. Voung, had told the witness stated that the worked to the third spare time, but not to points in Mañtitoba, Saskatchewan, April 29, at low rates. The entry of the bill to amend the Practically the only evidence which says," commented the chairman.

The reappearance of George Taylor upon the witness stand was productive of little new material. He was asked once more if he remembered a conference of persons in the office of the provincial secretary in 1911, and while he did so and quoted those present as Mr. Hanna, W. K. McNaught and Mr. Thorne, he would not say whether any one had tried to get him to retract statements he had made about a minister.

"It is not a fair question to ask,"

Practically the only evidence which the witness could give further was based on hearsay, and in consequence of little value.

Forbes Godfrey of West York followed up the same idea in vigorous languag, pointing out the hardship that would accrue to the poor man of the cities. To hold up this bill was to help the millionaire, who had a car and private means. Thousands and tens of thousands of people were riding daily upon those in West York and no complaint was made. Power Company Negligent in Not Warning Against Use of Bridge.

KINGSTON, April 22 .- (Special.)-A jury which met at Centreville, under Coroner W. W. Sands, Kingston, to enquire into the death of George Hudson, drowned as a result of a dam breaking near Hinchbrooke, condemned the water power company for not having had a watchman at the dam to notify people in case there should be danger.

The evidence did not throw any light on what caused the dam to give way. There was testimony of wit-nesses who heard noise as if an explosion had occurred, but that was as far as they could go. Mrs. Sarah Mc-Comber and her son stated that they witnessed the drowning of Hudson. They warned him that the bridge was not safe, but he laughingly replied that he would take the risk. In his evidence Mr. Robinson stated that even after certain cows had been condemned their milk was used at the asylum. After being sworn, Mr. Robinson in answer to questions put by C. M. Bowman of North Bruce, who conducted the examination, stated that while employed by the government he had full charge of the milking of the cows and the distribution of the milk. Early in the summer, he said, Dr. Herd examined the cows for tuberculosis and condemned some of them. In July the whole herd with 19 condemned cows from the prison farm, were taken to Whitby, and Mr. Robinson was given instructions to dry up the condemned cows. The witness stated that this could not be done, for many of the cows were with calf. The many of the cows were with calf. MEASURE FOR FLOOD PREVEN-

GALT, April 22.—(Special.)—As an nitial step in measures to minimize flood conditions, Mayor Scott and three aldermen were appointed a committee to consider the feasibility of widening the Grand River in the vicinity of Main street.
