Demand It Contraband.

Sir William Ramsay, who seconded a resolution which was passed de-manding that cotton be declared contraband, asserted that while substitutes for cotton could be used in making nitro-cellulose, none of them had what was called the "ballistic power" of cotton and if anything else were used by the Germans it would necessi-tate enlarging the chambers of their guns and altering the sights of their rifles, an expedient which not even Germany could be prepared to adopt in the course of a great war. He declared that cotton was going into Ger many by devious routes. It was sold, he said, to Dutch and Swedish companies under a guarantee that it would not be sold to Germany or Austria. While technically this guarantee antee was not violated, Sir William contended, it was in reality a subterfuge for the Dutch and Swedish consignees sold the shipments to Swiss companies who, in turn, sold them to Great Britain's enemy.

Use Thousand Tons a Day. The estimate was made by Sir Charles that a thousand tons of cotton is used every day of the war, and he protested that it was grossly unfair to the British soldiers and their allies that Great Britain should continue to supply Germany with this commodity.
