tion, and the Garrison so weak, that in case of a sudden Rupture with France, they should, without speedy Assistance from Boston, be in Danger of falling into the Enemy's Hands: It was also known that his Majesty's Engineer for Nova Scotia had, in the preceding Winter, received Orders from the Board of Ordnance, to build a new Fort of Stone at Annapolis Royal, as soon as the Season would permit, and that he was preparing to lay the Foundation of it; which would make the Garrison less attentive to repair the Works of the old Fort.

This Account therefore of the Motions of the French gave just Grounds to dread their following the late Blow, they had given Canfo, with an immediate Attempt against the Fort of Annapolis Royal; the Reduction of which would have put them into the Possession of the whole Country of Nova Scotia, with about 16,000 French Inhabitants, who were justly suspected of a Disposition to join with them against the English.

Wherefore to prevent the Garrison at Annapolis Royal from being surprized by the Enemy, and to apprize Mr. Mascarene of the Necessity of repairing the old Fort in the best manner, the runious State of its Works, and the short time he had to do it in, would admit; the Governor of the Massuchusets Bay dispatched an armed Vessel in the Service of the Province, to Annapolis Royal, with an Account of the Motions of the French, and a Promise to send the Garrison a speedy Reinforcement.
