in Washington from that country indicates a condition of affairs which is distinctly unfavorable to the British government. Its importance will be apparent when it is remembered that the fate of India lies in Afghanistan. In order to keen the Ameer faithful to British interests England pays him a large annual subsidy. Notwithstanding this fact, his attitude is declared to be extremely doubtful. Recently he has been occupied in increasing the strength and efficiency of his army.

The English have been under the impression that this action was due to his desire to be prepared to resist any aggression on the part of Russia. It is now believed, my informant states, that it is really prepara-tory to measures against India, and, should it develop that this is the case, Great Britain, he says, would have more serious work in defending her Indian possessions than she has had in conquering the Transvaal. Her military position in India is
