Bayley's FROZEN WHISKY

Stored in a Shop-Keeper's Cellar at Parkhill

Led to a Peculiar Prosecution Under the License Act.

Parkhill, Ont., Aug. 28.—On Monday, the 21st August, Constable Mains, of the 21st August, Constable Mains, a grocer, armed with a warrant authorizing him to search for and seize intoxicating liquor unlawfully kept on the premises. He found in a back shed a new charge of whisky and another of brandy, valued at $200, also a quantity of empty bottles, and in the cellar a number of cases of ale. The seizure of the liquor was immediately followed by a prosecution for keeping liquor for sale without a license, which Saturday came before Police Magistrate Mac-tavish. Constable Mains related the finding of the liquor, whereupon Mr. McKillop, of London, who appeared for the defence, asked for a conviction for the possession of liquor for sale.

Mr. Haverson, counsel for the License-Holders' Association, objected that the presence of liquor in any quantity was no evidence of keeping for sale. On the magistrate's ruling for sale, on the same evidence, Welsh then entered the box and testified that the barrels were simply stored by him for Martin Breen, a licensed shop-keeper, who carried on business next door, that the liquor found in the cellar had been placed there more than a year before by Breen, and had been frozen during the winter and allowed to remain in the cellar as useless.

This case was then dismissed, as well as the charge for keeping for sale.

Martin Breen, the shop-keeper, was next tried for selling in less quantity than allowed by law. On the evidence of a customer, John Morrison, he was convicted, and a fine imposed of $25 and costs.

At the close of these trials the liquor was returned to Breen.
