H. R. McLellan Chosen to Complete Liberal Slate

Name of W. Frank Hatheway Also Before the Convention

Second Session of Convention for Constituency of St. John-Albert Held Last Evening—Stirring Appeal Made for Unity and Co-operation—Vigorous Speeches by the Two Candidates.

H. R. McLellan was chosen to complete the Liberal ticket for the federal constituency of St. John-Albert at the second session of the Liberal convention which was held last evening. When Mr. McLellan appeared in the convention hall, after he had been notified of his selection, he was given an enthusiastic reception. In accepting the nomination, Mr. McLellan made a vigorous speech in which he appealed to all members of the party to forget past differences and to unite for the success of their common cause.

The convention, which was held in the Moose Hall, Charlotte street, was attended by practically every city delegate and many spectators; the Albert county delegates were not present and there was considerable discussion regarding the course to be pursued in their absence but it was finally decided to proceed with the nomination.

The names of Mr. McLellan and W. Frank Hatheway were put before the convention and, on a ballot being taken, Mr. McLellan was declared the choice of the convention. Dr. Ryan in the Chair. In the absence of J. Fred Belyea, the chairman of the local executive, the meeting was called to order by Dr. E. J. Ryan and who, on motion, took the chair. K. J. MacIsaac was appointed secretary until E. J. Henneberry arrived.

not want to come to the convention. If they were Liberals they would have to stand by the action of the convention, he declared. E. J. Henneberry told of efforts to get Albert delegates to come to St. John and of a willingness to postpone the convention, as in no event would the received word that they would not come to the convention and would rather stand aloof. He asked Mr. Thompson if the Albert county Liberals would stand by the candidates named by the convention, and Mr. Thompson replied that he could not say. Mr. Thompson advised against postponing the convention, as in no event would the Albert county delegates come to St. John. Mr. Henneberry said he had written to Mr. Thompson saying that a method of polling the Albert county delegates vote would be acceptable to the convention.

In the opinion of William M. Ryan it made a great difference whether or not Albert county delegates were present. Dr. Broderick replied that the convention was called together for a distinct purpose, but he did not want to antagonize Albert county. A. F. Bentley told of the difficulty and sacrifice caused by delegates from rural districts coming to a convention, and said that Albert county could not be disregarded, as there was a hard fight ahead. In view of the telegrams from Ottawa and the Albert county situation, he thought a gain would be made by deferring action until next Monday.

Mr. Belyea said that the telegram had nothing to do with the convention. It was then decided to ballot by wards as to whether the convention should be postponed, and Percy McAivty, T. M. Burns and E. J. Henneberry were appointed scrutineers. The result of the vote was seventy-one to forty-seven in favor of proceeding.

Messages From Ottawa.

J. A. Barry said that he had an important matter to bring up. He had received a telegram from Andrew Hayden, of Ottawa, general secretary of the Liberal party, asking him to come to Ottawa at once. Mr. Barry said that Dr. Broderick and W. E. Scully, etc., etc., also had received similar telegrams. Considering the absence of Albert county delegates he was in favor of postponing the convention until the matter of the telegrams could be investigated, as he thought they had something to do with the convention. George Cunningham said that he understood that Mr. M. Thompson who had been chairman of the previous convention. At this stage in the proceedings Mr. Belyea and Mr. Henneberry arrived. Mr. Belyea said that they had been in conversation with Mr. Thompson, and it then said that the Albert delegates did not want to come to the convention. If they were Liberals they would have to stand by the action of the convention, he declared. E. J. Henneberry told of efforts to get Albert delegates to come to St. John and of a willingness to postpone the convention, as in no event would the received word that they would not come to the convention and would rather stand aloof.

Mr. Belyea said that the telegram had nothing to do with the convention. It was then decided to ballot by wards as to whether the convention should be postponed, and Percy McAivty, T. M. Burns and E. J. Henneberry were appointed scrutineers. The result of the vote was seventy-one to forty-seven in favor of proceeding.

On arising, Mr. McLellan was greeted with cheers. He expressed his gratitude for the honor and confidence placed in him. He fully realized the difficulties and responsibilities that confronted him. The destinies of the port and of New Brunswick were at stake but he believed that the Liberals would rise superior to passions and past differences in the interests of the port and province. He knew that a change of government was attended with some inconveniences to certain gentlemen but they would have to put up with it. It was much better that some inconveniences should occur than that the Canadian people should be governed by a party which had proved itself to be incapable of looking after the people's welfare.

Mr. McLellan then took up Premier Melghe's statement that a failure to maintain the present government would be detrimental to the country but, he said, Mr. Melghe had made no reference to the interests of which the great of the government would prove detrimental. He said that the tariff laws had been taken advantage of by interests to increase their profits as they added the amount of the duty to goods made in this country and often further increased their profits by lowering the standard of the quality of the goods manufactured.

Another important question, the speaker said, was the railway question or rather it would be better described as the railway crime (laughter) which had placed such additional burdens on the taxpayers in the course of the last year's platform and ask him to prove that the present railway condition was a legacy of the Laurier regime.

provinces, Mr. McLellan quoted from speeches made at the time when the upper provinces earnestly wanted the maritimes to join in confederation. He said that the promises made to the maritime provinces to enter confederation never been carried out and it was time that the latter should demand their rights. He referred to the present situation and the way in which the government had made it impossible for local manufacturers and merchants to compete in upper Canada and the west in trade owing to the high freight rates which the government had fixed for its railway lines.

Mr. McLellan said that he was proud to be a candidate solely to advance the interests of St. John and the province of New Brunswick and that, if he did not deliver the goods or at least part of them within one year, he would resign. Mr. McLellan said that he was proud to hold no prejudice against those who had opposed him. There was Mr. Barry in the audience to whom he had not spoken in several years, he said, but if Mr. Barry would come forward he would be pleased to shake his hand. Mr. Barry came forward and they shook hands amid great cheering. He did the same with Mr. Dryden with whom, he said, he had not been on friendly terms during the last few years.

The candidate announced last night that his campaign would be to elect the ticket, the whole ticket and nothing but the ticket. He sounded a warning that if the government party resorted to mud throwing he would place tons of dynamite under them and their platform. He said that this election was an opportunity that the city could not afford to lose in the interests of its harbor work.

Dr. W. P. Broderick followed and made a short but impressive address in which he congratulated Mr. McLellan on his nomination and expressed the hope that a calm had now arrived after the storm. It was the duty of the electors of this city to help elect Hon. Mackenzie King as the next premier of Canada, he said, and the only way to do this was for every full-fledged Liberal to work towards that end. He hoped that they would be able to make up in strenuous work for every full-fledged Liberal to work towards that end. He hoped that they would be able to make up in strenuous work for every full-fledged Liberal to work towards that end.

At the conclusion of these remarks the chairman called for three hearty cheers for the two candidates, which were given with a will. The convention then adjourned. A vibrant story of life and love in the northwest wilderness of the Canadian Rockies is told in "Snowblind," a Reginald Barker production for Goldwyn, which was shown at Queen Square Theatre last night. The author is Katherine Newlin Burt, who also wrote "The Branding Iron." Russell Simpson heads the distinguished cast which includes Mary Alden, Cullen Landis and Pauline Sylvia (Pauline Starke) for a fugitive from the law, Hugh Garth (Russell Simpson), who brought her to his cabin when he found her wandering about temporarily blinded by the snow. Gradually her affection is transferred to Peter (Cullen Landis), Hugh's younger brother. The struggle in the girl's heart between her wandering affection, and the jealousy of Hugh pitted against the magnanimity of his younger brother, develop into a series of powerful dramatic situations that are admirably carried out by the four sterling actors who tell the story.

Reginald Barker has again produced another of those massive photoplays which have won him an international reputation. Your last chance to see this picture tonight.

Loveable Cinderella is with us again—or rather her new twin sister, whimsically appealing and sparklingly fresh. She is at the Imperial Theatre in the Metro special, "Cinderella's Twin." Which is cause for rejoicing, for this picture is one delightful concoction with all the old never-failing charm. A piquant little Viola Dana is there—the star—the scullery maid who goes straight into a twentieth-century mansion to find the heart of the man she loves. It has twists aplenty. One of them is the situation where Connie McGill, the little maid, suddenly has to flee the splendor of a ballroom, and in the act drops her slipper, which contained the key to a safety vault holding the jewels sought by thieves. Her Prince Charming, Wallace McDonald, formerly of the maritime provinces, gets the slipper, and arrested into the bargain for the theft.

At this stage John B. Magee said that he had received official authority to say that the Albert county delegates would not stand committed to any candidates named at this convention. George Cunningham said that he understood that F. M. Thompson, of Albert, had told Mr. Henneberry to go ahead with the convention. Mr. Barry said there must be some reason if Albert county would not stand behind the action of the convention and the reason should be found out. An effort should be made to get in touch with Albert county between now and Monday and have things straightened out. It would be an injustice to the party to go ahead now, Mr. Magee said that his message was from F. M. Thompson who had been chairman of the previous convention.

At this stage in the proceedings Mr. Belyea and Mr. Henneberry arrived. Mr. Belyea said that they had been in conversation with Mr. Thompson, and it then said that the Albert delegates did not want to come to the convention. If they were Liberals they would have to stand by the action of the convention, he declared. E. J. Henneberry told of efforts to get Albert delegates to come to St. John and of a willingness to postpone the convention, as in no event would the received word that they would not come to the convention and would rather stand aloof.
