In addition to the ing a feathered family in the hollow North End fire department No. 2 hose cart went over from the city to assist.

The burned mill was formerly the while Whiskers was interesting him-self with the moles the owl was raising a feathered family in the hollow of a weather-beaten and broken down cart went over from the city to assist.

The burned mill was formerly the Randolph & Murray property. It was thirty years old, but was one of the largest and best equipped on the rivers achs Mr. Owl had all he could do to It was insured for $23,000, some of the provide Mrs. Owl and family with the time to sit on the ridgepole of house and make night hideous with long, weird hoots.

"Yes," replied his son, between an apple tree and the house. He was carefully guarding a frog that was making strenuous attempts to hop to the safety of the swamp. While he was wondering what the cat could be doing with the frog, he heard a hooting in the distance, and a few moments later the owl flapped into the apple tree and dropped a mole near the cat. An instant later h swooped down and picked up the frog Whiskers apparently had no fear of his feathered friend, for he purred hoarsely and proceeded to devour the mon Mr. Perley, who is something of student of the habits of animals, winterested, and made up his mind watch developments. On the following night he posted himself in a win ow and saw the mole and frog per formance repeated three times. On t next night there was an exchange courtesies twice. On subsequent night the same thing occurred. When the the frog he would fly off into the dark-ness and the cat would disappear the recesses of the swamp. Whisker generally got back first, always lugging a good-sized frog. There wa hooting and considerable cate wauling, and once there was a great fuss when the owl returned empt handed. Mr. Perley is at a loss to account for the strange partnership.
