Report says that pedestrian tours are to be the favorite amusement among our young ladies next week, and the week after, also that the direction taken will be out the Fox Creek road, and past the camp. I hope so, I am sure, for as a rule, our young ladies do not walk enough, but unless the roads dry very rapidly between now and then, you had better wear rubber boots, girls.

We are beginning to be seriously alarmed about the sugar refinery. Of course, everyone knows that it is one of our most cherished institutions; and, now, it seems to be slipping gradually, but surely, out of our grasp. An English syndicate has fixed its covetous eyes on our beloved refinery; even as David fixed his on Uriah's wife, and last week Mr. Spencer, of Toronto, an emissary of that same syndicate was here for the second or third time negotiating for its purchase. Of course, we don't propose to follow King David's example, to the extent of desperate measures, and despoiling Mr. Spencer over Harris' wharf when the tide is in, but still we don't want to see that the refinery belongs to anyone but its present owners; and for two plans, we'll just buy it ourselves and say nothing except "hang the expense!"
