

RAVAGES OF DISEASE RANKS OF TURKS

Reported Cholera Has Hastened Armistice

PEACE IMMINENT

Official Organ of Bulgarians States End of the War is in View -- Disorders Said to be Occurring at Saloniki

London, Nov. 15.—The censorship permitting no news to come from the front regarding the situation at the scene of the fighting in the Balkans is more perplexing than ever tonight. Various reports have drifted in, however, among them that Adrianople had fallen, that the Bulgarians had captured Edineburg, that the headquarters of the Turkish commander-in-chief that Naam Pasha, the Turkish generalissimo had capitulated, and that the Bulgarians, either by sea or land, had reached the vicinity of Killov, on the Black Sea coast, at a short distance from Constantinople. These reports were still without confirmation.

What perhaps is of greater importance than the progress of the hostilities in southeastern Europe, however, lies in the revelation of the tremendous ravages cholera is making not only among the destitute refugees who daily are arriving in thousands at Constantinople, but among the Turkish troops on the Tchatalja lines. It is supposed that this danger will suffice to give the Bulgarian commanders a pause and induce the Bulgarian government to arrange an armistice and negotiate peace since all the practical objects for which the war was undertaken already have been secured and therefore it is useless to run the risk of an epidemic of cholera in the Bulgarian army for the sake of a formal entry into Constantinople to avoid which it is believed Turkey is ready to agree to almost any terms.

A significant article appears in the Bulgarian government organ, Mir. It declares that peace is imminent and holds out the olive branch to Turkey to enter into a good understanding with the Balkan league. A Constantinople despatch to the Cologne Gazette declares that Bulgaria has abandoned its intention to enter Constantinople being thus advised by Russia and Great Britain.

Although the report that an armistice already has been arranged has not been confirmed all indications point in that direction and it may be supposed that the terrible conditions of famine and destitution prevailing among the refugees in the neighborhood of Constantinople which is conceded to be a hot bed for the spread of cholera may have had something to do with Bulgaria's decision.

NO PRECEDENT FOR THE ATTEMPT TO RESCIND A GOVERNMENT REVERSE

Liberals Adopt Desperate Tactics Subsequent to Defeat on Home Rule Bill

Crisis in Mother of Parliaments Almost Revolutionary in Character -- Serious Constitutional Issue Raised -- Royal Divorce Commission Report Criticized -- Success of Balkan Allies Disappointment to Germans -- Sequel of Indian Silver Purchase.

Special Cable to The Standard. London, Nov. 15.—(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)—The House of Commons this week has passed through a crisis perilously approaching a revolutionary event. Details of the melancholy event have doubtless already been catalogued and it is only necessary to analyze the genesis of the same.

It arose out of the government's motion to rescind last Monday's vote on the Home Rule Bill. The Speaker, in ruling on the point of order used grave words. He was unable to find a precedent in the history of the House of Commons for the government's motion, and he solemnly advised that the members could judge for themselves whether the motion was one which had been accumulated to protect the regularity of the proceedings.

Premier Asquith, in an eloquent speech, left untouched the constitutional point mentioned, to which Bonar Law manly addressed himself, in his masterly analysis. Mr. Law declared that neither the government nor the opposition were bound to accept the result of the proceedings.

Further conflict was averted on Thursday by the intervention of the Speaker, who urged further reflection and discovery another solution of the problem. A grave crisis was thus averted, although it is impossible to say that all danger has passed.

Government's Defeat On Home Rule Bill

The outstanding political event of the week was the defeat of the government's Home Rule Bill, on Monday night, which was the final stage of the financial resolutions which form the basis of the proposed budget for 1913-14. The bill was defeated by a vote of 154 to 134, on the appointment of a committee. The Unionists point out that the result of the government's proposal will be to nullify votes of parliament and destroy representative institutions.

Many Liberals, though relieved at the government's escape, doubt the wisdom of the course adopted. It is interesting to note that the Australian business relations with the government from sitting in the Senate, the matter has been referred to a select committee. If the decision is adverse, Sir Stuart Samuel has incurred lines amounting to twenty-five thousand dollars for having voted while disqualified, but there is no news as to whether the matter will be referred to a select committee.

As to the ultimate effect of the direct, opinions vary. The Unionists declare that the event will wreck the bill and weaken the authority of the government. In this they are supported by many old parliamentary hands of opposite views. The Irish Daily Independent, in the reference, it is understood that the government's prestige is cleared.

"The Province of New Brunswick is beginning to attract attention on account of its fruit lands, as is shown by the visits during the summer and fall of a number of prominent English capitalists, fruit growers from British Columbia, and representatives of leading apple buyers of the Old Country, and we may look forward with confidence to the rapid creation and enlargement of our fruit industry."
