Bath, N. B., July 22-(Special)-Speaking of the murder to his brother William, Charles Doherty made the following statement to a Telegraph reporter: "I saw a man holding a lantern at the corner of Willie's barn about five minutes after the shooting. There must have been a stranger's horse in Willie's barn, as Wil lie kept his horse at pasture at night. My brother George says he saw fire in the kitchen and at each end of the verandah."

Douglas Martin, the man that captured Cammack, tells the following story: "I cruised the woods in search of the murderer and came upon him about 200 yards from his own house. I saw him in a short rise of hill in a clump of bushes, surprised him and called at him: Well, old man, you might as well give up.' He never spoke, but fired at himself with own revolver. revolver. I thought he was shamming and pointed my rifle at him."

"Fred Elliott, who was in the chase caught up to me and said: 'Look out for him; let him have it.' Cammack shot himself and fell in his own tracks. The wifle I had was the same rifle that George Gee shot Millie Gee with. I got it from Sheriff Foster. I tracked Cammack through the woods, and as it was after a rain I found but one track and it was a peculiar one, being that of a large brown, and corresponding exactly with the gan, and corresponding exactly with the shoe worn by Cammack.

'I did not see any other track." Mr. Martin is famed as a woodsman and knows every inch of the country in which the murder was committed.

Radcliffe Looks to Nova Scotia Execution.

At 5.30 o'clock Rradeliffe boarded the train at the Queen street station. Ther was a large crowd to witness his departure. He talked with the people—even opened his grip and displayed his knot. He jokked with the onlookers and seemed in an agreeable frame of mind.

He left direct for Naniamo (B. C.), to

Mr. Farris described how the illucan be made a very profitable one. Kings county produced more than 1,000,000 pounds of cheese and 500,000 pounds of butter last year, and they found winter dairying the most profitable. We had an increase of $46,000 last year and during the same period the dairy products exported from Montreal were valued at $1,500,000 more than all the grain shipped from that port and much more than all the beef exported from Montreal. Institute meetings were held under government auspices to sister provinces.

We have a fine province, not surpassed in many respects in Canada, and we should try to keep our young men on our farms.
As the lumber is being cut away, it becomes necessary for us to engage more exensively in farming, and we must keep up to date in our methods to meet the keen competition of the age.

Hon. Mr. LaBillois. Hon. Mr. LaBillois thought the people in general would approve of the series of meetings inaugurated by the government, that the members of the administration that the members of the administration most intimately connected with the great public services might meet the people in the various parts of the province and talk the various parts of the provnce and talk over mutual interests. There was no politics in these meetings. The new highway act had been adopted in principle by both government and opposition members of the legislature, although there may have been differences on the details. He spoke of the loss to the province by the neglect of the people to perform their statute labor, a loss of fully forty per cent. He knew of cases of men who had been assessed on $10,000 and $12,000 and in ten years had not naid more than $4 for imyears had not paid more than $4 for improvement of the roads.

It had been represented that the government would collect the road tax under the new law, but that was not the case.

The money went directly and entirely into the county treasuries and will be expended in the districts where it is collected. Mr. LaBillois proceeded to make comparisons of the amount of tax under the old and new highway acts to the adthe old and new highway acts to the au-vantage of the latter. He urged that one reason why the government had taken over the appointment of highway over-seers was that the municipal councils, while htherto making the appointments, had not followed that up by seeing that the officials did their duty. He wanted only the best available men appointed and he urged the representatives to recom-mend none but that class for the posi-

Mr. LaBillois spoke of the general in-

After a reference to the wide tire section of the new highway act, and the necessity of preserving the large bridges from damage by teams trotting over them, the chief commissioner spoke of the public improvements in Adover, the new buildings and the excellent water service, but, expressed the hope that the people would be resulted in the commissioner spoke for the bishopric of Nova Scotia, which was held Friday night, was well attended. The lieutenant-governor occupied the chair. After discussion of names, the committee ple would take advantage of the provisions of the highway act enabling them to spend a portion of their road money, or

County Councillor Geo. E. Baxter was pleased to meet the government members
It was a good plan for them to travel around the province and get acquainted with the people and learn their wants. Mr. Baxter was much interested in Mr. Farris' observations on apple culture, and amusingly told his experience in orchard-ing, which at the outset had not been very Mr. Farris said he regretted the creamery here is not running this year. New Brunswick is one of the best dairy provinces in the dominion, and the industry can be made a very profitable one. Kings county produced more than 1,000,000 below the law, especially that provinces in the dominion of the law, especially that provinces in the dominion of the law, especially that the outset had not been very successful. "We need knowledge of how to proceed," he said, and he hoped the illustration or chards will prove successful. He feared the road act was the introduction of direct taxation. He favored some sections of the law, especially that sections of the law, especially that re-lating to wide tires, and trusted other parts of the law would prove successful.

Benjamin Kilburn here took the chair and J. F. Tweeddale, M. P. P., addressed very largely on the basis of an act put ferward by the Victoria county council and introduced in the legislature by Mr. provement over the old. The act is not presented as perfect, but if it is found unchief commissioner is ever ready to consult the interests of the people, and in this connection Mr. Tweeddale paid a hearty tribute to the ability and fidelity of Mr. LaBillois in the positions he has ccupied in the governm

I. F. Porter.

J. E. Porter, ex-M. P. P., spoke of the excellent moves the government had made to benefit the farmers' interests. Mr. Porter believed the road act would prove popular when it was properly understood and administered.

Thomas Lawson.

Thos. Lawson, ex-M. P. P., was pleased Thos. Lawson, ex-M. P. P., was pleased to renew his friendly intercourse with the members of the government present—gentlemen who had always listened with kindly and sympathetic interest when he was a member of the legislature. It was a matter of satisfaction to the country that a practical and successful farmer like Mr. Farris was in control of the department of agriculture. Mr. Lawson spoke of the great success of apple growing in Nova Scotia, and commended the government for its efforts to encourage the industry in this province. No doubt certain por-tions of this province are most suitable to apple growing, and the same market that is open to Nova Scotia is available to New Brunswick.

Mr. Lawson commended the new highway act and was glad to find incorporated therein some features for which he had contended while in the legislature, notably the adoption of a road tax instead of statute labor. He believed the change made was most desirable and would bring excellent results. The next most impor-tant feature to his mind was the amalgamation of the various road funds and the
