

Household Notes.

A POTATO OMELET is a rather combination of those stand-bys of a housekeeper, eggs and potatoes. A cooking-school receipt requires that the potatoes should be baked for this omelet, but a housekeeper who has experimented says that it is quite as well to boil the potatoes to the mealy stage and press through a sieve while hot. Mix two potatoes thus prepared with the beaten yolks of five eggs; season with salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs and make the omelet in the usual way, adding a little chopped parsley just before the omelet is folded over.

AN EGG TOAST with cheese is a substantial course for luncheon in these penitential days. Lay, on a well buttered disn, several thin slices of bread from which the crusts have been carefully out and sprinkle over them grated Parmesan cheese. Beat up thoroughly six or eight eggs, the whites and yolks together. Pour the eggs over the bread, sprinkle more cheese over the top, and bake in a moderate oven till the eggs are set. Serve at once while very hot without removing from the baking-dish.

CORNSTACH is a valuable food, but it rarely gets cooking enough to take away the raw taste and flavor that is natural to it in the uncook ed state. Cornstarch pudding or the blanc-mange made from it is obfected to by many persons, and particularly by children, to whom it would be, if palatable, a nourishing food. Miss Johnson, in a recent lecture at the Brooklyn institute, gave an object lesson in her theory that the raw flavor may be eliminated from this preparation of corn with sufficient cooking. The pudding which she made and which her listeners tested and found entirely satisfactory was compounded from the following receipt : One pint of milk, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, two large tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, the whites of three eggs, half a teaspoonful of vanilla, and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Scald the milk in a double boiler, add the sugar, and stir until dissolved. Stir enough cold milk with the cornstarch to form a thick creamy mixture, and add to it the scalded milk. Cook for at least three-quarters of an hour, stirring occasionally. Beat the whites of the egg to a stiff froth, adding a little salt before beating them. Stir the whites rapidly into the cornstarch and let it cook three minutes more, stirring constantly. Take from the fire, add the vanilla, and put in a bowl to get partially cool. When the pudding begins to set, stir in half of a can of cherries or other fruit, and pour into a mould which has been wet with cold water. When ready to serve, turn the pudding out on a plate, heap the remaining fruit in the centre if the mould used is in the form of a ring, and serve with whipped cream or fruit syrup poured over all. If fruit syrup is to be used for the sauce, that which comes in any can of fruit will be sufficient ly thick if it is boiled down to POACHED EGGS. - The art o poaching eggs in the shell is one that needs nicety and some practice, but is not difficult to acquire To insure complete success, each egg should be poached in this way, separately. Drop a perfectly fresh egg gently into boiling water, and allow it to boil exactly three and a half minutes, timing it to the second. Have ready a bowl of ice into which the egg is instantly dropped on leaving the fire and left for an even two minutes Take out and gently pick the point taking off small bits of the shell. being very careful not to break the white; when half the shell is thus removed, reverse the egg and take of the other half, slipping the egg, then, on a slice of buttered toast.

Send to the table with a dash of salt and pepper. It should be a small white ball, the yolk showing faintly through the white. This method of poaching eggs is liked by epicures, who claim that the water which gets in the white when it is poached in the usual way gives an insipid flavor impossible to counter-

CIVIC AFFAIRS IN NEW YORK,

In an interview given to a report er of a local newspaper, Mr. Low, Mayor of New York, said :-

"This business of administering the city's affairs is full of interest despite the labor it entails, and is an occupation which lacks nothing of the variety which goes to make up the spice of life. One question succeeds another so rapidly that one task completed is forgotten in the engrossing attention the next one requires.

"It reminds one of a rapid fire gun which discharges one shot after another so quickly that one can imagine that at the end the gun has little conscience left.

"In the last few days there have come to my office a half-dozen com mittees of citizens, each petitioning for something entailing an expenditure of from $300,000 to $600,000, so you can see that the Mayor's mind is filled with a train of figures that might result in municipal insolvency if all were carried out in rotation."
