BRITISH HELD

an endeavor was made to storm the grounds of the Chateau Hooze, a little north of the Menin road, but the force attempting it broke and fell back under the hail of shrapnel poured upon them by our guns. It was on this side, where they had to face the concentrated fire of guns, Maxim's and rifles again and again in their efforts to break their way through, that the Germans incurred their heaviest losses and the ground was literally heaped with dead.

"They evidently for the time being at least, were unable to renew their efforts, and as night came on the fury of their offensive gradually slackened, the hours of darkness passing in quietness.

"During the day our troops saw some of the enemy buy employment in the abandoned trenches, east of the Hooze Chateau, and several Germans afterwards were noticed dressed in khaki.

"So far as the Ypres region is concerned, this was a most successful day. Our losses were comparatively slight, and, owing to the targets presented by the enemy, the action resolved itself on our part into pure killing.

"The reason for this very determined effort to crush our left on the part of the Germans is not far to seek. It is probable that for some days previously the enemy had been in possession of information which led them to suppose that we intended to apply pressure on the right of our line and that their great attack upon Ypres on the 7th, 8th and 9th was undertaken with a view to diverting us from our purpose.

AGAIN AND AGAIN BLOTTED OUT.

"The failure of their effort was due to the splendid endurance of our troops, who held the line around the salient under a fire which again and again blotted out whole lengths of the defenses and killed the defenders by scores. Time after time along those parts of the front selected for assault were parapets destroyed, and time after time did the thinning band of survivors build them up again and await the next onslaught as steadily as before.

"The services rendered by our troops in this quarter cannot at present be estimated, for their full significance will only be realized in the light of future events. But, so far as their devotion has indirectly contributed in no small measure to the striking success already achieved by our allies.

ANOTHER STRUGGLE

"Farther south in the meantime on Sunday another struggle had been in progress on the portion of the front covered by the right of our line and the left of the French, for when the firing around Ypres was temporarily subsiding, during the early hours of the morning, another and even more tremendous cannonade was suddenly started by the artillery of the allies, some 20 miles to the south.

"The morning was calm, bright and clear. Away to the right were Chinchy, with its brick fields, and the ruins of Givenchy. To the north of them lay low ground, where hidden by trees and hedge-rows, ran the opposing lines that were about to become the scene of the conflict, and beyond, in the distance, rose the long ridge of Aubers, the villages crowning it standing out clear against the sky.

"At 5 o'clock the bombardment began, slowly at first and then growing in volume until the whole air quivered with the rum of the larger shells and the earth shook with the concussion of guns. In a few minutes the whole distant landscape disappeared in smoke and dust, which hung for a while in the air, and then drifted slowly across the line of battle.

"Shortly before 6 o'clock our infantry advanced along our front between the Bois Grenier and Festubert. On the left, north of Fromelles, we stormed the first German line trenches. Hand-to-hand fighting went on for some time with bayonet, rifle and hand grenade, but we continued to hold on to this position throughout the day and caused the enemy very heavy loss, for not only were many Germans killed in the bombardment, but their repeated efforts were repulsed.

"ADVANCED THREE MILES. "Meanwhile, the French, after a prolonged bombardment, had taken the German positions north of Arras on a front of nearly five miles, and had pushed forward from two to three miles, capturing 2,000 prisoners and six guns. This remarkable success was gained by our allies in the course of a few hours.

"As may be supposed from the nature of the fighting which has been in progress, our losses have been heavy. On other parts of the front our action was confined to that of the artillery, but this proved most effective later, all the communications of the enemy being subjected to so heavy and accurate a fire that in some quarters all movements by daylight within range of our lines were rendered impracticable. At one place opposite our centre a convoy of ammunition was hit by a shell, which knocked out six motor lorries and caused two to blow up. Opposite our centre we fired two mines which did considerable damage to the enemy's defenses.

"During the day also our aeroplanes attacked several points of importance. One of our airmen, who was sent to bomb the canal bridge near West was wounded on his way there, but continued and fulfilled his mission. Near Wytshaete, one of our aviators pursued a German aeroplane and fired a whole belt from his machine gun at it. The plane suddenly swerved righted itself for a second and then descended from a height of several thousand feet straight to the ground.

"On the other hand a British machine was brought down over Lille by the enemy's anti-aircraft guns, but it is hoped that the aviator escaped."

In regard to the German allegation that the British used gas in their attacks on Hill 60, the "eye-witness" says: "No appalling gas attacks have been employed by us at any time, nor have they yet been brought into play by us."

Anti-German

Feeling is

at White Heat

London, May 13.—Anti-German demonstrations virtually ceased at Liverpool and Manchester last night. Two hundred shops were damaged in Liverpool during the disturbances.

Rioting in Glasgow has not been serious, although feeling runs high. At Newcastle and Gateshead, many German shops were attacked, the windows broken and the contents thrown into the street. The movement for refusing to sell goods to Germans is spreading to many towns. The first incident of an inn being looted occurred in the Black Friars district of London last night when a mob attacked the Crown Inn near St. Georges Church turned the Germans landlord into the street and helped themselves to liquor. A small detachment of police was helpless against the big crowd.

In Lambeth, Kennington, Bow, Deptford, Finsbury, Islington and Woodgreen—in fact in virtually all the poorer districts of the Metropolis—shops belonging to aliens of enemy countries, or of British subjects of German descent, were wrecked, and their contents thrown into the street.

Many arrests were made. At Cannington, a furniture store was cleared of all its goods, while in a farmhouse a window of a large furniture factory was smashed. No distinction was made by the mob between Germans and persons of German descent.

There is hardly an establishment in London this morning owned by a German, or who employs Germans, which has not been damaged or which has not been barricaded to prevent it from being damaged.

The first riot last night occurred in the Camdentown district, extending from Kings Cross northward. It is estimated that in this district at least 150 shops were damaged.

A memorial to the Lord Mayor of London is being extensively signed by alien members of the Stock Exchange, repeating with emphasis the oath of allegiance they took when they became naturalized British subjects, and expressing their unqualified condemnation of the "barbarous methods of warfare which have been adopted in Germany."

Several of the London clubs to-day decided to ask Germans, although they are naturalized British subjects, not to use the club premises during the war.
