THE SAN FRANCISCO butchers use no ice for their meat, and need none. In that dry climate meat keeps a long time without ice, improving rapidly as long as it remains sweet. The consequence is that the butchers can keep their meat several days before exposing it for sale, and it is then tender and in the best possible condition for the table.

Kissing the Wrong Woman.
An amusing mistake occurred on the Milwaukee and La Crosse Railroad recently. In the fourth seat back from the stove, in one of the passenger cars sat a gentleman and lady, sweet and gushing as the fairest ones of the ancient times. His arm encircled her waist in hearty squeeze, his other hand wandered round her ample and bonnet-strings like a place to rest, and his eyes were fixed on the face of his fair companion with all the earnestness of a lover. In short they were the observed of all observers. In the first seat back of the couple alluded to sat a demure looking lady, naturally interested in the display of affection in front of her, so natural and touching. As the train approached a tunnel, the demure lover left his seat for some purpose, and when he returned, he was looking back as if he had been waylaid, and just as the train began to emerge into the light of the tunnel, there was a yell which startled the entire load of passengers. The poor fellow had gone one seat too far back, and had seated himself in the wrong one and was trying his best to kiss the demure lady, who couldn't see it. He hit out in a hurry and with the most cheerful look ever seen, took his place beside the girl, while the spectators were convulsed with laughter.
A Quarrel.
Yesterday, while passing by a building on which several negroes were at work, our attention was attracted by hearing two of the darkeys in a dialogue of big words. One of them was on the scaffolding, and the other standing on the ground, near a pile of bricks.
"Who, you knows, Sam?" said the animated lump of "Day and Martin," who stood below, looking up and calling the white of his eye, which resembled a puffed egg.
"You knows, I can't shine here, 'cause I is no here."
"Look here, Bumpy, you tar-baby, I took de greatest contentment for you and all your innuendoes, I joes; de fac is I looks down on you, and I will parlor conceit you's all together below me."
"Noise of dem simmervations, niggar, I shant stand it. I take one of dese bricks and fetch you off'n dat dar scaffold, quicker den you git on it, if you offers any more of your tar-baby and 'resolvin' conpression."
"What dat you talks, you dar negronian? His stan dare till I come down dis ladder. I make you link a bull-dog got you?" And thus saying, Sam rattled down from the building "like a possum down a simon tree." The belligerents were about coming to close quarters, when the overseer came up, and spoiled the fun. We came away.
The Virginia Flood. which occurred about the first of this month, caused an immense loss of property and a large loss of life. The American papers are filled with the details. An unexpected freshet in the Potomac was the cause. Bridges, houses, barns, mills, &c., were swept away; railways and canals submerged. At Richmond the buildings on the River bank were 20 feet under water, and 200 families were homeless. At Alexandria the river is filled with the debris of fences, bridges, houses, furniture, barrels of flour, &c. At Harper's Ferry seven lives were lost, and the services on the night of the 30th ult., are said to have been appalling.
EXPENSE OF A VIOLENCE.
Speaking of the Governor-General's me that the public are not yet aware of a little disturbance between Sir John Young and his advisers. The Governor contends that it is the duty of the Dominion to pay his servants, his gardeners and other officials, in addition to his salary of $50,000 a year. The members of the Government, on the other hand, contend that it is the duty of the Governor to pay his own servants, and that his salary of $50,000 is quite sufficient for that purpose. The dispute has gone so far that there is now no paid servant about Rideau Hall. The Governor has signed even the head-gardener, Mr. Soley, that his services are no longer required by them, and other officials have also been discharged.—Correspondent Montreal Witness.
LATEST INTELLIGENCE from the Cape of Good Hope is to the effect that there was great excitement there in consequence of the diamond fields turning out very rich. Large parties were leaving daily for the diamond fields; some of the frontier towns were almost depopulated. The plaster on a small homestead and crowd joining Duffonten was found scuttled with small diamonds instead of sand. Many persons were man-slug great wealth.
The pie of the period, says a Boston paper, is the Duffin. It is a compound of Fall fruit, rye flour and native genius, with about the flavor and juiciness of a ten-acre lot. The pie, which is good, is protected by a crust of some ten bazaar-proof, safe power, and families who owned pie-mining tools have been known to drive to death on the outside of a Duffin.
