

SAW SUTTON GET BEATING.

Lieutenant Willing Says Adams Was Punching Him.

Eyewitness Adds Testimony to the Suicide Theory.

Dead Man's Mother Denies Story Regarding Life Insurance.

Annapolis, Mr., July 21.—Two important points were brought out to-day in the testimony as to how Lieut. James N. Sutton came to his death here on the night of October 12th, 1908, when Lieutenant R. S. Willing, of the marine corps, who was officer of the day on the night of Sutton's death and an eyewitness to the tragedy, told of seeing Lieutenant Robert E. Adams beating Sutton a few minutes before the fatal shot was fired and described the manner in which he obtained possession of the revolver alleged to have been used by Sutton and the disposition he made of them.

Lieut. W. H. Bevan, another eyewitness, who was on the stand yesterday and to-day, said that when he appeared on the scene Sutton was being held down by Lieutenant Uley and Sergeant De Haven, and that Adams was standing beside them, attempting to strike Sutton.

"When I arrived on the scene," said Lieutenant Willing to-day, "I saw a group of men. Detached from the group were Sutton and Adams. Adams was punching Sutton. I heard Lieutenant Bevan tell Adams to stop beating Sutton. I told Bevan to let Adams beat Sutton's head off. I thought it would do him good, but Adams let Sutton go when Bevan, who was an officer of the guard, told him to do so and stepped back. Then I saw somebody, I don't know who, throw Sutton to the ground. "Just then I heard a voice from behind me say: 'Roelker is killed' or 'Roelker is down.' I cannot be sure which. I turned my head toward Roelker, whom I had noticed lying on the ground as I came up. Just then there was a flash and a report from the direction where Sutton was lying on the ground.

"I turned quickly and saw Sutton lying with his right arm stretched along the ground at right angles from his head. I jumped on him, taking him by the back of his neck with my right hand and seizing his wrist with my right hand. My idea was to prevent further use of the revolver by him. As soon as I touched him, however, I knew he was dead. His wrist was absolutely limp. I then picked up the revolver out of his hand and took it to the coroner.

"Are you sure Sutton shot himself?" asked Major Leonard.

"There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that he did," replied Willing.

As to the events that led up to the final shooting, Willing's testimony was, in the main corroborative of that of Adams and Bevan.

When Lieutenant Adams was on the stand during the morning session, Mr. Davis, representing the Suttons, made a point which he and the other Sutton attorneys considered damaging to the outside theory. He showed that while Bevan in his testimony to-day said that when the shot that ended Sutton's life was fired his right arm was stretched out free from his body, before the first court, held the day after the tragedy, Bevan said that both Sutton's arms were folded over his head when the last shot was fired. The Sutton attorneys maintain that Sutton could not possibly have killed himself in the manner described by Bevan, since the wound that caused his death was in the back of his neck.

Mrs. James N. Sutton, the mother of the dead lieutenant, who with her daughter, Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, is in continual attendance at the proceedings, to-day denied flatly the rumor that an insurance company had refused to pay Sutton's life insurance because the first court had found he committed suicide.

WILLING CROSS-EXAMINED. Annapolis, Mr., July 22.—Lieut. Edward S. Willing resumed the witness stand to-day at the opening of the court of inquiry, to investigate the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton, of Oregon. Henry E. Davis, counsel for Sutton's mother, continued his cross-examination of the witness from the point where he had left off yesterday.

Willing, according to his testimony, reached the scene of the tragedy in time to see Lieut. Adams and Lieut. Sutton in a fistfight prior to the shooting. Mr. Davis took the witness over the scene of the fight between Adams and Sutton, but could not materially shake the officer's story. Lieut. Willing is said to be related to the Astors, of New York.

Surgeon George Pickrell, U. S. N., who attended Sutton after he was shot, testified at the inquiry to-day that the bullet entered Sutton's head on top, near the back, and a little to the right. This has been the much disputed point as other physicians have testified that the wound was just back of the right ear. Surgeon Pickrell stated that the shot was fired within two feet of Sutton's head, and, in his opinion, could have been self-inflicted. He stated that Sutton's body showed no other injuries which might have caused his death.

HARDY IS ILL. Hardy, the high wire walker, who has been performing at Maple Leaf Park, had to cancel his engagement for the remainder of the week yesterday, owing to an indisposition. He was able to give only a part of his exhibition on Tuesday. Manager Robertson expects to have another open air feature here by to-morrow for the remainder of the week and next week. He expects to have one of the best features of the season, and is trying to make arrangements with a New York booking office to-day.

R. FORGET, M.P.

An Interesting Figure in Canadian Finance.

The participation of Mr. R. Forget, M. P., of Montreal, with Messrs. A. E. Ames & Co., Limited, of Toronto, in the public offering of 15,000 shares common stock of the Duluth-Superior Traction Company, draws further attention to the Provinces of Ontario and Manitoba to this most interesting French-Canadian financier. Mr. Forget's special field of influence is the Province of Quebec, where he has for years been a member of Parliament, and while an opponent of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he is known for his keenness in large financial transactions, but his operations are so extensive that he is well-known all over Canada.

Although not yet 50 years of age, Mr. Forget occupies many influential positions, being, amongst other things, President of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company, Vice-President of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company, and Director of the Quebec Railway, Light & Power Company. Mr. Forget has been President, at different periods, of the Montreal Stock Exchange, and through a very busy man has such facilities for putting through his work that he is able to take up new transactions and handling them in a much stronger way than most people can do who have much more time upon their hands.

A few years ago Mr. Forget became a member of Parliament, and while an opponent of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he is known for his keenness in large financial transactions, but his operations are so extensive that he is well-known all over Canada.

CONTRACT LET.

London Man Will Build the Dundas Station.

Mr. John Hayman, of London, has been awarded the contract for building the transformer station at Dundas by the Hydro-Electric Commission. The job will mean an expenditure of about $40,000.

It is also probable that he will get the contract for the transformer station at Niagara Falls. This will be a considerably larger contract, and will keep the contractors busy for some time.

Friday Bargains.

Friday, bargain day at Finch Bros., is becoming one of the most important shopping days of the week, for it can easily be seen by to-morrow's important sale events. Another striking evidence is that their sales have been doubled on bargain day. They have planned for another record day to-morrow and if women will accept the greatest savings of the year are bound to have it. Those who have week-end shopping to do may find it more convenient to do it to-morrow. At any rate, Friday shopping will be profitable, whether in the morning or afternoon. Don't you think you had better try it to-morrow?—Finch Bros.

SOLDIER KILLS HIS FIANCEE.

Private O'Neil at Fort Leavenworth Shoots Because Jealous.

Captain Dodges a Bullet Behind a Door.

Slayer Twice Escapes and is Caught When Troops Take Up Hunt.

Leavenworth, Kas., July 22.—Private Charles O'Neil, of the military garrison guard, shot down Miss Minnie Sharboro, his sweetheart, in the presence of several army officers and their wives in Grant avenue, at Fort Leavenworth, shortly before noon to-day.

O'Neil was jealous of the girl and called at the home of Capt. Charles N. Murphy, where she was employed as a maid, just after reveille, and tried to quarrel with her.

O'Neil then came to Leavenworth and purchased a double action revolver and called on the girl second time at Capt. Murphy's home. He displayed the weapon and told the girl he intended to kill her and himself with it.

The girl ran upstairs to her mistress's room and locked herself in while Mrs. Murphy telephoned for help.

O'Neil ran away before Lieut. Russell Hand, the officer of the day, arrived with soldiers. The man was captured on the western parade and taken to the front door of Capt. Murphy's home, while the girl was asked to step to the door to identify the prisoner. O'Neil had the revolver concealed and pulled it out unnoticed, fired under Lieut. Hand's arm, and killed the girl.

He fired four times before the officers and soldiers could overpower him. Murphy escaped a bullet by dodging behind a door.

O'Neil was rushed to the guardhouse and shortly after 1 o'clock was taken to the blacksmith shop, to be shackled in the blacksmith shop. He broke away and reached the timber on Sheridan's drive. Soldiers and guards in the towers of the military prison tried to stop him with bullets, but failed.

A general call was sounded and within ten minutes a squadron of cavalry, mounted engineers, and two battalions were moving.

The cavalry rode on a gallop and patrols were established on the west of Sheridan's drive to prevent his getting out to the north or west. The infantry formed in long skirmish order on the river bank and to the south of the city limits.

O'Neil was cut off from getting off the reservation and soldiers started to beat the timber with instructions to shoot him if he resisted.

After a hunt of five hours, when O'Neil saw that he could not stay in the timber, he started to sneak along the river bank to gain Merrill lake. He was noticed by a trooper, who rode up quickly. O'Neil jumped into the lake and pretended to be trying to drown himself.

The soldier leveled a rifle, made him come out of the water, and marched him up McLeellan avenue to the guardhouse as the recall was sounded. The soldiers came in on the double quick and cheered the captive slayer.

The soldiers showed much bitterness against O'Neil for the disgrace he had brought on the uniform. Miss Sharboro was 20 years old. She lived at Essex Junction, Vt., and came here with an officer's family from Fort Ethan Allen four months ago. The soldiers decided to bury her funeral expenses and will send the body back to her mother.

He was picked up unconscious and taken into Dr. Lachland's office. He recovered consciousness after a short time, but it was an hour before he was able to continue his walk. His back seems to be severely sprained.

Minister of Railways May be to Pay Off Deficit.

Ottawa, July 22.—The Board of Management of the Intercolonial Railway report a steady betterment so far during the present fiscal year in the financial condition of the road. Earnings are increasing and a considerable reduction is being effected in operating expenses. It is expected that with the growing revenue and the cutting down of operating expenses the Minister of Railways will be able to make the gratifying announcement to Parliament at the close of the fiscal year that there has been a surplus of receipts over expenditures sufficient to wipe out the deficit of about $700,000 for last year. For April and May the revenue of the road amounted to $1,469,000.
