those interested in rival roads. This prevented the sale of their stock in the markets of the United States and in the London market, and this renders it impossible for them to raise money now unless at an enormous sacrifice, although their means and resources are ample if they choose to delay the completion of the work to the time named in the contract. People were generally of the opinion that the purchase of so many roads in Ontario and Quebec and the United States was unjustifiable, but Sir Charles and Sir John now say it is quite proper and greatly in the proper and greatly in t

Dominion Parliament.

In the House of Commons, to-day, th petition of the Grand Orange Lodge British America, praying for the act of in orporation, was presented.

Mr. Charlton's bill to make seduction a eriminal offence was read a second time.

Mr. Ouimet moved the second reading of e will to repeal the act prohibiting dual representation. He argued that it was wise to restrict the management of the country's political affairs to as few hands as possible.

The House divided on the motion for the members of the Government, except Messrs. Pope and McLelan, voted yea.

The bill to prevent fraud in connexion with the sale of patent rights was read a with the sactor period of the copies of all orders in council, or departmental orders, and all communications and correspondence respecting the appointment of pondence, respecting the appointment of Samuel Stonge Chapleau as a sheriff in the Northwest territories. He quoted from evidence of J. J. Macdonald and Chapleau of selling the secrets of the department to contractors, and also from comments of the Tory organs, who, at the time of his dismis-sal in 1880, declared that he was unfit to remain in the public service. Now the Gov-ernment had appointed this man to the important and lucrative position of sheriff of the Northwest. Such a proceeding was scandalous in the extreme and called for the highest condemnation.

Sir John Macdonald apologized for Mr. Sir John Macdonald apologized for Mr. Chapleau's appointment by arguing that no it doubt he had been guilty of grave indiscretion, but that he had suffered enough, and the position given him was inferior to that which he formerly held. The man should have a chance of retrieving his fortunes.

As the population of a province increased charges for education, charities and administration of justice also increased, while the provincial revenue was fixed. All benefits of incial revenue was fixed. All benefits of increased population accrued to the federal government. After remarks by Messrs.
Landry and Onimet the motion passed.
Sir Richard Cartwright moved a resolution censuring the Finance Minister for his conduct in loaning $300,000 to the bankrupt Exchange Bank. He said the Minister was fully warned of the condition of the bank, and had been guilty of gross misconduct in denositing money with such an institution. depositing money with such an institution. Had he understood his responsibility he certainly would never have loaned $300,000 to a bank whose capital was only $500,000. The example of the Minister of Finance had induced others to deposit with the bank, and these people had lost their money. The official monthly statement of the bank showed that the institution was bankrupt when the Government leap was obtained. showed that the institution was datakript when the Government loan was obtained, and Sir Leonard had enabled the bank to keep afloat for some time, and during that time the assets were squandered by officials. It would have been better had the bank suspended five months before it did. The practice of loaning public money upon the personal security of members of Parliament appropring the Government was a most imsupporting the Government was a most im-proper and corrupt proceeding which could not be justified by apy method of reasoning.
