SOMETHING TO THINK OVER.

You are aware that you cannot go without food and still retain your strength; yet you do neglect the exercise and recreation necessary to perfect health and long life. Why don't you buy a bicycle, ride it and add ten long years to your life? You can then, with clear brain and added energy, accomplish more than you do now, and in less time. With an easy-running Stearns Bicycle you can save enough time to enable you to make delightful outings. The Stearns is called the Yellow Fellow because of its orange finish; we have it in black if you prefer.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

For six years I suffered from cancer, and go no relief until I used Burdock Blood Bitters. I used seven bottles faithfully, when the cancer gradually dried up and finally disappeared. I am now entirely well and rejoice that by using B. B. B. I have escaped death either from the surgeons knife or from the cancer itself.

SHORTNESS OF BREATH.

"Since last year I have had serious trouble caused by malaria. Shortness of breath, smothering spells on lying, violent palpitations, etc., often made me gasp for breath. On procuring Minard's Heart and Nerve Pills I found to my surprise and delight that they gave almost instant relief. I got healthy restful sleep, my heart troubles disappeared, and I now feel very well and strong indeed." Mr. Hugh Moore, Ingersoll, Ont. makes this statement for the public good.

Sick Headache and Constipation are promptly cured by Burdock Pills. Easy to take, sure in effect.

UNDOUBTEDLY THE BEST.

GENTLEMEN—I wish to say that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has proved a wonderful remedy in my family. We would not be without for twice its price. I say it is THE BEST, (not merely one of the best) and its medicine never brought before the public for summer complaints or diarrhoea, either in children or adults. JOHN UNDERHILL, License Commissioner, Strathclair, Ont.

Minard's Liniment is the best.

WRONG HEART ACTION.

Wrong action of the heart causes nervousness, nervous dyspepsia, shortness of breath, and other distressing symptoms. Mr. Samuel Yolland, of London, Ont., was cured of these troubles by taking Minard's Heart and Nerve Pills. Mr. Yolland says: "They are a remarkable medicine, and I have not been troubled in the least since taking them."

Minard's Pills

Are prepared from vegetable medicines only. The combination is so carefully arranged as to meet all cases when a Cathartic is necessary. They not only evacuate the bowels, but will open the system and expel foul humors from the organs. Their action is gentle and thorough. Without any painful advertisements, we send these Pills forth to make their own market, as our Liniment has already done. A TRIAL IS ALL THAT IS NECESSARY TO ESTABLISH SUCCESS.

Are you Bilious, have you a Sick Headache, Colic, Jaundice, Constipation, Nervous Debility, Disordered Stomach, or Kidneys, Dyspepsia? Do you feel dull and heavy, or pain or fullness in the head? In all such cases use these Pills a few times and all will be well with you. They will often break up a cold by taking a good dose at night, taking a light supper and bathing the feet in hot water.

The Housing of the Poor.

The July number of the North American Review has an article by Lord Monkswell on "The Housing of the English Poor," which gives an excellent idea of the way the unfortunate poverty-stricken people in Great Britain and Ireland were lodged from about 1842 down to the present time, when there has been a great change for the better. The paper begins with a reference to the days, in 1851, when Lord Shaftesbury routed a strange coalition of out-and-out Radicals and Tories, and persuaded the Legislature to make life tolerable in fact, and then turned his attention to impressing upon Parliament the necessity of so ordering the home life of the poor that the maintenance of common decency would not be impossible. He introduced, while still in the House of Commons, under the title of Lord Ashley, a bill to promote the erection of lodging-houses for the poor.

It seems almost incredible that such misery could exist in a civilized community as he describes in the statement that in 1842 in St. George's Hanover Square, London, the richest parish in the city, there were nine hundred and twenty-nine families occupying only one room each, and that in the poor parts of London he knew, from personal observation, that there were five families, numbering twenty-five persons, or even more, in one room, and from the report of a city missionary he made, to strengthen his appeal for immediate relief, the following pertinent quotation: "In my district is a house containing eight rooms, which are all let separately to individuals who furnish and re-let them. The parlor measures eighteen by ten feet. On each side of the room are arranged beds composed of straw, shaving rags, etc. In this one room slept, on the night previous to my inquiry, twenty-seven male and female adults, thirty-one children, and two or three dogs. In one district alone there were two hundred and seventy such rooms, which were never cleaned or ventilated, and which literally swarmed with vermin. It is almost impossible to breathe," the report continues; "missionaries are seized with vomiting or fainting upon entering them." From the town clerk of Morpeth it was learned that some lodging-houses "have no beds, but their occupants are packed upon the floor in rows, the head of one being close to the feet of another. Each body is placed so close to its neighbor as not to leave a space on which to set a foot." Not the least distinction of sex was made, and the effect on morals with such a state of things existing was horrible.

Lord Shaftesbury gave a number of instances equally as bad, and no wonder these revelations made a deep impression upon the House. His act, which was passed, did not oblige anybody to do anything, we are told, but was simply a permissive measure, giving power to local authorities to erect lodging-houses, the local power endowed with this power being the vestrie. It is a singular fact that the act remained a dead letter for forty years except in Ireland, till the first London County Council availed itself of its provisions, as modified by subsequent acts, to build, near the slums of Drury Lane, a model lodging-house, in which there was a large room devoted to reading and recreation.

Lord Salisbury moved for the appointment of a royal commission on the housing of the working classes, and in March, 1884, Sir William Harcourt, as home secretary, nominated a commission, of which the Prince of Wales was a working member. There was, of course, a great improvement, at this time, over the condition of the poor lodgers described by Lord Shaftesbury, but still families of seven, eight and nine persons were occupying small, dark rooms, and lodgers were sometimes taken in where grown-up sons and daughters slept in the same room. In many tenement houses the street door was always kept open, and this gave tramps an opportunity to secure lodging in the passage-ways and on the stairways, without paying the fourpence charged for a place to sleep at a common lodging-house, or "doss house," as it is called by the homeless. These intruders were known as "appy-dossers."

The standard of living is now being raised, without doubt, and Lord Rowton, an expert and enthusiast on working-men's dwellings and one of the prime movers of the Guinness Trust, is of the opinion that the demand for tenements containing only a single room is decreasing, and that new buildings will have to be erected on more commodious lines than have hitherto been adopted. The improvement in London is due to the fact that there is a thorough exploration of the crowded parts of the metropolis, not only by the medical officer and sanitary inspector, but by an army of philanthropists, and by missions started and maintained and begged for by clergymen of all denominations, and by nurses and Sisters who are devoted to the work of aiding the poor to lead more healthful and cleanly lives.—Sacred Heart Review.

Catholicity on the Yukon.

MONTREAL, July 20.—The Sisters of St. Anne, whose mother house is at Lachine, have had missions in Alaska for the past twelve or thirteen years, and they are about to establish a fourth station at St. Michael's. Here they will build a hospital, which will be a boon to the miners for miles around. The order is primarily a teaching one, but it is not expected that the ladies who are to be placed at the new station will have much of that to do, at least for some time to come, so that they will be entirely at liberty to devote themselves to nursing and administering spiritual consolation to those who may fall ill so far from home and friends. The founder of the St. Michael mission is Sister Mary Stephen, Superioress of the Order in the Yukon district, who went up there from Victoria, B. C., some nine years ago. She started a mission at Koserefski, a couple of hundred miles up the Yukon River, where there is now a flourishing Indian school. She came east in November last with one of the Sisters, whose health had broken down, and while here discussed with the Superior General, Rev. Mother Marie De L'Ange Gardien, and her colleagues the desirability of providing some hospital accommodation for the hundreds who were seeking the gold fields. Sister Mary Stephen returned to her duties in May, and took out with her from the Lachine House five members of the order to strengthen the little band now working in Alaska and the Yukon district. Since her return, she has entered into occupation of the St. Michael Mission, and is getting her hospital into shape. Two more Sisters left Lachine on Monday of last week en route for St. Michael's, although the fact was not known at the Archbishop's palace when inquiry was made yesterday. The two Sisters travelled via the G. P. R. to San Francisco, where they arrived today. Until the steamer sails they will be the guests of the convent of the Holy Family in that city. The two ladies are Sister Mary of the Cross, known in the world as Miss Peterson of Victoria, B. C., and Sister Mary Magdalen of the Sacred Heart, formerly Miss Goulet, of Holyoke, Mass. These will be the last members of the order to leave for this district for a considerable time. The ladies of St. Anne have been established on the Pacific slope for the greater part of half a century, and have been pioneers in the cause of education in British Columbia. About a dozen years ago they extended their operations into the frozen north and opened a mission at Juneau, in Alaska. Subsequently a hospital was built, and this has proved a great boon to the people for many hundred miles around. Sick and wounded people from far distant points are brought into the little hospital to be nursed back to health and strength, and the Sisters also do a deal of nursing among the families resident in the town. The second Alaska mission was founded at Koserefski, and a third at another Indian village near there. At both these places there are very few whites, and the teaching done is principally in the Indian schools. When the latest recruits get there the total number of Sisters in the Alaskan field will be nearly twenty. All the supplies come from San Francisco, leaving there by steamer in the month of June, and being transhipped to Yukon River boats. The charity of the ladies at the various missions leads them to be generous with their stores to those who are starving, and as a consequence they frequently have to go on pretty short rations in winter. A few years ago Sister Mary Stephen had to travel 500 miles with dog sleds to get provisions to keep her companions from starving. One of the Sisters who has been in the Yukon district describes it as bare and desolate. The cold is intense, and is rendered keener in some places by high winds. At one of the Jesuit missions on the coast the wind blows a gale at times, and the fathers have had to put up ropes to hold on by in crossing from their school to the chapel. There are comparatively few whites, and the Indians do not prove as tractable as might be wished. At Koserefski the Jesuits have a school, and have had a good deal of trouble with their Indian pupils.

Cardinal Jacobini's Letter.

The following letter has been addressed to the Catholic Bishops in all parts of the world: Most Illustrious and Most Reverend Sir: You have doubtless become aware of a project advanced by a number of men of great piety to get the faithful throughout the universe at the close of the present century to affirm in a solemn manifestation by a series of religious exercises their love and gratitude to the All-Powerful Redeemer of the human race. The design of these men in this initiative was to respond to the desire of our Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII., who wished to consecrate this epoch of transition from one century to another by an extraordinary invocation of the divine assistance of Jesus Christ as the happy presage of peace and concord. Now, the project of these personages having received the full approbation of His Holiness, and Catholic delegates from all nations have assembled in Congress at Rome to promote its realization, it has pleased the Sovereign Pontiff to select me, without any merit on my part as honorary president of the committee. Here, assuredly, is a noble task and I own that I am proud and happy to undertake it. For what could be more agreeable to my feelings than the occasion so favorably presented to me at the end of my days to employ all the strength that is still left me in promoting the glory of our Saviour, all the more, too, in these last days of a departing century? And what a century has been this of ours in which proud men, relying on a science unworthy of the name and displaying an activity which might be called feverish, have carried their audacious temerity to the extent of calling in question the origin of Christianity, or even presenting as a fiction, as a lying legend, faith in the Divine person of the Saviour! Wherefore we shall fervently strive to make reparation for the great injuries done to our Master, to appease God's anger by our prayers, to exalt in psalms of praise the holy name of Jesus Christ, who is the splendor of the glory and the perfect image of the substance of God. Such will be the task in which we shall put forth all our zeal at the dawn of the new century. Uniting, therefore as closely as possible under one head the efforts of all, by striking acts of piety and reparation, by the publication of desirable works, by the great voice of the best daily papers, and, finally, by public demonstrations of affection for the Roman Pontiff, we shall gladly succeed in celebrating these grand solemnities in the joy of our hearts, and in an imposing concert, as it were, of the voices of all nations. In this way we shall clearly show forth our close alliance of will, the wonderful unity of the Church, and the perfect union of the faithful with its head. Moreover, the triumph of the Holy Family in that city. The two ladies are Sister Mary of the Cross, known in the world as Miss Peterson of Victoria, B. C., and Sister Mary Magdalen of the Sacred Heart, formerly Miss Goulet, of Holyoke, Mass. These will be the last members of the order to leave for this district for a considerable time. Pure Blood

Blood means sound health. With pure, rich, healthy blood, the stomach and digestive organs will be vigorous, and there will be no dyspepsia, Rheumatism and Neuritis will be unknown. Scrofula and Salt Rheum will disappear. With pure blood your nerves will be strong, and your sleep sound, sweet and refreshing. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood. That is why it cures so many diseases. That is why so many thousands take it to cure disease, retain good health, prevent sickness, and suffering. Remember Hood's Sarsaparilla.

An Old Manuscript.

A manuscript which, it is claimed, dates from the beginning of the third century, is among the late discoveries of the Egyptian Exploration Society at Oxyrhynchus. It is said to contain certain sayings of Jesus, which can be hardly accepted as genuine, though there is no reason to doubt that the manuscript belongs to the period named, for many writings of a similar kind were plenty in the early centuries of the Christian era. The reappearance of some of these forgeries is not surprising when we consider the thoroughness of modern researches, but they are merely remains of the counterfeit gospels and epistles which were once made with a view of deceiving the faithful. They are only literary curiosities like Ireland's forgeries of Shakespeare, or Chatterton's pre-
