Dryden: Knows her man, and when you rant and swear, raw foot to her with a single hair.

Fun and Fancy.

The young woman who bites her finger nails and kisses her pug dog on the nose would fall in a stony faint at seeing her father nip a piece of the butter lump with his own knife.

Leaving home this morning for the office, we kissed our little 4-year-old good-bye, saying to him: "Be a good boy today."

"Larry, my wife and I have both noticed that the townspeople stare at us very hard. I hope you haven't been telling anybody that we are newly married."

"Do you think it would be wrong for me to learn the noble art of self-defence?" a religiously inclined Somerville youth inquired of his pastor.

"You will find it laid down in the last verse of the 15th chapter of Proverbs—a soft answer turneth away wrath."

A Boy's Repulse—In the neighborhood of Hoddam Castle, Dumfriesshire, there was once a tower called the "Tower of Repentance."

A LEFT-HANDED COMPLIMENT.—Not very long ago a man considerably under the influence of drink, entered one of the city omnibuses in Glasgow.

Exercise to the extent of great fatigue does more harm than good.

Chilliness of body dampens the spirits, sours the temper and renders the whole man unlovely.

Life is warmth, growth, repair and power to labor, and all these are derived from the food we eat and the fluid we drink, and these should be good.

Never sit or stand with the wind blowing on you for a single moment, for it speedsily produces a chill, to be followed with a fever and an aching cold.

The thinnest veil or silk handkerchief thrown over the face while riding or walking against a cold wind is a remarkably comfortable protection.

Cleanliness in all the surroundings of a family mansion pays richly in many ways of good health, moral elevation, personal comfort and dollars and cents besides.

Nature is very much like a shieldless child, who the more he is helped the more he looks for it. The more medicine a man takes the more he will have to take whether it be anodyne, tonic or alterative.

The average breakfast is slighted. In the morning hurry, the importance of its being good and wholesome is overlooked.

Surely, when one comes to think of it, the first meal of the day ought to be something better than the hashed-up remains of yesterday's dinner.

It is not necessary that a breakfast should be elaborate, but it should be particularly well-cooked, appetizing and nourishing.

If one is to fight business battles successfully, he must go forth in the morning strengthened in the inner man.

Well-fed men ordinarily know little of the craving for stimulants that gnaws at the stomach of the poorly nourished laborer.

Wives and mothers who would save their husbands and sons from the drink fiend can not too early learn this lesson.

Fresh fruit is always a most acceptable and healthful addition to any breakfast, when the family exchequer will possibly allow it.

A little indulgence in that luxury in the spring would often save many a doctor's bill.

Variety is also another point which should be aimed at. It is particularly antagonistic to early rising to know that one is getting up to the same over-lavishing breakfast of mush, fried potatoes and weak coffee.

Never Too Late to Mend.

Socrates, at an extreme old age, learned to play on musical instruments.

Cato, at eighty years of age, began to study the Greek language.

Pitarch, when between seventy and eighty, commenced to study Latin.

Boccaccio was thirty years of age when he commenced his studies in light literature; yet he became one of the greatest masters of the Tuscan dialect, Dante and Pitarch being the other two.

Sir Henry Spellman neglected the sciences in his youth, but commenced the study of them when he was between fifty and sixty years of age.

Dr. Johnston applied himself to the Dutch language but a few years before his death.

Ludovico Mondalasco, at the great age of 115 years, wrote the memoirs of his own time.

Ogilby, the translator of Homer and Virgil, was unacquainted with Latin and Greek till he was past fifty.

Franklin did not commence his philosophical results till he reached his fiftieth year.

Dryden, in his sixty-eighth year commenced the translation of the Æneid, his most pleasing production.—[Ex.]

Farm and Garden.

Green clover turned under will increase the fertility of land five times as much as the same crop left on the surface to ripen and dry up, and then plowed under.

If you are doubtful about the economy of using the finest potatoes for seed try a bush at least, and see for yourself which will produce the most and largest tubers.

Where plaster can be had for from $3 to $5 per ton the man who neglects to sow it neglects one of the best means of enriching his land, for plaster will help the clover, and clover the land.

Plaster is also very beneficial to peas. Sow from one to two bushels per acre.

Sheep breeding is an art at the present day. Breeders have classified sheep into breeds best adapted for either mutton or wool, and the mutton sheep have been classified into heavy and large breeds, while those bred for wool are divided into long wools, fine wools and middle wools.

When lime or ashes is mixed with guano, hen manure or other fertilizers containing ammonia, or readily yielding it, there is a loss of a valuable constituent.

Turpentine has so strong an odor that it will prevent predations of most insects, and on a small scale is one of the best applications that can be made.

In the old days it was plain calf's head soup, but now it is mock turtle. Veal serves as a disguise for a great deal of gastronomic humbug and deception nowadays.

Canned food dealers are miserable because of the many poisonous reports of illness created by partaking of it, and they declare they are the victims of foul conspiracy.

Young Man of Business (to his Senior Partner): "You'll excuse me, but don't you think it's a bad habit to always have your hands in your pockets?"

Mr. Moreton Frewen commences an article in the Pall Mall Gazette with: "Why! meat dear? Because the market 'out of joint,' how can meat help being dear?"

Mr. Chamberlain may not know much about the construction of ships of the mercantile navy of England, but he is, undoubtedly, intimately acquainted with the composition of its (her) crew.

Henry Irving, at a banquet in London recently, stated that Americans eat with more intelligence than the people of any other country. Just what he intended to convey by the remark is as misty as a London fog.

Eels, frogs and snails are in greater demand this season than ever before, especially frogs, the supply of which is never adequate.

In Berlin has been started a restaurant bearing as its title, "Erste Berliner Rostfleisch und Wurst-Ess-Stube."

It is curious, says an exchange, how few people know the benefit of fruit at breakfast time.

The Presbytery of Huron met in Willis church, Clinton, on the 9th inst.

Menials of Gastronomy.

Advanced epicures say that soft-shell crabs should be fried in olive oil instead of lard or butter.

Combination salads are the latest. They are made of a 'little of everything,' and nobody wants to be helped a second time.

Early and very much cultivated celery has appeared, but does not amount to much, and is not suitable for ornamenting dinner tables.

Some physicians say that fruit is infinitely better than meat in warm weather, and this is how they make enemies of the butcher.

A perfect cook should have a sound head, a sure taste and delicate palate. There are few perfect cooks.

First of all the cookery books came from Spain as long ago as 1690, and a copy is in possession of Dubois, chef to the Emperor William.

Dealers say that so many ugly stories have been published about lobsters that people are prejudiced and the sale of them are decreasing.

To fritters are something new in gastronomy, and are traced to Frielli, of Philadelphia. They are in shape like the waffle, and have a very pleasant taste of Oolong.

A cook's value and importance, says an authority, depend not so much upon what he knows as upon the manner in which he dishes up his knowledge.

At fashionable dinner parties where the fish is Spanish mackerel, lemon juice in a tiny jar is placed at each plate, and is considered best to use instead of any sauce.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS. FROM THE SON: "33 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882."

Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and a gradual letter will tell you what a marvelous effect

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago.

From the father: "It is both a duty for me to state to you the pleasure and benefit I have derived from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved.

ATHE'S SANSAPARILLA cures Scrofula, all Scrofulous Complaints, Eczyema, Eruptions, Ringworms, Blotches, Sores, Dells, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin.

PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.
