CAIRO. Interesting Letter from the Land of the Pharaohs.

Description of the City-The Citadel-The Bunka Museum-About Egyptian "Wheat"-Joseph's Well-The Tombs of the Hieroglyphs.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SIGNAL.

Shepherd's hotel, situated in the heart of the city of Cairo, is a rambling, roomy, old building, effectively ornamented around the high veranda entrance by a drove of donkeys all standing tail-on towards the steps, with their motley crowd of drivers expectantly awaiting some one to employ them. Every donkey rejoices in a more or less immortal march may for a couple of francs have the exquisite pleasure of striding George Washington, Stonewall Jackson, Abe Lincoln, DeLoe, Moshmet Ali, Garfield, Gladstone, Durah, Napoleon, Jay Gould or any other man of mark, and be chased through the streets a gallop by two to pay two boys with long sticks incessantly applying these gentle persuaders to the backs of these illustrious named animals. Or it may be Mary Anderson, Lily Langtry, Queen Victoria, Empress Eugenie or the Sultan, are highly recommended on beasts of burden and last, not least, it was an amusing sight to see us next morning scurrying through the NARROW STREETS AND BAZARS. each on a miserable rat of a donkey requiring two boys to keep it running, curleing now and again bumping against the rough pavement or our heads striking some low arched passage-way in the labyrinth of foul alleyways and streets. But it is the proper thing to do in Cairo, and everyone who has visited the old city and has not had a sail on the Nile and a ride on a donkey has not fully done Egypt. Here in this famous Oriental city, so often mentioned in the Arabian Nights, we have nearly five hundred thousand people, about one-tenth of whom are Europeans.

THE MODERN PART OF THE CITY is very French. The houses are high and showy and somewhat Parisian in architecture; the city abounds in cafes, where in the night music and dancing resounds till morning. The dress of the better class Egyptian is of the latest Parisian style except the head-gear, a round sugar loaf shaped article of a dark red color called a fez; the principal houses here are French; and next to Arab, French is more widely spoken than any other tongue in this polyglot city. While wandering about in Cairo streets the traveller has many golden glimpses into the mysteries of Oriental life; Moslem tradesmen going to or returning from their work; a gorgeous turbaned fat and tuming Arab, dressed in superb silks and golden corded raiment; a Turkish lady astride her donkey with a puffed out balloon shaped dress of bulky blackness, closely veiled, but her large black eyes shining forth in liquid lustre; the waterman with a donkey-skin flask over his shoulder, fruit-pedlars carrying their grapes, figs, watermelons, limes; or the flower seller his roses, each one surpassing the other in the poetical description of his goods; the watermelon is "the conqueror of the emerald," "the rose is a thorn," from the flesh of the prophet it bloomed, meaning simply, fresh roses, for the association of poetic names sheds a silvery sheen over the articles for sale; the probability of seeing some one shake hands over your head as you pass by in the narrow streets. The hundreds of donkeys passing and re-passing you with their gaily colored and embroidered saddles; the numerous goldsmiths' open stalls with rich wares displayed for sale on either side of you, and the advertisement display of fresh stock in trade of the bazaar—a withered arm, sightless eyes, legless, armless, noseless, or deformed in body, which to them is a blessing bestowed by Nature or chance, for they need never do further work—all these sights and picturesque Oriental wonders create a fresh surprise at every step. The principal place of historic note in the city is

THE CITADEL built nearly 800 years ago from stone brought from the outer casing of one of the pyramids. The citadel is in itself a small town and is overshadowed by one of the largest and finest mosques in Egypt. It was built by Mohammed Ali about the beginning of this century, and is named after him. From the elevation on which the citadel and mosque stand a magnificent view is obtained of the Nile valley, the city and surrounding country. The city looks a perfect wilderness of flat roofs, palm trees, minarets, moving donkeys and camels, and away to the west the glittering sands of the Lybian Desert stretch as far as the eye could reach. Close to the citadel is what is claimed to be Joseph's Well, hewn in the rock to a depth of 300 feet, and on a level with the waters of the Nile. It was, doubtless, hewn out by the ancient Egyptians, but there is no proof that Joseph had anything to do with its origin. The city has some ten palaces, all of modern date, built by the later rulers of Egypt for their relatives and favorites. One of the principal attractions to the traveller is

THE BUNKA MUSEUM where is to be found the largest, most valuable and most instructive collection of Egyptian antiquities in the world. Colossal sphinxes, lions, obelisks, sacred bulls, jackals, ibis-headed men, ram-headed men and a thousand and one statues and statuettes emblematic of ancient Egyptian divinities, are all worthy of notice for the fineness of workmanship, the value of the material of which they are composed as well as their peculiarly symbolic meaning. I noticed a dog composed entirely of granite, a cow of a peculiar red Jasper, and fish, geese, frogs and monkeys of lapis lazuli. All these monuments bear hieroglyphics such as the mystic eye; triangles, symbolical of equality; oxen; of sacrifices; mountains, of the place of the blessed; rings, of eternity; a bundle, of the resurrection, purity, stability and divine life, and other strange symbols that would take a lifetime to understand. In the mummy hall I counted seventy-four mummies, the cases of which are in a perfect state of preservation and which have depicted in flaming colors the hieroglyphic history of the occupants. There are also collections of corn, wheat, bread, raisins, eggs and rice which were found in the mummy cases and were doubtless placed there to satisfy the hunger of the gravel-stained pilgrims on their way to the brighter world.

THE OLD VILLAGES that was so often sprung on the unsuspecting farmers in Canada a few years ago about the wonderful Egyptian wheat that was found in the mummy cases, and had rested there for thousands of years awaiting the hand of modern husbandry to bring it forth and sow it in fertile soil, when it would germinate and bring forth a thousand fold, proved to be without foundation.

For cleaning brass use a thin paste of plate powder, two table-spoonsful of vinegar, four table-spoonsful of alcohol. Rub with a piece of flannel; polish with chamois. To preserve the elasticity of Indian rubber, wash it five or six times a week with slightly alkaline water. Corks may be made air and water tight by keeping them for five minutes under melted paraffine; they must be kept down with a wire screen. In mixing mustard for table use never add vinegar, which destroys its life and flavor. Boil water for moistening it, and let the water then become blood-warm.

A good handful of rock salt added to the bath is the next best thing after an "ocean dip," and a gargle of a weak solution is a good and ever-ready remedy for a sore throat. Perfect Health. Can only be attained by carefully attending to the laws of nature as expressed in the system. To do this successfully requires the use of Burdock Blood Bitters occasionally, to secure the regulating and strengthening effect of this splendid medicine.

In nervous prostration, rest and sleep are the first indispensable conditions. A change is always in order to make them possible. The diet must be generous, the food well masticated and eaten slowly. There are many indications of worms, but Dr. Low's Worm Syrup meets them in every case successfully. Im To take rust out of steel rub the steel with sweet oil; in a day or two rub with finely powdered unslacked lime un-til again, roll in sand, and put in a dry place, especially if it be table cutlery.

Enlaid Power. Burdock Blood Bitters unites in one combination remarkable powers as a tonic, blood-purifying, system-regulating and clearing medicine. It has no equal in its power or curing all Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and Blood. 2 When a hinge creaks put a little graphite of soft lead pencil on the place of friction. Enrich the Blood by the use of Milk-Berry, Iron and Wine, which supplies the necessary blood building material. In a severe sprain of the ankle-membrane the joint as soon as possible in a pint of hot water, and keep it there for fifteen or twenty minutes. After removing it keep it bandaged with hot cloths wrung out of water, or rum and water. How it Works. The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it works at one and the same time upon the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in chronic complaints. 2 One of the cheapest and best modes of destroying insects in pot plants is to invert the pot and dip the plants for a few seconds in water warmed to 130°. A German paper, referring to this plan, says that the azaleas will stand 133° without injury. We usually heat the water pretty well, and pour in cool until 130° is reached.

In Brief, and to the Point. Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order. Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cooking, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things, which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics. But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business, and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy. Remember: No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents. Bewly

Grandiose Superstitions. There are thousands who believe it is healthy to rise early in the morning; whereas it is a hygienic crime for a man to get up before he wants to. The desire to sleep late in the morning is one of nature's most emphatic intimations that more time is needed for repairs. For a man to go to work in the morning in a sleepy semi-comatose condition is simply gradual suicide. There is another popular delusion that a man should stop eating while he is yet hungry. He might as well stop breathing before his lungs are filled. Hunger is the barometer that tells the state of the stomach. A man is never hungry unless he ought to eat. There is another delusion that night air is unhealthy—as if any one could get anything but night air at night. There is really no air as unhealthy as day air bottled up and kept until night. There has been no air discovered for preserving air like huckleberries by bottling.

Ladies Bew! The complexion is only rendered unsightly by Pimples, Liver Spots and Yellowness. This is well known and caused from an inactive Liver and bad blood. Dr. Chase's Liver Cure purifies the blood and whole system. See Receipts Book for toilet recipes, hints and suggestions on how to preserve the complexion. Sold by all druggists.

Household Hints.

Apple sauce is much improved by the addition of a tablespoonful of butter, and requires less sugar. A solution of pearlash in water thrown upon the fire, will extinguish it immediately. The best way when hot grease has been spilled on a floor is to dash cold water over it, so as to harden it quickly and prevent it striking into the boards.

Farm and Garden.

Helps in Farming. One of the most successful helps in farming or, in fact in any business is an exact knowledge, as near as can be obtained, of the business as laid out in one's own mind, before operations actually commence with the hands. And, therefore, a journal of one's own actual work and of his men, as worked out day by day, if honestly set down every night, becomes of great value to himself, and, as the years go by, of more and more importance. It is a chart of his life, of his farm and of his financial standing, as written out by his own hand. Some years ago such a journal in a neighboring county, kept by a painstaking and accurate farmer, settled a very important law suit, and thus saved hundreds of dollars and much anxiety of mind.

Keep a journal, therefore, I urge upon every farmer. It will only require five minutes' time every night, and as the season will open now—the first of the coming month—is the time to begin. First give a history of the weather—clear, cloudy, hot or cold—then write down what work you do yourself, and then what your hands do. If you make a sale put it down; if you crop or plant, set down. Take an account of the different trees as they leaf out and bloom, note when the different varieties of birds put in an appearance. It will be interesting to you in a short time and very useful. Such a journal have I kept for some twenty odd years and my parents before me, and I prize it highly.

By keeping such an account, and having your fields all numbered, in a few years you can tell how many days it will require to prepare each field for a crop, and the yield (approximately depending upon the season) from each field. Your farm work will be lifted above mere drudgery into the realm of active thought, and it becomes brain work, and brain work pays.

For instance, turning to my journal for last year I find I planted corn the 3rd, 4th and 5th of May; ground mellow as in good order. On the 7th, being showery, set out cabbage and tomato plants, each with a ball of earth attached. On the 12th of the same month, worked early peas and potatoes, and so on throughout the year. And as you work you can note any little experiments as to soil, as to the character of certain manures, the value of lime, either on soil, or on plowed land, etc., etc.

A farm scale is also valuable, costing a trifling sum as compared to its usefulness. It also tends to make one particular feature of his work so that at a glance one can know what its weight may be, and by reading the market reports you can figure out its value in a few moments. You will thus save, maybe, several days' work to obtain it. 2 Keep a journal. Be accurate to note down what transpires. Be honest with yourself and your farm, and at the end of each month sum up the work done, and at the end of the year add the entire months together, grouping the several items work to obtain it. A good item will cost more at the close of one year than it will at the beginning of another. It is a sure profit, and if a failure, how it may be overcome.—Baltimore American.

A Good Offer is made by the proprietors of Hagyard's Yellow Oil, who have long offered to repaid for that remedy if it fails to give satisfaction on a free trial for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sore Throat and all painful complaints for which it is recommended. 2 If on wish a single shrub to ornament a front yard or court, the most desirable is a hybrid rhododendron. A good item will cost more at the close of one year than it will at the beginning of another. It is a sure profit, and if a failure, how it may be overcome.—Baltimore American.

Balky Horses.

The Farmer's Irish Gazette gives the following different ways of treating balky horses, which are recommended for trial: First, pat the horse on the neck, examine him carefully, first one side, then the other, if you can get him a handful of grass, give it to him, and speak encouragingly to him. Then jump into the wagon, give the word go, and he will generally obey. Second, take the horse out of the shafts, and turning him around in a circle until he is giddy, will generally start him. Third, another way to cure a balky horse is, place your hand over his nose and shut off his wind until he wants to go. Fourth, then, again, take a couple of turns of stout twine around the fore legs, just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel it; tie in a bow knot. After going a short distance you can get out and remove the string, to prevent injury to the tendons. Fifth, again, you can try the following: Take the tail of the horse between the hind legs, and tie it by a cord to the saddle girth. Sixth, the last remedy that I know is as follows: Tie a string around the horse's ear, close to head. This will divert his attention and start him.

Who is the Duke? In the heart of the village a man is a duke if he wears a leopard patterned coat and shoes blackened twice a day. A little way back in the interior, he is a duke if he wears any coat, whatever on week days in the summer, or has his shoes blackened oftener than semi-annually. I suppose one might go on so far into the "interior" of some other continent, if not of this one, that he would be considered the most dignified sort of a duke if he were anything at all. So of personal habit. There are all stages of the appellation, from setting a man down as a duke because he has a daily bath, to the attitude of the chimney sweep, reported lately in the papers, who proudly stated his determination to "wash his face once a week, whether it needed it or not."—Atlantic Monthly.

The Sirius and the Great Western are generally considered the first steamships to cross the Atlantic. According to a correspondent of the New York Times, the honor really belongs to the Savannah, which left Savannah, Ga., May 25, 1819, reaching Liverpool June 20. Her commander, Capt. Moses Rogers of New London, Ct., also commanded the first steamship on the Hudson, the Delaware, the Chesapeake, and from Charleston to Savannah. The Savannah's log is preserved in the Smithsonian Institute.

"He never smiled again." No "hardly ever" about it. He had an attack of what is called "biliousness," and to smile was impossible. Yet a man may smile and smile, and be a villain still, still he was no villain, but a plain, blunt, honest man, that needed a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which never fail to cure biliousness and indigestion or torpid liver, dyspepsia and chronic constipation.
