The crowd knew Orchard was to come and watched the doors of the room. The prisoner-witness, long confined in the penitentiary, was to be produced. Haywood's mother, Mrs. Carruthers, of Salt Lake City, and her daughter, sat beside the prisoner and his wife, having arrived yesterday. The prisoner's daughters were absent. Haywood had a note book and at intervals took notes of the proceedings.

Horsley had spent the night and morning at the office of Mr. Hawley, and was brought to the court house in a carriage with three armed guards.

The witness then described the relentless trailing of Gregory and his final murder. "Gregory turned and backed up against a fence," said the witness, "as if to draw a gun, and I shot him three times. It certainly killed him."

This account of a blood thirsty man-hunting and murder seemed to affect the nerves of the crowd who listened more than any of the other recitals of the day, and a perceptible shudder went through the room as the calmly talked of the shooting. It was the only instance when a victim had been faced. The other victims had been done to death by mechanical means.
