Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.-In your journal of vesterday there appeared under the cap-tion of "Mr. Crosbie's Version" his side of the case in relation to the dificulty which exists between him and the Longshoremen's Protective Union. Mr. Crosbie's statement is not correct. It is true that he had some trouble or the manner in which it was done but it was one of a purely business character. The facts are: —Peddle had a contract from Mr. Crosbie to discharge the Lady Napier, she having on board a cargo of coal. While Peddle was engaged at the work of discharging, Mr. Crosbie was anxious to have the work done as quick-ly as possible, and with that object in view he sent some of his own men or board to assist in discharging. There were 366 tons of coal discharged from the vessel. When Peddle went to Mr. Crosbie's office to get paid the amount of the contract agreed upon, Mr Crosbie wanted an allowance made for the men which he sent on board to extent of about 120 tons of coal Mr. Crosbie contended otherwise and efused to pay Peddle unless a deduc-

ion to this extent was made. Peddle

The steamship Rescue came to Mr. coal, a contract was made by Mr. Crosbie with Mr. McDonald, stevewith a member of the Union named Peddle would be employed by Mc-Peddle, but not in relation to his work Donald in the doing of the work, told dle. Mr. McDonald told Peddle when he came to look for work that Mr. Crosbie had asked him not to employ him. Peddle then reported to me. I went to Mr. McDonald and asked hir why he did not employ Peddle as he had always done, and he informed me that he had been told by Mr. Crosbie not to do so. I then went to Mr Crosbie to know the reason why h gave orders that Peddle should not b imployed, his reply to me was that if did not get off the premises he would put me in gaol. It being a rule of the Union that no union men can be liscriminated against, I told the me who were employed by McDonald is lischarging the cargo that discrimina ion had been made use of against Peddle, and when informed of the fact hev refused to continue the work of lischarging. I sat one day in my figtree's shade, and watched a man as he plied his spade. The man was old and his steps were weak, and deep were the furrows upon his cheek. I grieved for him as he bravely WORTH wrought, for his task was hard and the day was hot; and the paltry wage that the diggers get won't buy them napkins to dry their sweat. "Old man," I said, with a friendly smile. 'do you really think that your life's worth while?" With red bandana he mopped his head, and leaned his weight on his spade and said: "I am the happiest man in town! Last night I married the Widow Brown!" Then the bridegroom turned to his yawning ditch, and his heart was glad and his life was rich. It often happens, methinks, that those who draw our sympathy for their woes, get more from life than we pampered guys who feed on lobsters and shrimps and Editor Evening Telegram, Dear Sir,—In perusing yesterday's issue of the "Telegram," I was very much surprised to come across an article headed "Mr. A. H. Allen in Wales," "Organ Recitals," and copied from the Denbighshire Free Press." In the early part of the spring Mr Allen had an article in the "Telegram" VIA condemning certain music and poetry sults. as being bad Later on when the message relating to the Investiture of His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, in Carnarvon Castle, was re ceived and which mentioned that the a choir of 400 or 500 voices, I forth-with dropped you a note as a gentle reminder to him, wondering if Their Majesties, the King and Queen, classi-field it good or bad music.

This same historic town of Denbigh, where Mr. Allen gave those recitals, was the birthplace of that celebrated musician, Brinley Richards, who composed that self-same (so-called bad) music. Yesterday a young girl, a general servant with Mr. Hayden, who keeps the post office down the shore from Carbonear, was arrested on a charge Carbonear, was arrested on the control of the
