"BOB" EMBLIE.

Detroit Free Press: Robert D. Embrie, the celebrated National League umpire, is again in the game, having recovered from an accident which he received some weeks ago. Bob Embrie is one of the most popular umpires in the league, and there are very few objections to his decisions. This is partly accounted for by his being so strict with the players. He never quarrels with a player, but will put him out of the game. He has followed baseball all his life, having started when a mere boy in an amateur club, and has played in all the leagues with different teams. He was born in Guelph, Ont., in 1861. His baseball career commenced six years after, when he was mascot for the Silver Creek Brewery nine, of Guelph. His mind went so much to the game that he would run away from school any day to witness a game, and his father decided to make him learn a trade. Accordingly, Bob was apprenticed to a watchmaker at Guelph, but he joined an amateur team in that city, and during the baseball season would be found often on the field than at his bench. He finally decided to devote all his time to the game, and he very readily secured a position with the London team in the old International League. From there he afterwards went to the Western League, and played with different teams. His work was such that he was secured by the Baltimore manager in the big league. He had made such a thorough study of the game that he was soon appointed umpire, and his work in that line has been of a high order. In the winter Bob spends his time in different places. He visits his old home and Toronto, where he has a host of friends among the sporting class. He will make a lengthy visit to Detroit as soon as the season closes.

FOR THE FANS.

Only six players have been drafted from the minor league clubs by the National League. "His draft business is something of a farce," said Young today. If a minor league player is of any account and is wanted by a National League club, the draft business is to buy his release before the date for drafting arrives. In this way the minor league club owners get more than the draft price of $500, and the man goes to the club that is willing to pay the most for him. Many Western League players were transferred to the conclusion of that league's season, notably from Detroit to Cincinnati. My list shows but one man drafted from the Western League, the others being from smaller leagues.

RACE FOR $20,000.

New York, Oct. 4.—The fall meeting of the Westchester Racing Association began yesterday at Morris Park with the first running of the $20,000 Matron stakes as the chief attraction. Chacrac, winner of the Futurity, Gonfalon and Golden were the favorites, but Mr. Jersey was added, so that sixteen of the best 2-year-olds in training faced the starter. They were off on the first break to a straggling start, and Runaway Girl and Modrine rushed out to make the running, closely attended by Indian Fairy. This order was maintained until the dip, when Modrine began to falter, and Indian Fairy and Redpath moved up. At the sixteenth little Black rushed Indian Fairy to the front, and, riding out with hands and heels, won by a length from Redpath. Runaway Girl lasted long enough to take third money by a head from Killshandra and Brigadier, both of whom closed fast. O'Leary, who rode Redpath, claimed a foul, as he said Indian Fairy shut him off when he tried to come through on the rail. It was not allowed. The division of the purse was $17,000 to the winner, $3,500 to the second, and $2,200 to the third, $1,500 to W. H. Jackson, nominator of the dam of the winner; $1,000 to August Belmont, nominator of the dam of the second, and $500 to J. R. and F. P. Keene, nominators of the dam of the third horse. Summary: The Matron, Eclipse course—Indian Fairy 1, Redpath 2, Runaway Girl 3. Time, 1:10 1/4. Killshandra, Brigadier, Modrine, Windmere, Hammock, John Fritz, Mr. Jersey, La Tosca, Mayor Chitroy, His Royal Highness, Precursor, Yellow Tail and Orville finished in the order named. The winners of the other races were: Chacrac, Firearm, Star Bright, King Barleycorn and Maximino Gomez.

Andrew Munro intervened and prevented the man from being taken on the ferry boat. Mahady claimed that the prisoner was wanted at Trenton for theft, and that he had spent the past five weeks tracing him from one place to another, until he finally located him in Sarnia. He also said that Collins, who travels under different names, has a wife and family who are destitute in Trenton.

THE SHOOTING OF AGGIE DOYLE

Further Details of the Recent Tragedy in Aldboro.

[St. Thomas Times.]

The shooting of Miss Aggie Doyle by Philip McPhail, and the suicide of the would-be murderer, has created a decided sensation in the township of Aldboro. McPhail stopped a great portion of his time with Patrick Doyle, father of the girl who was shot, on the third concession of Aldboro. It appears that Mr. Doyle married Miss Doyle's sister, and Mrs. Doyle is Aggie's stepmother. On Friday last, Mr. Doyle decided to go to the Bothwell fair. Aggie and her half-sister, Miss McPhail, and a small child, remained at home. About 6 o'clock Miss Doyle started down the lane to get the cows. She met McPhail, and the latter tried to grab hold of her. She screamed and ran back into the house. McPhail's sister then said she would go for a cow, and started to do so, but Miss Doyle noticed McPhail approaching the dwelling, and called for her to come back. She did so, and the women fastened the doors. McPhail broke open the door, and told his sister to get the door closed. He then shot her. Miss Doyle had grabbed the child in the meantime, and McPhail turned to her and told her to put the child down. Miss Doyle replied that she would not.

THE SHOOTING OF MISS DOYLE. McPhail then caught hold of her, and a struggle ensued. McPhail exclaimed, "I'll shoot you," but Miss Doyle paid no attention to his threats. The next moment, however, she felt a revolver placed at the side of her temple, and McPhail discharged the weapon. The pistol was held in such a position that the ball, instead of entering the head, passed through the ear and through the muscles of the neck, lodging about the center of the shoulder-blade. Miss Doyle sank to the floor, and McPhail, thinking he had killed the girl, ran away.

SUICIDE OF McPHAIL. About 7 o'clock McPhail appeared at his mother's home, and as he put his hand on the handle of the door, Mrs. McPhail heard a shot fired, and her son fell headlong into the house. He had bared his breast, and placing the revolver to his heart, pulled the trigger. The bullet entered just above the right eye, and passed through the brain. McPhail was carried to a cot, and exclaimed to his mother: "I've shot Aggie Doyle, and now I've shot myself."

The dying man asked for a priest, and requested that the door be closed. Then he lost consciousness. Dr. Graham, of Bothwell, was hastily summoned. He pronounced the wound hopeless and at midnight McPhail died.

Dr. McKillop, of Wardsville, and Dr. Dorland, of Rodney, were called to attend Miss Doyle, and they came to the conclusion that she had a chance of recovery.

BACKWARD THE PISTOL. McPhail borrowed the revolver that he did the shooting with from a neighbor's boy, stating that he wanted to shoot a dog. The boy, and the pistol was not in good working order, and if McPhail was not careful, he would be liable to shoot himself. On Thursday McPhail was in Rodney and purchased cartridges. He had been drinking considerably.

For some time past had feeling existed between the two men, Doyle having had McPhail arrested and fined for shooting a dog. The boy, and the pistol was not in good working order, and if McPhail was not careful, he would be liable to shoot himself. On Thursday McPhail was in Rodney and purchased cartridges. He had been drinking considerably.

is much sought after by vocalists and voice instructors, and used by those of the highest authority in this branch of music.

One of the most striking features of these instruments is the way they stand in tune, due to the new Agraffe bridge, which is exclusive to these pianos. Where subject to the hardest kind of usage as in conservatories, their standing-in-tune quality is marvelous.

If determined to have the world's best piano, you will have one of these instruments.
